ng, Miners' Balety Lamps, Blusting Paper, &c.. &c. GUM BELTING. The experience of the last eight years has gained this Belting this confidence of the consumers; this aggirher with this fact that great improvement hem have seen made in the industry, warrants the minimacturers in assirting it to be superior to leather or any hing clee, for all one Belts, floor of specially for each of the industry or main liefts, for the following reasons: 1. The perfect equality of width and thickness which it will reldin.

2. No degree of heat under 100 degrees Farenbeit injures it, and litremains flexible, in any degree of cold

3. It is of great strength and durability, does not stip on the publica consequently a gain of power is obtained and, when alligisted to machinery does not require alteration, as it the case with leather, or any other.

4. The cost is smuch below leather or any other fletting.

These Belts are more durable than leather, and range from 25 for 100 per cent. cheaper in price than the leather Belts are more durable than leather, and the leather Belts of the same strength. They are also peculiarly adjusted to Colliery purposes, because the coal dig and after heing worn out, are worth nearly, if not quite, half piffe for Packing.

15 These sub-stiber's orders, it in consequence of his extensive sales, have the preference over all orders at the Factiory—sind he can always produce the Betts ordered through him, that have to be made of a heavier quality, within the given time.
