He took refuge in a thick pert of the forest, and soon perceived a small cottage, in a little "cleating," at a short distance. He approached it and knocked at the door. It was opened by an old woman, who invited him to enter, and led him into a small but neat hall, the walls of which were decorated with portraite of Napoleon, (currounded by leuret branches) and numerous engravings of his principal battles.

"It seems," said the young honter, "that my, good star has conducted me to the house of a compariot."

"Yes, sir," replied the old lady, "se are French prople. My son is in the garden-I will call him," she continued.
"Your son is French also?"

"Yes, sir," replied the old lady hesitstingly; "he has been established here for a long time, and thanks be to God he has not repented it. That young woman is his wife. We live respected and.

BATTLE OF MONMOUTH. .The 28th of June, 1778, was a great and memorable day in the kalends of the infant American republic. For wise and good reasons the English army left Philadelphia with a train of boggage 12 miles long, for New York. The latter was held during the whole of the liberty war, this contest between the mother and daughter, by the unnat-ingl mother. We shington left his but at Valley Forge, and in imitation of the Roman consul who opposed Asdrubal, made a bloody effort to prevent the fjunction of the two armies of his enemy.

In lead his suffering soldiers towards the same shore. He sought his enemy and met him on the sandy plains of Monmouth. Washington widewinged, Clinton and Cornwallis wide-winged at, sed Asdrubal, made a bloody effort to prevent and aroun! the viliage of Freshold and English-them; and fire-hail is whiciling far and near upon the burning plains; the great and small guns play-ing, and both vomiting forth fire and death.— And Gen. Leve is swept back on this wing and on that, and is takely to be swept back utterly, when Washington arrives in person, and speaks a prompt word or two: "Stand fast," said the hero, Stand fast my boys, for the Virginia and Maryland line will soon come to your relief." The hearts of the American soldiers leaped at the sound of their beloved, and, as they thought, invincible chief, and the armed merceharies of a monarch fell in units, tens, and even hundreds, beneath the fell in units, tens, and even hundreds beneath the republican fire.

Washington, on his death-defying, old and faithful white horse, galloped slong the line, he waved his sword and cheered on his men in the death-struggle. The fierce provincials wreatled hard with their oppressors—they met the soldiers of the spotter country, band to hand—they closed with them a weapon's point. It was a bloody conjunction, or rather conjunction of carnage, this battle of Monneugh. Men of kindred blood, men speaking the same noble language, not in death grapple. It was indeed a bloody conjunction. It was, I kill, thou killest, he kills, we kill you kill, they kill. But death has other weapons of destruction. The sun far several days had been in struction. The sun far several days had been in the Boreal Crab, the men were fighting, by Fa-rentieu's thermometer, in the heal of CO. Many of the combatents bit the dust, and died unscathed by sabre or shot.
