AUTUMN DAYS. Tis Autumn time! the summer flowers
Have faded 'neath its golden feet;
The birds have left their shady bowers.
And winds chime mournfully and sweet;
The maple boughs, whose folded leaves
Have whispered through the summer days
Like bright-winged birds, around the eaves
Are fitting in the sum'real sweet. Like bright-winged birds, around the Are flitting in the sun's pale rays; I hear their rustling low and sweet, As if an angel ficated o'er; They seem to me like friends I meet, And love, then part forever more.

The dreamy full of limpid streams;
The saure hase that floats above.
Enshroud earth as mysterious dreams,
O'er all our spirits softly move...
Spirit of dreams; oh, I would bloss
Thy soft luxurious charms for aye,
And fold thee in my soul's cares.
Now and forever till I die!
Oh, chide me not! the low wind rhymes, full many a nisintive trembling lay. Full many a plaintive trembling lay, nd I could listen to her hymns. Till I had breathed my life away.

THE LITERATURE OF WALES. The Monmouthshire Merlin, an English pub ication, possessing an extensive circulation in South Wales, is engaged in publishing a series of papers, on the literature of Wales.-From the very interesting character of the publication, we cannot refrain from making the following extract. The subject is the poetry of Wales, and is so entertaining and instructive, that we are confident it will interest not only the Welsh, but our readers in gen-

Perhaps the quality which, beyond all others, characterise the poetry of Wales, is pathos. The Welsh people have always been distinguished for the possession of intense feeling. The same remark is applicable to all the Celtic races. 'Inn this land ram a stranger,
Yonder is my native home,
Far beyond the stormy billows,
Where sweet Canana's hillocks gloom;
Tempests wild from sore temptation
Did my vessel long detain,
Epeed, oh! gentle eastern breezes,
Aid me soon to cross this main.

'Had I but the wings of a dove,
To regions afar I'd repair,
To Nebo's high summit would rove.
And look on a country more fair,
My eyes gasing over the flood,
I'd spend the remainder of life
Beholding the Saviour so good,
Who for sinners expired in strife.' 'Once I steered through the billows, On a dark, relentless night. Stripped of soil—the surge so helnens. And no refuge within sight. The works of this poet which have reached us are numerous, exceeding 200 poems.— They are, for the most part, domestic and pacific; but the whole are sprightly, figurative, and bold, and are enriched by a vein of tenpartius. ARM FOR THE BATTLE!-The following lines form part of a spirited piece by a lady writer, which appeared in a late number of the Cayuga Chief:

Death! death! to the crested serpent!
War! war! on the cause of Rum!
From mountain to valey the watchword
Repeat, till our lips are dumb. Follow the trail of the monster-Trail him through torest and glen Hunt him wherever he hideth— Stab him to death in his den!

Hath he not murdered our mothers. Hath he not murdered our mothers— Brought their grey lecks to the tomb! Hath he not murdered our brothers. Yet in their manhbod's bloom! Hath he not colled on our hearthstones, Hissing with Upas breath! Cn! to the warfare, brothers! Nor cease till he writhes in death.

Arm for the battle of glory; Strike for the cause of Truth; Fathers, with locks so hoary, Sons in the bloom of youth!

To the serpent whose name is Rum! the Boston Journal gives the following sketch of an incident that fell under his notice: As painful a scene met my view in the Canada there are one thousand seven hundred ears from Philadelphia to New York, as I had ever seen in my journeys. At every taining eight hundred and eighty thousand place the cars stopped he evidently replenished the vacuum in his throat by a new drink, until he could not sit without help in his seat. He then rose hastily and went and opened the car door, and seated himself in it, with his feet hanging outside. He appears so nearly all favorable; and I have no doubt, far to have won the confidence of his patron, as to have been appointed his steward, also instructor of his only daughter. A mutual could be carried by an overwhelming majority in Whitehaven."

THERE are some exjudges, and other good men, who would seem to cherish the necessity, justice, rightfulness, and morality of the Liquor system, as a part of their religion. How comes it that clergymen offer no prayer for so sacred an "institution?" In the language of Macbeth, with blood-stained hands:

THE MUTATION OF MATTER.—With a very near appreach to truth, the human family inhabiting the earth has been estimated at 700.000,000; the annual loss by death is 18,000,000. Now the weight of the animal matter of this immense body cast in the grave is no less than 624,400 tons, and by its de-composition produces 9,000,000,000,000 cubic feet of gaseous matter. The vegetable productions of the earth clear away from the atmosphere the gases thus generated, decom-Hooper, Pall Mall, in 1834.

We have now commemorated the chief of the ancient bards of Wales. Others were, the ancient bards of Wales. Others were, and on the seeds of plants, which in due time become a part of himself. The lower animals become a part of himself. plants, the earthy or bony substance alone remaining where it is deposited; and not even these unless sufficiently deep in the soil, to be out of the absorbent reach of the roots of plants and trees. Nothing appears to me so cannibalizing as to seek a flock of sheep grazing in a country churchyard, knowing it to be an undeniable fact that the grass they eat has been nurtured by the gaseous ema-nations from my immediate predecessors; then following up the fact that this said grass is actually assimilated by the animal, and becomes mutton, whereof I may perhops dine next week. "Truth is stranger than fiction," and here is the truth that exemplifies the proverb. It is not at to prove that the elements of which the living hodies of the present generation are composed have all passed through millions of mutalations and formed all parts of animal and vegetable bodies, in accordance with the unerring law of nature, and, consequently we may say with truth that fractions of the elements of our ancesstors form parts of ourselves. Some of the particles of Cicero's or Æsop's body, peradventure, wield this

INSANE IN CANADA.—We learn from the American Journal of Insanity, that there is an urgent necessity for the immediate erection of additional asylums for the reception of the lunatic population of the Provinces.
