MEXICO-A TOTTERING REPUBLIC

The intelligence from Mexico is of the gloomiest character. The authorities can-not hold out much longer. New outbreaks are of almost daily occurrence. The revo-lution at Guadalajara was every hour be-coming more formidable. A Congress had been summoned to consist of two deputies rom each State, and General Santa Anna had been called upon to return and resume the reins of government. The authorities, at the capital were in fear and trembling, not knowing at what hour a demonstration, would be made. The whole country indeed presents an appearance of disorder, distrust and confusion. Some important change is evidently at hand. Either Merico will cease to be a republic, and sink into despotism under some military ruler, or she will be torn to fragments by her own people, and divided into petty governments. The central authority is without money and without power. FIRE .--- Chickering's extensive Piano-
