A FEW SUBSTANTIAL REASONS. Why Young Men should be Democratic Whigs We have often asked ourselves the reason. why many of our young men waged a continual warfare against their own interests as well as against the best interests of their country.

All young men from eighteen to twenty one appear anxious for the day to arrive has invariably been on the wrong side. when they can assert the prerogative of In 1843, he voted against the Seduction manhood, and cast their votes at the ballotbox, and yet, when that day at last is ushered in, not one in every ten calmly reflects upon the importance of his first vote. The first vote may, perhaps, shape their future course through life, and unite them to one or the other of the great political parties, by a link which they may, in after years, strive in vain to unloose. We are acquainted with old men, whose heads are silvered with the frosts of sixty winters, whom we have heard declare, in an exulting tone of voice, that they have voted the Democratic licket for thirty years and that they will not now change in their old age. Their first vote fixed their destiny, so far as politics were concerned and judgment ever after had nothing to do with their choice. Voting continually for the same party, right or wrong, they call consistency, but we call it obstinacy. The principles which are advocated by the present Democratic Locofoco party, are antipodes to which Bigler has figured at all, he has althe principles advocated by the same party ways been found on the wrong side. twenty years ago. We are aware that all natural objects change, but nature neuer turned one-half the somersets which the Democratic party has, since the time of Thomas Jefferson to the present day. Why, then, should the young men follow in the footsteps of their fathers? Why adhere to, what is called by demagogues, the preamble coupled with the bill of supplies, cial district, and an unprecedentedly large old landmarks of the party, when those landmarks have been defaced so many times, that the original trees upon which they were knows any thing, knows to be false. John cian. placed, have withered and decayed and are Strohm knew it to be false, and because they now mouldering in the dust.
