Choice Poetrn. WHÊN IS SUMMER !

From the new volume of Poetry, by Mrs. James Haß asspublished by Putnam, of New York. When, oh when is roey Summer! When all life is fair and blessed, Then is rosy Summer time. When the days beam bright above Hearts untouched by pain or care,
And the mingling streams of love
Nevergloomy shadows wear.

When, oh when is roay Summer?
When Loye's floor breath fills the sir,
And a sense albert in dreaming.
That no change can meet us there;
Then, though Borean snows are round us,
Though the winds how! loud and shrill, Summer's magic spell has bound us, And the heart can know no chill. When, oh when is dreary Winter ?

Vhen life darkens ray, by ray, And in loneliness and anguish We have watched it waste away. nen the glory has departed that o'erfilled the earth with bloom, and we linger, weary hearted, In the shadows of the tomb.

.When we leave the ground enchanted And the cloud peaks where we roved.

Dearing still our heart's home haunted.

By the shades of lost and loved; Bearing still the idel broken, In its closed and guarded fane, Echoing with the words once and oing with the words once spoken, That we be'er may hear again.

When, oh when is dreary Winter? When upon the shore we've stood, And beheld the under current Of life's dark and stormy flood. Then, though bloom is spread before us, As the rosy seasons roll, Winter's iron chain is o'er us. And the ice is in our soul.

DEATH OF MURAT. A MOST THRILLING NARRATIVE. At six o'clock on the morning of the 13th of October, Capt. Stratti entered the King's prison. He bound him in his bed saleep, and desirous not no wake him, was quitting the room, when he poset a chair. The noise disturbed Murat, who narted up, and demanded the captain's business. Stratti who was so overcome, however, that he was unable to reply. The ex-king therefore proeeded. "You have received orders from Naples is it not so?"

"Yes, site," murmored Stratti.

"What do they contain?"

"Orders for your majesty's trial."

"And who are to be my judges, if you please?
Where can they find my equals to sit in judgment upon me? If they look upon me as a king I mast be tried by my brother sovereigns; if as a Matchell of France my state can only be decided. Marshall of France, my state can only be decided

"As a public enemy, sire, you may be tried by ordinary court martial. All rebels, without respect to rank, may be brought before such a triunal. The law was fremed by yourself!" "Yes, against brigands! not sir, against crowned heads. However, I am ready; they may assassinate me as soon as they like."
"Would you wish to hear the names of the

"Yes, it is as well ; it must be a curious list, read on; I'm all attention."

When he had done, the king, turning to him with a bitter smile, merely observed, "It is well;

they seem to have taken every precaution." "How so, sire?" "Can't you perceive that every member name with the exception of Francesco Froio, owes his rank to me? Naturally they will fear being ac-cused of partiality if they decide in my favor." "Sire, why not appear personally before them and plead your own cause ?" "Silence, sir-silence-such a court, I still maintain, is incompetent; I should consider my-self degraded if I pleaded before it. I am aware at I cannot save the dignity of my crown.

At this moment Francesco Froio entered. He interrogated him. His first question was touching his name, his age, his country? Murat, suddenly starring up, cried with all the stern dignity he was at :: "It is now past three o'cluck, will four suit you? I only ask fifty minutes. Have you any objection?"

Froio bowed and left the room. Nunzi sute was following him"Say my friend; shall I not see you again !" "My orders are that I should be present at your execution, sire; but I feel I have no courage to obey them."

"Well then, do not distress your feelings, do not be present. Still, I should like to embrace you once more before I die."

"I will meet you on the road."
"Thank you. Now let me to my medita-

you once more before I die."

"I will meet you on the road."

"Thank you. Now let me to my meditations."

After seeing the priests, to whom he gave a written certificate that he died in the Christian faith, he threw himself on his bed and for about quarter of an hour remained meditating, doubtlessly reviewing his past life from the moment he quitted the ale house in which he was born, to the period when he entered a palace as its sovereign. Suddenly starting up, he seemed to ahase off his gloomy thoughts, and approaching a mirror, began to arrange his hair. Wedded to ceath from his infancy, he seemed anxious to deck himself in abecoming menner, now that he was about to meet it.

Four o'clock struck. Murat himself opened the door. General Nunziante was waiting outside.

Four o'clock struck. Murat himself opened the door. General Munxiante was waiting outside.

"Thank you," said Murat; "you have kept your word. God blessyou; good by. You need follow me no further."

The general threw himself sobbing into his arms.

"Come, come, do not thus give way to your feelings." Take example from me; I am perfect iy calm."

The coolness on the part of the victime so overcame Nunziante, that starting from his embrace the general rushed from the house, flying along the shore like a madman.

The king now proceeded to the courtyard, where every preparation for his execution had been made. Nine men and a corporal were ranged close to the council chamber. In front of them was a wall twelve feet high. Three yards from this wall was a single raised step. Muratinestally perceived its purpo-s, and placed himself on it, thus towering about one foot above the soldiers who shot him.

Ten minutes afterwards, Luigi came out, carring some object in a pocket bandkerchief stained with blood. What it was athe sentinel could with all the varied charms of bush and tree;

At length, taking a sudden turn round a mass or mountain of rack, we came suddenly upon the ro-mantically situated Convent of Mar Saba (St. Saba). The Convent in its bold masses and irregular outline, is only surpassed by the wildness of the surrounding secency. The wild character of the country seems to have produced a feeling in the minds of the original designers of the Convent to outdo nature in her boldest flight; for in the massy rocks and the natural fortifications of this mountain glen, nature has apparently inverted her usual order, leaving large masses of projecting mountain overhanging the chasm, and on these the builders of this extraordinary Convent have perched their
