Liver Complaint.

Mrs. Robert Adams, laboring under Chronic Liver Complaint, accompanied with a short dry cough, pain in the side and breast, general debility, loss of appetite, after trying all the usual temedies recommended for coughs and diseases of the chest, with not benefit, she was recommended to try the Rose Pectoral, from which she not only derived immediate, but permunent relief.

John Adams, son of Mrs. Robert Adams, was affected with a very severe cough pain in the side, and soreness produced by incessant coughing; he was induced to try the Rose Pectoral. To use his own language, the first dose enabled him to enjoy a good night's rest—in the morning he espectorated about half pint of matter. He continued to improve until his cough entirely left him, it also had the effect of attengthening his breast, which was naturally weak; ile also says that he has recommended it to-a number of his friends for similar complaints, and in every case it has given satisfaction.

The above persons residents of the town of Danville feeling that they have drived great benefits from the use of the Rose Pectoral; authorize the above statement, for the benefit of those who may be afflicted in a similar manner. THOMAS DIXUR.

Loss of voice restored with one bottle of Rose Pectaral. Miss Susan Whithock, of Rush Township, Northumberland County, for a number of years an invalid, in the fall of 1850 lost the use of her voice from a sevete cold she contracted; after trying a number of remedies, with no benefit, ahe was entirely restored by taking one bottle of Rose Pectoral, after which, significant with the second and was again restored by the use of another bottle; she then took four bottles more to strengthen her breast, from which she derived the most decided benefit, and has been in the enjoyment, of excellent health from that time to the present.

The above statement is obtained from Dr. Pursell, the Physician who attended her; also her mother, who thinks that she would not be living at this time if it had not been for the Rose Pectoral.

THE WINTERING OF STOCK.

Taking the last census as the basts of the alculation, and there are at this time about in the United States. Their value exceeds that of all the manufacturing establishments in the country, and also exceeds the cannial employed in commerce, both inland and toreign. Live stock is an immense national interest, but one which has been overlooked by American statesmen and writers on public conomy. How to winter cattle, horses, hogs, slicep, and poultry in the most economical way, all things considered, is a subject on which an instructive volume might be written. The science of animal physiology sheds much light on the business of keeping live styck, both in winter and summer; and it properly studied in its bearings on this great interest, would add indefinite millions to the accome of the farmers, and the wealth of the nation. But how can we persuade our readers to study animal phisiology in connection with the production of wisdom-taught by the former. Thus science informs us why it is that cattle and other animals subsist on less food in winter, and keep in better order, if well stabled or housed, and regularly fed, than they will if subjected to the rigors of cold storms, snow, rain, mud, and irregular feeding. The latter system consumes both forage and flesh needls saly, and, of course, involves a prodigious loss to such as follow it. Warmth is the equivalent of food, because food is used in the bodies of all animals to generate what we call animal mestic animals, is not known; but a number of experiments lead to the conclusion that one-third may thus be saved with advantage serve him if he remained idle in a warm room through the winter; and the same is true of an ox or horse. A large share of all domestic animals do not work, and are kept for the production of flesh, milk, or wool .-

They need a reasonable amount of exercise to preserve their health, as well as good keeping in the matters of food, drink, and shelter. In wintering hogs, true economy requires that one should keep no more than will give the maxium of flesh for the food consumed. To keep a pig without his gaining in weight involves not only the loss of the food he consumes, but all the injury resulting from stunting his growth. Few are aware of the damage done to young animals by permaturely arresting the growth of their bones and muscles. A stunted pig, call, or lamb has received an irreparable injury .-

You can no more fully make amends for the him a new eye; and no good keeping will both in winter and summer, for their food to yield the largest profit. Of course, stables may have a full supply of pure air. Most stables, and all sheds, give too much of it, especially in cold wintery weather. Look out for a plenty of straw, or other litter, to absorb all urine, unless you have a tank or other reservoir for it to run into. Manure manure aids so much in their annual growth sell at high prices. It costs nearly as much to plow, plant, hoe, and harvest an acre of corn to obtain 25 bushels as 50 bushels; and manure will double the crop .- Genesee Far-
