IRON TRADE IN PENNSYLVANIA. An Important Article For The Times.

We are indebted to the Philadelphia North | plage: American for the following important article condensed from the statistics of the American Rail Road Journal. We hope every one will read it attentively. The information it contains is valuable at any time, but incalsulable now, when every nerve of the country is strung with eager hopes of better Protection to our Manufacturing Interests:

From authentic statistics, gathered unde the auspices of the Iron-makers' Convention, which annually assembles in this city, we learn that of the 62 counties which the State embraced at the date of the last report, 45 contain Iron works, and of the remaining 17, contain abundance of iron and coalthough, owing to the absence of any cheap road to market, they yet remain untouched —leaving only 8 counties in the State not adapted to the manufacture of iron. The National Intelligencer says that the block of quartz from California for the National Monument has reached Washington. It is about eighteen inches square and eight inches thick, and is said to contain about $80 worth of gold. It is in a roughstate at present, and without inscription. It will be placed in the monument as a contribution from California. Blocks of marble, granite, &c., have now been presented to the Board of Managers by every state in the Union, except Virginia and Connecticut—from the former two blocks are offered, one by the country of Rockbridge, and the other by the "Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Virginia," with an appropriate inscription, to be deposited in the monument.  Advertisements crowded out this week, will appear in our next Journal.
for St. Paul—paid fare $5 00 for 400 miles, to place of destination. After passing Dubuque, a town about the size of Tamaqua, the Mississippi becomes dotted with small Islands, presenting a very picturesque appearance. In sight now, I behold the old military fort, General Taylor's head-quarters where he gave a demonstration of his skill and courage, in subduing the red men of the forest. It is a pretty place, situate on a prairie 2 miles wide, by 10 miles long. The post is now vacated, and reminds me of some coal mines in your county. There are still a few traders here. From here up, nature presents itself in all its native beauty. Flats of prairie ground—Bluffs and Cliffs form the most beautiful scenery imaginable. The most rugged spots are clothed with prairie grass of a luxuriant growth. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet high, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. St. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. After passing Dubuque, a town about the size of Tamaqua, the Mississippi becomes dotted with small Islands, presenting a very picturesque appearance. In sight now, I behold the old military fort, General Taylor's head-quarters where he gave a demonstration of his skill and courage, in subduing the red men of the forest. It is a pretty place, situate on a prairie 2 miles wide, by 10 miles long. The post is now vacated, and reminds me of some coal mines in your county. There are still a few traders here. From here up, nature presents itself in all its native beauty. Flats of prairie ground—Bluffs and Cliffs form the most beautiful scenery imaginable. The most rugged spots are clothed with prairie grass of a luxuriant growth. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet high, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. St. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river,—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. The soil, in the vicinity of these towns, is from 18 inches to 6 feet thick, rich, and productive of all kinds of grain, which the crops at this season of the year fully demonstrate. It was supposed that Winter Wheat and Corn would not do well in this high latitude, but every thing that has been sown or planted last fall in the shape of grain, is promising an abundant yield to the husbandman. The climate is delicious and refrishing at all hours. Stillwater, is situated on the St. Croix river: a town about as large as Middleport. The Lumber about as large as Middleport. for St. Paul—paid fare $5.00 for 400 miles, to place of destination. After passing Dubuque, a town about the size of Tamaqua, the Mississippi becomes dotted with small Islands, presenting a very picturesque appearance. In sight now, I behold the old military fort, General Taylor's head-quarters where he gave a domonstration of his skill and courage, in subduing the red then of the forest. It is a pretty place, situate on a prairie 2 miles wide, by 10 miles long. The post is now vacated, and reminds me of some coal mines in your county. There are still a few traders here. From here up, nature presents itself in all its native beauty. Flats of prairie ground—Bluffs and Cliffs form the most rugged spots are clothed with prairie grass of a luxuriant growth. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet ligh, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. Si. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river,—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. The soil, in the vicinity of these towns, is from 18 inches to 6 feet thick, rich, and productive of all kinds of grain, which the crops at this season of the year fully demonstrate. It was supposed that Winter Wheat and Corn would not do well in this high latitude, but every thing that has been sown or planted last fall in the shape of grain, is promising an abjudant yield to the husbandman. The climate is delicious and refreshing at all hours. Stillwater, is situated on the St. Croix river: a town about as large as Middleport. The Lumber trade is quite important. The emills now running cannot supply the demand, and if emigration continues on the present scale, it will require twice its uninber next year to supply the wants. There is abundant lumber near at hand for the next forty years. All that is wanted here, is Farmers and Capi-	and progress of the iron business in this State. for St. Paul—paid fare $5.00 for 400 miles, to place of destination. After passing Dubuque, a town about the size of Tamaqua, the Mississippi becomes dotted with small Islands, presenting a very picturesque appearance. In sight now, I behold the old military fort, General Taylor's head-quarters where he gave a demonstration of his skill and courage, in subduing the red men of the forest. It is a pretty place, situate on a prairie 2 miles wide, by 10 miles long. The post is now vacated, and reminds me of some coal mines in your county. There are still a few traders here. From here up, nature presents itself in all its native beauty. Flats of prairie ground—Bluffs and Cliffs form the most beautiful scenery imaginable. The most rugged spots are clothed with prairie grass of a luxuriant growth. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet ligh, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. St. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. The soil, in the vicinity of these towns, is from 18 inches to 6 feet thick, rich, and productive of all kinds of grain, which the crops at this season of the year fully demonstrate. R was supposed that Winter Wheat and Corn would not do well in this high latitude, but every thing that has been sown or planted last fall in the shape of grain, is promising an abundant yield to the husbandman. The climate is delicious and refreshing at all hours. Stillwater, is situated on the St. Croix river: a town about as large as Middleport. The Lumber trade is quite important. The smills now running cannot supply the demand, and it emigration continues on the present scale, it will require twice its number next forty years. All that is wanted here, is Farmers and Capitalists to build Saw-Mills, which investment will clear itself in a short time. A Saw-Mill	and progress of the iron business in this State. In sight now, I behold the old military fort, General Taylor's head-quarters where he gave a demonstration of his skill and courage, in subduing the red men of the forest. It is a pretty place, situate on a prairie 2 miles wide, by 10 miles long. The post is now vacated, and reminds me of some coal mines in your county. There are still a few traders here. From here up, nature presents itself in all its native beauty. Flats of prairie ground—Bluffs and Cliffs form the most beautiful scenery imaginable. The most rugged spots are clothed with prairie grass of a luxuriant growth. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet ligh, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. St. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. The soil, in the vicinity of these towns, is from 18 inches to 6 feet thick, rich, and productive of all kinds of grain, which the crops at this season of the year fully demonstrate. The Bluffs are from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet high, with suitable breaks in the mountains for wagon passages and ferry landings. St. Paul is situated on an elevated plain, about 150 feet above the Mississippi river—the town is beautifully laid out, and improving fast. So is also Willow River, St. Peters, and Stillwater. The soil, in the vicinity of these towns, is from 18 inches to 6 feet thick, rich, and productive of all kinds of grain, which the crops at this season of the year fully demonstrate. R was supposed that Winter Wheat and Corn would not do well in this high latitude, but every thing that has been sown or planted last fall in the shape of grain, is promising an abundant yield to the husbandman. The climate is delicious and refreshing at all hours. Stillwater, is situated on the St. Croix river: a town about as large as Middleport. The Lumber trade is quite important. The smills now running cannot supply the demand, and it emigration continues on the present scale, it will require twice its unimber next forty years. All that is wanted here, is Farmers and Capitalists to build Saw-Mills, which investment will clear itself in a short time. A Saw-Mill	and progress of the iron business in this State. A Beautiful Poem.-The following beautiful es were handed us by a friend. May the musea forever press the heart that yields such baimy "drop-[Written for the Miners' Journal.] HEART-DROPPINGS. To My Wife.

You bid me take my harp again, And tune its strings, and strike its chords; Alasi what lay may wake the strain? What thoughts find ulterance in words? Say—shull I sing of by-gone years.
When Hope's sun shone with instronglow—
Bre sad regrets and polynant cares
Had worn deep furrows on my brow? Ah, no! Those years have passed away, And with them, the delights they gave— heir buds of bliss have seen decay— Their brightest joys have found a grave. Shall Friendship be my chosen theme? That spirit, at whose mystic shrine So many pilgrims bow, and deem Their idol changeless and divine?

Shall I rebearse its fervent zeal— The task were vain. The vanated shrine
Sought by the ardent votary's feet,
May, to his sight, all beauteous seem,
As on he speeds, his goal to meet.
"Of the earth, earthy" all things are;
And riendship's charms, though sparkling bright
As beatific dreams appear,
Partake of Nature's general blight.
He addresses who haves from

He sadly errs, who places frust,
And counts his garnered treasures o'er—
He comes to find them filled with dust,
Like apples on the Dead Sea's shore. Friendship is FAIR—when fortune cheers— Friendship is TRUE—when joy prevails— But ah! no trial-test it bears— In grief it wavers—faiters—fails. No not to these shall happened wake, Nor muse her measures simplers sing; Such themes its shatter signifiers would break. Or cause discordant tones to ring. But I will chant a simple ta;
To one, whose faith, and truth, and love,
No storm of grief could force away—
No trial shock could change or move.

To thee, beloved, this strain is due-To thee ten thousand thanks I owe— Thy counsels bade my strength renew— Thy soothings calmed my bitter woe. Fortune has frowned—hopes vanished are— Joys have departed—friends are gone— Yat still, with gentle, ceaseless care, Thou watchest, cheerest-lovest on. In life's young morn thy heart was given, And love securely yet ablica— (Though all thy promise-budy are riven.) Through weator woe, whate'er betides And I—what tribute can I lay Before thy fond, et during failth!
My heart has naught, wherewith to pay,
Save firm fidelity till death.

THE COAL TRADE FOR 1850.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

By Yesterday's Mail.

In the Senate, on Thursday, Mr. Cooper esented memorials from the iron workmen of Pennsylvania, praying for a modification of the Tariff. Mr. C., urged the prayer of the petitioners, depicting the general prostration of business throughout the State for want of better protection to its coal and iron interests. He stated that of the furnaces in operation at the close of 1847, one half had ceased operation; also, that the demand for Pennsylvania Coal, had greatly diminished. Mr. Sturgeon admitted these facts, but attributed them to over-production -the Doctor is a very wise man, and deserves a medat for this wonderful discovery.

The Texas Boundary Bill was again taken up. Messrs. Underwood and Atchison were opposed to paying any indemnity-it was bribing a State not to rebel. Several verbal amendments from Mr. Pearce were adopted. Mr. Ewing proposed to change the boundaries so as to exclude Passo from Texas, as given by the Bill. Pending the consideration, a motion was made to adjourn. In the House nothing of importance has

The Tariff.-We learn from Washington that an effort will be made to attach a Tariff Bill to the Appropriation Bill. Whether it . will succeed or not, will depend in some measure upon the course of the Locofoco members of Congress from Pennsylvania, who profess to be friendly to Protection. We' hope the people will watch their course closely.

Later From North Carolina. - The Whigs have lost 5 members of the House of Representatives, and two Senators. It is believed the Whigs will have the House and the Locofocos the Senate.

Missouri .- The Whigs here carried the members of Congress in the first, and also, it is believed, in the second districts. The Legislature it is supposed will be Whig. The Bentonites are ahead of the Anti-Bentonites so far.
