BISHOP HUGHES! ADDRESS, At a meeting, held in New York last week, to further the design of erecting a Roman Catholic University in Ireland, Archbishop, now Cardinal, Hughes acted a conspicuous part. We append his resolution and a reason that reflects no credit on former gov spicuous part. We append his resolution and a reason that reflects no credit on former governments of England, nor on the present. Samson's cruments of England, nor on the present. Samson's truments of England, nor on the present. Samson's strength was in his hair; the strength of the Catholic church was in its property, and for that reason its property was taken from it in one fell swoop. All was taken from it; and after the property was taken and it was without means, in came the Legislature to adopt their next policy, which was to put out the eyes of its victims—to deprive them.

The most Rev. Dr. Hughes, Archbishop of the Diocese of New York, then offered the following resolution.—

Besolved, That in the deep 'harmony of unantmous feelings which the late penal enactments of the Brit ish Parliament have produced among the bish-ps, the clergy, and Catholic people of England, Iteland and Stotland, and the founding of an Irish Catholic Intersity at the time, we recome a sign of hope and piedge that the Celtic racy: in the United Kingdom of Great Britlan and Ireland will be as losting, as inconditional an indestructable, as the empire itself, unastrophe, bappen when it will.

that I am about to launch into a philippe against the government and people of Great Britain. This however, is not my intention. It is, indeed, diff-cult for a man to divest himself of the feelings the government and people of Great Britan. This however, is not invinced in the sentence which sent them to the feelings which would be natural when he looks back to the land of his nativity, and the oppression which has affected that land on account of the religion which is still its consolation. I do not say I am devoid of this natural feeling. At the same time it is the dity, and still more the duty of one in my position to divest himself of every uncharitable sentiment, even towards those from whom he has received the most injury. Hence, therefore, it sometimes the gushing feeling prompts resembled, we have at least, as a resource, to turn it from individuals to abstractions, and if we hate England, not to hate abstraction of the nation in its corporate capacity—something that it is not a crime to hate. all these things, and would have been silent if he was disposed to be just. The Catholic religion has done every thing for education. If you strike from Europe the colleges and universities founded by Catholics, you will leave the face of Europe a desert; you would scarcely find schools worth naming; showing sufficiently, that if Ireland has not the means of education, there is a reason for it, and see on the reflects no credit on forces rays. Despote Alliance against the Press .-A letter from Munich, of the 30th ult., announces that the Bavarian government has published a convention concluded between Bavaria, France, Russia, the Roman States, and several of the petty German States, establishing reciprocity as regards the operation of the clauses of the laws on the press, destined to repress offences against the chiefs Legislature to adopt their next policy, which was to put out the eyes of its victims—to deprive them of knowledge—to bring them down until they should be briftined, and have no tradution or memory of the injustice of which they were the victims. Was it not felony for the Church to teach and instruct Catholics—was it not a felony for a Catholic to go abroad to be educated —was it not felony for him to return?—were not these the laws of Great Britain towards Ireland for generations? of the government, and the diplomatic agents of such States.

TAt a late anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Bishop of Chasel said, "I do believe I do not overstate the fact, when I say that there have been ten of Great Britain towards Ireland for generations. And it is the providence of God and the strong power of divine faith which prevented that government from being successful. They only dimined, they did not destroy, the vision of those to whom they denied light. They treated the Catholius as a besieged city, and cut off the fountain of knowledge from them; and yet, by the sustaining influence of the faith, there was no lack of teachers. Young men, prompt to devote themselves to the propagation of the faith, went abroad, studied in foreign colleges, and came, home, educated, to put them. thousand converts from the Church of Rome in Ireland.
