First—i reiterate what I have ofter said—I am a Whig. If elected I would not be a mere Frasident or a parry. I would endeave to act independent of party domination. I should feel bound to administer the Government untrammelled by party achemes.

Second—The veto power. The power given by the constitution to the Executive to interpose his veto, is a high conservative power; but him my opinion should never be exercised except in cases of clear violation of the knostitution, or manifest haste and want of consideration by Congress. Indeed, I have though that, for many years past, the known opinions and whose of the Krecutive bave exercised undee and injurious induction where the property of the constitution of the control the government; and for this cause I have thought our system was in danger of undergoing great change from its true theory. The personal opinions of the individual who may happen to occupy the Executive chair, ought not to control the action of Congress upon questions of domestic policy; not ought his objections to be interposed where questions of constitutional power have been settled by the various departments of Government and acquiesced in by the peoplo.
