We cannot but regret the necessity, in Mr. Johnston's case, which occasionally calls for the sacrifice of personal feeling on the altar of political consideration. There was opposition to his confirmation-and he, himself, indifectly invited it. But the prime cause of it was not in himself, nor his supposed enemies in the Senate. The source was nearer at home-and if any reproaches are hereafter to be felt. let them fall upon no man in the Senate-for there, we are satisfied, he had fair play and abundant time. It was "out of his own mouth (and those who spoke for him) that he was condemned."

I do not remember one of the numerous genilemen who have referred to my remarks, who has attempted to deny one of the facts, or refuite one of the argu-ments; they have noticed them merely to vituperate their nathor. To such remarks there can be no reply by him who is not willing to place himself on a level with blackguards. I cannot enter that arena. I will leave the filth and the slime of Billingsgate to the fish-women, and to their worthy condjuors, the gentlemen from Virginia, [Mr. Billion,] from Noth Carolinar; [Mr. Stanley,] from Kenucky, [Mr. Stanton,] from Tennessee, [Mr. Williams,] and all that tribe. But why did not the editor give us the amount in tons of ore raised, and a few hints as to the extent of the deposit, and its probable importance?
