The following record, although incomplete, is believed to its extent to be correct.

General Mercer is usually said to have been killed at the battle of Princeton, but really died of an epileptic fit in that neighborhood, a week after that affair. The popular notion is derived from the fact that he received a blow on the head from the butt of a musket, in the hands of the British soldiers, in full retreat with his comrades. He was knocked down and stunned for some time—

HOLIDAY SONG. BY EVES SARGENT.

Quit gathering in the planteous gift,
To wonder at the Giver's care,
And each adorning thought to lift
To Him, the great First good, First fair!

O Thou, whose bounties have no endriften whose Omnipotence proceed

Ellessings that on the soul descend,
And those that serve the body's need,

May both be prized and used aright'---And, as the eager earth revives
Beneath Thy warmth, beneath Thy light, so may Thy grace inform our lives!

While to the ground we give the toil
That bares it to Thy quickining breath,
May we prepare the nobler soil,
Whose bloom succeeds the mortal death!
