GEM FROM FANNY FORRESTER. Give me my old seat, mother,
With my head upon thy knee;
I've passed through many a changing scene
Since thus I'sat by thee.

Oh! let me look into thine eyes-Their meek, soft, loving light Falls, like a gleam of holiness, Upon my heart to-night. I've not been long away, mother ; Few suns have rose and set Since last a tear-drop on thy check My lips in kisses met.

Tis but a little time, I know. But very long it seems,
Though every night I come to thee,
Dear mother, in my dreams. The world has kindly dealt, mother, By the child thou lov'st so well ; Thy prayers have circled round her path. And twas their holy spell Which made their path so dearly bright-Which strewed their roses there— Which gave the light and cast the balm, On every breath of air.

I bear a happy heart, mother, A happier never beat: And even now new buds of hope Are bursting at my feet. th, mother, life may be a dream. But if such dreams are given. While at the nortal thus we stand What are the truths of Heaven? bear a happy heart, mother, Yet, when fond eyes I see, And hear soft tones and winning words And then the tear my spirit weeps

Unbidden fills my eye; And like a homeless dove, I long Unto thy breast to fly. Then I am very sad, mother, I'm very sad and lone: Oh! there's no heart whose inmost fold Ope's to me like thine own! Though sunny smiles wreathe blooming While love-tones meet my ear My mother, one fond glance of thine Were a thousand times more flear.

In humble imitation of Mary, the light o her home, the guardian of her Holy Child, is opened up, the noblest sphere of woman. Here, by an influence genial, but mighty, may the mothers of Israel act upon the social problems of our times, and execute, by all gentle and confiding graces, and spiritual loveliness, their holy mission to the church and the world. Our limits admit only of suggestions on a theme so rich and comprehensive, as that of the mother in relation to the child The "Flight to Egypt," as painted by some of the old masters, presents this relation in some of its most touching and significant aspects. In the picture we see, as the central figure, a young child. On one side stands Mary, with troubled anxiety, watching beside her precious charge; on the other, in the distance, is the dark form of Herod, with rage and vengeance in his face, dooming to death the innocent babes of Bethlehem. It is an eloquent, moral picture-the emblem of a great and permanent reality. We see in this pictured flight a touching symbol of childhood and its perils, its guardian angel, and its evil genius. Mary, with the young child nestling on her bosom, borne away from the destructive sword of Herod, is suggestive of Christianity, as the guardian of childhood against the destructive power of sin in the world, especially emblematical of that guardianship, as exercised through the instrumentality of the pions mother, and the Christian home.

Herod still lives, and seeks the ruin of innocent and helpless childhood; and there is no protection against the destructive enemy, like hat of a mother's love and vigilance, especially when that mother herself is embosomed in the Church of Carist, which is the mother of us all. Let us have in our land Christian mothers and Christian homes. There let the opening mind of childhood be surrounded with the spirit of the Gospel.
