PROTECTION VS. FREE TRADE, The point at essue, this Campaign.

On whatever other grounds the present Presidential campaign is waged, there is, at least, one point of difference between the of Home manufactures and the sustaining of remunerating prices of American labor, and the encouragement of Foreign manufactures and the introduction of the rates of European

Gen. Pierce is an avowed Free Traderis friends in this country acknowledge it, and the English hurra for him as the "champion" of their interests in American politics. On this ground alone, the British papers unhesitatingly advocate his election, and openly declare his success an important "feather in their caps." On the other hand, Scorr has always been regarded the friend of American labor, and in fact, the friend and protector of everything American and anti-British, and his recent endorsement of the Whig National Platform, makes "assurance doubly sure," on this point.

But, independent of the individual views if the two candidates, the respective principles and practice of the opposing parties, on this question, for the last ten years, to go no further back, unmistakably establish the point at issue. The Whigs are the authors the Protective Tariff of '42-the Locofocos of the Free Trade Tariff of '46. The former, true to their avowed party principles, have invariably and unanimously opposed the policy (?) of '46, and have done their utmost to have it repealed or, failing in that, to effect its partial modification; but is framers and friends, having the majority in Congress, have successfully resisted every such attempt. Not only so, but knowing the real preference of the great mass of the people of the North for Protectionist doctrines, the Locofocos have appropriated this feaof the Convention, the following resolution was they knew the people, on fair grounds, would not uphold them. In '44, their cry was " Polk, Dallas and the Tariff of '42," and last Fall, every one in this Region but too well remembers the fulsome promises of their party leaders, which secured the votes of our citizens. Now, how have these pro-

NER. "We presume that among our Democrati fellow-citizens at least the opinion of ex-Go-vernor John A. Quitman, of Mississippi is cal is even with the foremost in the progressive, entitled to some weight. The genuineness of his 'Democracy,' and his honest, but somewhat misguided, devotion to the South, r next month is before us—it is all that Magazine have, we believe never been questioned, even readers could desire. It contains several full-page by the bitterest of his political opponents. A gentleman of New Orleans, who was a nteresting reading matter. Price, 83 a year or 25 fellow passenger of Governor Quitman, a few days since, on a steamer bound up the "Carbon's" Enigma, on a cursory glance, has river, asked his opinion of General Scott. "'Sir,' said the Governor, in reply, 'the American people have never done General Scott justice! The more that man's character neut words are misspelled. We will, however, give it a more careful examination, in time for inand claims of distinction are canvassed, the higher will be the stand he will take in the admiration and gratitude of his countrymen

"'I have been surprised and astonished," continued Governor Quitman, 'that among the Whig party there should be found a single man unwilling to give him a cordial and hearty support. As to his being 'controlled' by Seward,' that is all stuff. I know the man, and he will be controlled by no one contrary to his own convictions of what is right. And as to his being true to the South I consider him the most unexceptionable man on that score among all the Whigs who have been named in connection with the Presidency. I am a Democrat; and, consequently differing widely as I do from General Scot on every political question, can never give support; but if there is a Whig in the Union for whom, under any circumstances, I could cast my vote, that Whig is Win "Such, in substance, we understand, was the reply of a brave and gallant old soldier when his opinion of a noble and much abus ed companion in arms was asked.
