DEAR JOURNAL:- We have just got over our Thanksgiving Dinner" in New England, and enjoyed the reality which has been so long anticipated in a peculiarly Yankeelsh style. It has been a "fensiony" in this city of notions, and not only have whole hecatombs of turkeys been fattened, slaughtered and devoured, but both the soul and the mind have been feasted with the richest of in. tellectual treats. The beard mania has not yet thoroughly select the Bostonians, but I think it would be a difficult natter for this city to raise such a magnificent rop of beard as New York has the present season But the Tankers are not so apeled as many o their neighbors, neither are they so fickle as some f their brothren in sister cities. The ladies here dress tastefully and elegantly, and the youthful ner, as a class, have much more natural beauty and modesty, and less affectation and ertistical display, then any I have yet seen, got even excepting our fair friends of the Miner City. Beston is much more substantially constru than gracefully built, when we come to consider it in detail; but riewed from a distance it is a most magnificent pile of granite and brick, and probably no city in the world, is more closely sacked together. In spite of the aurrow, stucked streets, and the tall and almost windowless houses one cannot help admiring it. There seems to be uniformity all through, a solidity and strength, and a certain grandour, with a most remarkab ratness in all we see. Philadelphia herself is not more clean and wholesome, not more cheerful and attractive. Yet our city of Brotherly Love (!) for grace, elegance, beauty and convenience, is un. doubtedly the first in the world, and as such we have reason to be proud of her. But what has surprised me most is, that there seems to be no plored my alms, neither have I seen a drunken man of Woman.

The ride from Worcester to Boston is delightful; and as I started at 7 o'clock instead of 4, Lenjuyed it exceedingly. The morning sun was just arising over the eastern bills, like a golden flame, and all his cloudy path lay before him, strewn with rosy tints. Indeed I have never seen a more magnificent morn, if we may except this, when he rose up with the grandeur of a god, from behind the low, far stretching sea, and gazed with his brightest smiles on a thanksgiving, and a happy New England. As we rushed down by the nest and picturesque ankee villages and towns, that lise the road-Westboro, Ashland, Westnewton and Newtonby Parmingham and Nantic, despite the chill auumn weather and the bare and leafless trees, our admiration was unbounded. THE COAL TRADE

FROM OUR TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT. A New York View of the Auburn and Allentown Railread.

Probably no new line of Railroad has ever been so favorably viewed by business men, not connected with adverse interests, as this one recently proposed, connecting New York with the centre of the two great Coal Regions of Pennsylvania, viz: the First and Second. It is singular how it could have escaped the attention of the New York capitalists so long, since the same opportunities have been open many years, and we are aware that even British stockholders in American Railroads have repeatedly pointed out the necessity of connecting New York more immediately with the cities of the Great West, which the completion of this connecting link will be the means of doing. But there will be no want of British capital to build the Allentown road, as we have moneyed men enough at home who are able and willing to make it at any cost, for the advantages which it will bring. not only to us, but to New York and all the western cities, is immense. There is nothing strange in the fact that the leading New York papers have ol, not taken up the subject since its recent discussion bombarded by the Allies on the 31st of Octo that the thing should have been overlooked so

In discussing the prospects of this city, speculators and writers have lost sight of one important point, or many of them have, and that is the symwith a great and increasing fanaticism against pathy which exists between inland and sea port cities, and the natural advantages which a direct communication brings to both. A Lecture on Love, or a Private Advice to Married Ladies and Gentlemen.

This is decidedly the most fiscinating, interesting and really useful and practical work on Courtains, Matrimony, and the duties and delights of Married Life, that has ever been issued from the American press. The artificial social system, which in so many instances prevents a union of hearis, and sacrifices to conventionalism the happiness and even the lives of thousands of the young and hopeful of both sexes, is thoroughly smylyred and expowed. Every one who contemplates marriage, and wishes for an infallible guide in the selection of a partner for life, should purchase this great text book of communial falicity.
