The Rev. Dr. Cox, of Brooklyn, expatiated nathe mission of Gavazzi to this country, adding him in the name of the friends o rivil and religious liberty, welcome to the emblage in tolerably intelligible "broken English." Eloquence the wildest and most rehement, and action the most extraordinary conveyed more than words, perhaps, the fire of patriotism within his breast. He declared self a Roman Catholic of the Church of Rome founded by St. Paul, long anterior to Pope and Popery, against which he declared war to the knife—not against Roman Catholies, as such, but against the system, because while it existed there could be no peace for Protestantism. His mission to America was to obtain sympathy with his struggling Italy, nor in the shape of navies and armies, but the expression of opinion that their cause is just-this, and to defend that cause from the calumnies of Bishops and Priests, likewise to get his countrymen to embrace his opinions, in which respects he had been success ful in England. He denounced Austria, and still more France. The man who sent an
