APPOINTMENTS.

The Doylestown Intelligencer, in an article up--on appointments by the President, says that President Taylor should make it a role not to appoint to affice editors or publishers of newspapers .-This is, indeed, strange language, and an argument of which we cannot approve. The reason the editor assigns is that the Press of those who held sphoiotments, would hesitate to condemn an administratian when condemnation was necessary, for Alabama; Charles Hudson, a representative and therefore the press would become corrup! .--If the President as that paper suggests, makes it s releathus lairest editors, it would work the same in the state affairs, and in this manner, editors would seldom be rewarded for their labor in the caure. If an editorie an honest one, he will not Calls. chesitate to speak his mind upon public measures, even if it does threaten his removal from office .---Honest men will not allow the press to become corrupt in their hands, and if men do not speak their minds through the columns of their paper, in this land, under any circumstances, they will fall short of their duty. We see no reason why editors should not be favored. Certain it is that their labor is greater than that of most other persons, while their contsibutions to the party are such that should entitle them to some reward .--They are ever ready to advocate the cause of the party, do everything that is honorable to promote the success of their principles, sometimes much to their pecuniary disadvantage, and when sowards think the establishment of such a rule would do he have a rule would do more injury then good, and our esteemed cotem-porary, would perhaps be strong the first to feel.
