She was greeted with the most enthusiastic cheers as the steamship neared her landing. Barnum was on board, no doubt enjoying the scene, in anticipation of the rich harvest he is about to reap. The scene upon her getting into the Carriage in waiting to convey her to the Irving House, is ludicrous in the extreme. The people climbed upon the wheels and top of the carriage and mounted the borses; and it was not until after a considerable time, the driver vigorously plying the lash to both hivses and vigorously plying the lash to both horses and riders that the suite was allowed to move off. Her apartments are described as magnificent. At midnight a grand screnade was given her by 200 musicians of the N. Y. Musical Fund address and welcomed her to America in the name of its Musicians. It is thought she will sing at the Astor Place Opera House by the 10th, until the large Hall is finished.
