At the same time the thing itself is praiseworthy, and it would be well it something like it were more common among ourselves. BAD HABITS. A bad habit resembles horse radish; it is terribly difficult to extirpate it from the soil in which it has taken root, and the cultiva-tor who would rid his land of the stubborn plant, is vexed and aggravated by seeing it again and again spring up, fresh and smart The prize-fighters do not burden their consciences with prayers. And those who pray much, in the true spirit of prayer, generally leave fighting alone. Two sailors were once passing a church in New York, and seeing the worshippers en-gaged in a real knock down battle produced by a division on the subject of the minister's preaching, one of them asked the other : "What are they doing there, Jack ?" To this the other replied. "Oh, they are serving God like the devil!" That is the way, we fear, fighting chrisians always do .- Boston Olire Branch.
