LISTEN: LADIES, TO PETER PIPKINS.

I wish that I was married, I'm, tired of this life; I think I will turn a page, and try to get a wife; for O! of all poor mortals renowned in song or ditty, the bachelor who lives alone, deserves most of your pity!-Some call their wives extinguishers, 'twould notbe so with me; for I am quite extinguished now, at least I'm out you'll see : quite out of cash, and so of course I am without a friend; I'm out of credit and of coats, and no one wants to lend. I'm friendly to the married state, although its full of care, it's best to have a kind of helpmate, though joys must be but rare. It is not good to live alone, with scarce a friend to greet, I'm sure the bliss of wedded life, must be by far more sweet! I'll marry! yes my mind is fixed. Ladies! now here's a chance, I'm rather young and handsome too, can sing a song and dance; I'm worth whole cart-loads of " true love," and of dimes about a score, all which I freely offer you; sorry I've nothing more. PEPSIN AND RENET.

Pepsin is the chief element, or great Digesting principle of the Gaetric Juice. It is found in great abundance in the solid parts of the human stomach after death, and semetimes causes the stomach to digest itself, or est itself up. It is also found in the stomach of animals, as the ox, calf, &c. It is the material used by farmers in making choese, called Rennet, the effect of which, has long been the special wonder of the dairy. The curding of milk, is the first process of digestion. Rennet possesses astomishing power. The element of a calf will curdle nearly one thousand times its own weight of milk. Buron hiebig, states that "One part of Pepsin disvolved in sixy thousand parts of water, will direct most and other food."— Diseased stomachs produce no good Gastric Juice, Rennet or Pepsin. To show that this want may be perfectly supplied, we quote the following.

The Farmer.

TO MEASURE CORN IN CRIB. First find the solid contents of your cribin feet, so far as it is filled with good slip-shucked corn. This will show the number of solid feet of corn your crib contains. We suppose one-third of these contents to be of cpb, onethird of shuck, and one-third only, of pure corn. Now dividing the above ascertained solid contents by three, would give you'the number of bushels of pure corn, provided a solid foot of shelled corn made a bushel, and three solid feet of slip-shucked corn made at bushel. But this is not correct, because it takes five solid feet to make four bushels. Then you must deduct one-fifth from the number of solid feet in order to ascertain the number of bushels which the house could hold or does hold of shelled corn. Remember. if the corn is only slip-shucked, then one.

third only of the number of bushels must be counted, for the rest is only of cob and shuck. Suppose a crib is 14 feet wide and 20 feet ong, and that the corn in it is 10 feet deep. Then multiply the width by the length of the inside of the crib, and multiply that product by 10. This gives you the number of solid feet of corn, viz:

14 by 20=280 by 10=2,800 solid feet of com. 2,500 divided by 5=500 to be substracted. 2,500-560=2,240 bushels, if shelled corn. 2,240 divided by 3=746 bushels, if in the shuck. Thus if I was to measure a gentleman' crib, I would do it as follows ;-The crib 20 feet long, 14 feet wide, and 11 feet high, I would do it thus:

20 by 14=280 by 11=3.080-616=8.464 divided 3=851 bushels to be the contents of the body of his crib when filled with good slip-shucked corn. PROOF.—Une solid foot contains 1,728 solid nches, and one bushel coniains 2,1601 solid inenes. Now;

1 728 multiplied by 5 is equal to 9.640, 2 1501 4 8,601. You see it is near enough for measuring corn to say that 5 solid fe.t make 4 bushels and from this simple fact the rule is derived. In measuring a roof that is full of corn, I multiply the length, breadth and height together, the same as the body of a house, and then divide by 2, before making other calculations, for the roof contains only half as much as a pen having the same length. breadth and height, but not tapering.

TO PŘESERVE PUMPKINS.
