BRADY & ELLIOT,

But myriads hade him welcome, As he neared the heavenly shore.

Slowly night's gathering shadows, Closed round a mother mild Who, tearful and heavy hearted, Watched by her dying child.

Fevered, and restless, and monating. On his little bed be lay, When the bright-winged angel drew near him, And kiss'd his last breath away.

Bosofily the chain was severed-

So gently was stayed the breath-N scothed the beart of the mourner, And she blessed the Angel of Death. For she knew that the sold of her darling Ind gone to his Father above-

Clasped in the arms more tender Than even her fundest love. And still in his holy mission, id the heaven-sent messenger roam. Gathering God's wandering children To their eternal home

Those, only, whose souls were blighted, And withered by sin and shame, Saw no light in the path of the angel, And knew not from whence he came.

And those, only, who close their spirits

In wilful blindness here, From the light of God's nearer presence Need shrink with distrust and fear

The circumstances which induced the writing of the ollowing most touching and thrilling lines are as fol-ows: -A young lady in New York was in the habit of riting for the Phildgetphia Ledger, on the subject of Pemperance. Her writing was so full of pathos, and vinced such deep emotion of soul, that a friend of ers accused her of being a maniae on the subject of imperance :-whoreupon she wrote the forlowing nes:

Go feel what I have felt. Gohear what I have born Gohear what I have borne--Sink 'heath the blow a father dealt And the cold world's proud scorn : Then suffer on from year to year--Thy sole relief the scorebing tear.

Go kneel as I have knelt, Implore, beseech and pray-

Goweep as I have wept

O'er a loved father's fall-

And cold and livid brow :

The downward course to stay. Be dashed with bitter curse aside Vour prayers burlesqued, your tears defled.

Sce every promised blessing swept-Youth's sweetness turned to gall-Life's fading flowers strewed all the way-

Go see what I have seen, Behold the strong man bowed-With grashing teeth-lips bathed in blood-

That brought me up to woman's day.

Go catch his withering glance, and see carnestly.
