Friend Ticknor—I have eximinally your lone-looked for Spelling Book, and take pitenaure in stating to you my sentiments in regard to it. The first thing which strikes the eye upon taking it up, is the heatness of its appearance, the whiteness and simminuses of the paper, and the branty of its typography. The words are, for the nost part, those which are in common use; and the transition from easy words to those of more difficult orthography, is well adapted to the gradual progress, which the youthful pupit is naturally expected to make. The spelling is according to the approved described in the spelling is according to the approved of serican standards. The definitions are concise, yet comprehensive, and, what is of the greatest importance, so simple that they may be understood by the youngest scholar. The systematical order, in which the whole book is arranged, meets with my decided approval, and I think cannot fail to commend itself to the favor of both teacher and scholar.

Your Spelling Book professes to be "for the use of schools," and not a book of reference for learned etymologies; consequently, those who expect to find in it much of the mythology of our language, so to apeak, will be disappointed. Those who require children to burden their minds with the derivations of words, before they have learned the words themseives, may be compared to a man, who, upon approaching a fine appletree, is not content to regale himselfupon the tempiling truit which offers itself to him, but first digs down to the roots:

It cannot be denied that there is much valuable time. It is not be content to resule this time.

played, and that scholars are greatly discouraged by the monstrous appearance of the work which they are required to perform.

In this respect, I consider the Columbian Rpelling Book a decided improvement, and for many other reasons a very superior work.

I hope it may receive from 'teachers and others interested, all the welcome which it deserves.

Mr. Almon Ticknor Dear Sir :—In all the Arithmetrs that I have used, thave found a very great want of practical examples, to illustrate the principles of the science. In consideration of the superior Excellence of your Arithmetic in supplying this deficienty—logether with its adaptation to the currency of our point country, I have introduced it into my School.

I have examined your Spelling Book, and consider it decidedly superior to any other work of the kind, with which I am Equinited, in the Elements of our Literature.

Mr. Ticknor — Dear Sir—I have examined your Spelling Book, and in my opinion, believe it to be just the book we wand in our Schools. I have always found a general difficulty in setting children to spell and pronounce correctly. The nanner in, which you have arranged this important book for I consider it the foundation of a good education) is sectled in, and sould reading a general attack before the 16th gr. 17th, when the news of the failure of the conspiracy in France would reach that place, and would probably induce the Triumvirate to captulate.

The undersigned, teachers of the North Ward Public file of the conspiracy in France would most respectfully ask of the Directors of said Wardspermission to introduce it into our schools. The surface is an introduced in the walls by the French, and a portion of their troops entered the city. This report, and the William port. The world wardspermission to introduce it into our schools.
