THE COAL TRADE. -The great depression in this branch of business, and the difficulty in efferting sales, have caused members of some of the firms to locate themselves in the principal markets, with a view of effecting sales on the spot. This course has been adopted by some of the heavy operators, and others find it necessary to adopt a similar course. Our friend. Mr. James J. Conner, of the firm of Conner. Rhoads and Littleheels, informs us that he has determined to take un his residence in New York also, with a view of selling their Coal.
