MANUFACTURE and keep constantly on hand, a large assortment of the above articles, together with their patent improved Salamander Fire-proof Safes, which are so constructed as to resist all manner of doubt as to their being strictly fire-proof, and that they will resist the fire of any building. The outside cases of these safes are made of boiler iron, the inside case of soapstone, and between the outer case and inner case is a space of some three inches thick, and is filled in with substances incombustible, so that there is an impossibility to burn any of the contents inside of the chest. These Soapstone Salamanders we are prepared and do warrant to preserve books and papers, even in the shape of Book Safes that will stand as much heat, and we hold ourselves ready at all times to have them fully tested by public trial. We also continue to manufacture a large and general assortment of our Premium Air-tight Fire Proof Safes, of which there are over 800 now in use, and in every instance they have given entire satisfaction to the purchasers—of which we will refer the public to a few gentlemen who have them in use.

What need of all this fuss and strife,
Each warring with his brother?
Why should we, in the crowd of life,
Keep trampling down each other?
Is there no goal that can be won,
Without a squeeze to gain it?
No other way of getting on,
But scrambling to obtain it?
Oh, fellow men, hear wisdom, then,
In friendly warning call—
"Your claims divide, the world is wide—
There's room enough for all!"

What if the swarthy peasant find
No fields for honest labor,
He need not idly stop behind,
To thrust aside his neighbor.
There is a land with sunny skies,
Which gold for toil is giving,
Where every brawny hand that tries
Its strength can grasp a living.
Oh, fellow-men, remember then,
There's room enough for all!

The world is wide—where those abide,
Who leave their native shore,
From poisoned air ye breathe in courts,
And typhus tainted alleys,
Go forth and dwell where health resorts,
In fertile hills and valleys.
Where every arm that clears a bough
Finds plenty in attendance,
And every furrow of the plough
A step to independence.
Oh, hasten, then, from fevered den,
And lodging cramped and small;
The world is wide—in land beside
There's room enough for all!

In this fair region far away,
Will labor find employment—
A fair day's work, a fair day's pay,
And toil will earn enjoyment.
What need, then, of this daily strife,
Where each wars with his brother?
Why need we, through the crowd of life,
Keep trampling down each other?
From rage and crime that distant clime
Will free the pure-hearted;
Take fortune's tide—the world so wide
Has room enough for all!

MOTHER'S LOVE.—(Mary to her Mother.)

By S. Cameron.

Brightest and best of all the ties,
That, formed in Nature's earliest hours,
When she first lighted from the skies,
Twine round the heart the woven flowers,
Cutled in the Summer's moonlight bowers,
And fresh with dew from Heaven above,
Is th it blest one—a Mother's Love.

I've felt it to an earliest time—
In childhood, when athwart the lawn,
With feelings like a Persian clime,
Fragrant and warm, at morning's dawn,
I bounded forward as a fawn,
To see the bannered sun above,
Made happy—in a Mother's Love.

I felt it in the noontide hour—
When wandering by the forest stream,
She led me to some leafy bower,
To screen me from the sultry beam,
And singing me to sweetest dream;
In which I walk'd through lands above,
Still guided by a mother's Love.

I felt it in the evening time—
When the soft music of the rill
Came like a sweet and pleasant rhyme,
And echoed lingered on the hill,
As though it were the voice that now
Mingled with cooings of the dove,
I felt it then—a Mother's Love.

If, I it now, when I behold
Thee, my dear Parent, fond and mild,
When thy maternal arms enfold
In warm embrace, thy loving child,
By love of lightest care beguiled—
Pure as th' unsullied streams that flow
From rocky founts—through vales below,
Holy as Angels' thoughts above,
Is that blest one—a Mother's love.

NATIONAL RIGHTEOUSNESS.

A SERMON

Preached in the Sullivan M. E. Church, Thanksgiving Day, November 29, 1848—by Rev. D. W. Clark.

TEXT:—"Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people."—Prov. 14, 34.

From this address, we extract the following eloquent passages:

"A higher than human authority has said, The Lord is known by the judgment which he executeth. But the judgments which he executes in no respect more striking and emphatic than those with which he visits rebellious and offending nations. It is an opinion too prevalent among us, that nations in their national capacity are in some way or other absolved from the ordinary obligations to the law of God; and too many seem to think that nations may violate that law with impunity. But aside from the solemn declarations of the oracles of God, does not the history of nations teach us a lesson of deep import and striking admonition upon this subject? How many nations have left in their sad history the deep record of Heaven's offence against their wickedness and impiety! Upon what page of history is not the solemn moral aphorism inscribed, Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people!

Let us appeal to facts upon this all important topic of national responsibility; let us appeal to facts in the recorded annals of our race, and inquire what are the lessons of instruction they impart. My friends, the history of the world is not silent upon this subject. The monumental ruins of Empire speak to us as from the grave of ages, and warn us that national sins are visited by national calamities, and national corruption by national ruin! Else why have such fearful desolations been wrought in the earth? Why have so many nations been swept away in the fierceness of the Almighty's anger? Why has the brand of desolation been placed upon the very face of so many countries that were once the abodes of opulence and power?

Consult the history of God's ancient people. What a checkered scene of success and adversity, of national prosperity and utter desolation does that history present. Why do we behold them after a series of the most glorious achievements, and a course of the most unparalleled national success, again reduced to calamity and distress—their beautiful city ravaged and burned, their holy temple pillaged and destroyed, their luxurient fields untilled and desolate, while the miserable remnant of what once constituted the "glad tribes of Israel," is compelled to sit down by the waters of Babylon and weep, while they hang their harps upon the willows and refuse to sing the songs of Zion in a strange land? Had their national advantages, the natural fertility of their soil, the munitions of their defence, the multitude and martial spirit of their troops, forsaken them? Alas they had lost that which was of more value than martialed troops or strong towers; they as a nation had lost the favor and protection of their God, and for seventy long years were they compelled to drag out a miserable bondage in the land of the oppressor. But when afflictions had subdued the pride and obstinacy of their hearts, when they turned again to the Lord, then did he prepare the way for their deliverance, and restore them to their loved Jerusalem, to rebuild its broken walls and re-people its desolate palaces. Thus might we follow down the history of this chosen people of God, showing the mercy and goodness of him to them as a nation, and also his hot displeasure at their numerous departures from him; till their last crowning act of infamy, the Crucifixion of our Lord, sealed them over to perpetual destruction as a people, and blotted them out from among the nations of the earth.

Let not the objector urge that this was a nation of God's own instituting, and therefore his dealing with it cannot be considered indicative of any general control which he exercises over the governments of the earth. But let him look all that he does, as from mountain to mountain, and see the working of the same great principle. What means that mighty destruction that came upon Babylon? What means that bloodeth poured out upon the inhabitants of S

But we need not go to these records of other ages in proof of the truth, that sin is ruinous to nations as well as individuals. God has given living demonstrations of the operation of us all, one moment the ancient splendor. Consider for fertility of Egypt—the land of Cleopatra and Ptolemies, the cradle of the Sciences, the land of the arts—the place where Israel toiled in bondage in the very morning of time, when higher praise could not be bestowed upon the understanding of God's chosen instrument for their deliverance, than that he "was skilled in all the wisdom of the Egyptians." But where now is that ancient people, and what remains of their former greatness? The lonely pyramid, the magnificent sepulchres of its ancient population, and the splendid ruins of its hundred-gated city, tell us what Egypt was. But barrenness and desolation in the country, oppression and wretchedness in the city and a rod of tyranny everywhere stretched out over a sparse and degraded population, tell us what Egypt is. God has visited her for her iniquities, and she has become indeed the basest of nations.

Just across the Mediterranean lies a sterile promontory, encircled by a cluster of islands. Here and there are ruins of temples and towers, which seem to indicate that a people of enterprise and art once had their residence there. But at present no marks of enterprise, and few of prosperity, are seen. The population is sparse, untutored, and degraded. The country is bleak and but little cultivated. The villages wear signs of poverty and wretchedness. The iron rule of the Ottoman has left the deep impression of moral and intellectual dearth upon all the institutions of this devoted land. The people seem just awaking from a long and dreary slumber; but it will be the work of ages to throw off the deep taint of Mohamedan oppression, and restore them to a full appreciation and enjoyment of civilized life. And can it be that this is Greece—ever memorable in the history of the world—the land of chivalry, of science, and of song? Yes, even here once reclined a people distinguished for all the high characteristics of human nature. In this soil the tree of liberty struck firmly its root, and beneath its branches flourished every art and every science. It was the land of chivalry; where plain with Leonidas with his Spartan band fell fighting for his country—here Cimon, "the incorruptible," and Aristides "the just" gave just renown to the valor of Grecian arms. It was the land of Patriots and devoted Statesmen; here Lycurg
