It was a stormy night in the ides of March, if I mistake not, when lightning and loud peals of thunder answered thunder, and Jonathan sat by the old man's fire-side, discussing with the old-lady, (his intended mother-in law) on the expedience of asking the old man's permission to marry "Sal." Jonathan resolved to "pop it" to the old man next day. Night passed, and on the dawn of another day the old man was found in his barn lot feeding his pigs, and Jonathan resolved to ask him for Sal.

Scarce a minute elapsed, after Jonathan made his resolution, ere he bid the old man "good morning." Now Jonathan's heart beat; now he scratched his head, and ever and anon gave birth to a pensive yawn.-Jonathan declared that he'd as lief take "thirty-nine stripes" as to ask the "old man;" but, said he aloud to himself, "however, here goes it; a faint heart never won-a fair girl," and addressed the old man thus:

"I say, old man, I want to marry your daughter." "You want to borrow my halter. I would loan it to you, Jonathan, but my son has taken it and gone off to the mill."

Jonathan, putting his mouth close to the old man's ear, and speaking in a deafening tone, "I've got five hundred pounds of money!" Old man, stepping back as if greatly alarmed, and exclaimed in a voice of surprise, "you have got five hundred pounds of honey, Jonathan! Why it is more than all the neighborhood has use for!" Jonathan, not yet the victim of despair, and putting his mouth to the old man's ear, bawled out, "I've got gold!" "So have I, Jonathan, and it is the worst cold I ever had in my life." So saying he aneezed a "wash-up." By this time the old lady came up, and observing Jonathan's unfortunate luck, she put her mouth to the old man's ear and screamed like a wounded Ya hoo.

"Daddy, I say daddy-you don't understand; he wants to marry your daughter." "I told him our calf halter was gone." "Why, daddy, you don't understand-he's got gold-he's rich." "He's got cold and the itch, ch ! What's he doing here with the itch, eh!" So saying the old man aimed a blow at Jonathan's head with his cane, but happily for Jonathan, he dodged it. Nor did the rage of the old man stop at this, but with angry countenance he made after Jonathan, who took to his heels; nor did Jonathan's luck stop here, he had not got far from the old man, who ran him a tight race, before Jonathan stumped his toe and fell to the ground, and before the old man could "take up" he stumbled over Jonathan and fell sprawling in a mud-hole. Jonathan dy-made clothing than has ever before been offered, and sprung to his heels, and with the speed of gentlemen who would please themselves in any garment for their wardrobes, or in suits for their sons, should go John Gilpin cleared himself. And poor Sal, died a nun, and never had a husband.

AN ACTRESS IN SEARCH OF HER LOVER .-A correspondent translates the following Fashion, and ticket-marked with the lowest cash price in amusing incident from the Courrier des Etats

One of the most beautiful actresses of a theatre on the boulevards received daily for COUTH E. corner Third and Chesabout a month, a fittle penny bouquet of violets. She found the bouquet in her box or with the door-keeper every evening as the play was about to begin, and this simple offering of an unknown love affected her in spite of

While acting, she looked carefully around -at the boxes, the parquette, and even behind the scenes-but to no purpose; she saw nothing by which to recognize the man of boquets. And thereupon she gave her imagination free rein, and the imagination of an actress is very similar to that of other Was he a foreign prince, who wished to captivate her heart before placing at her feet his crown and treasures?. Or was he an artist, too bashful to declare his passion? She interrogated the box-keeper, the tirewomen-in short everybody employed in the theatre; but nobody knew anything about it.

Still the bouquets' came. "Do they tell us that constancy is a chime ra?" murmured she. The other evening, as she entered the the atre, she received a fresh boquet of violets, and this time the flowers were accompanied by a letter. "At last!" said she, and opening it by the light of a reflector, she read as fol-

"Mademoiselle,-I have loved you for a long time, for is not beholding and loving you the same thing? Every day I come to admire you, to applaud you, to delight myself with the brightness of your eyes and the charm of your voice"-

"He must be in the house," thought the actress, and she peeped through a hole in the curtain. The audience had but just commenced to assemble. She resumed reading: "Of your voice. You are indeed beautiful and charming, and happy are they who may approach you. What would I not give give to be near you always! Would the treasure of all the world be worth one of your smiles? No!"

"Ah! that is nice," she sighed; and turning the page, she continued: "No! And yet I dare to love you,-to tell you that I love you-still more. I venture to beg you not to reject my homage. "He begins to explain himself," said she to herself, "and I shall know"-and she continued:-"my homage. If this expression of my love does not offend you, place this boquet of violets in your bosom. Oh! then I shall be the happiest of men!"-

"Well," said she, "no signature, -no name given; but let us see, here is a postscript." "P. S. If you are curious to know who writes you, look up at the fourth tier-mu leas will hang over."

The note dropped from the hands of the actress, and her arms nearly dropped from her shoulders. BATHER strange things have been said at and concerning the Falls of Niagara. "Isn't it nice." said an unimaginative east ern man, to a young lady he mut there, "isn't it nice, Miss?" "Yes," was the reply, "all is nice, very nice that that active little biped man has done, or is doing !" Still more striking is another fact. A traveler was fully engaged in his deepest coğitations on the scene, when another accosted "That is majestic, sir."

"Thank you, sir," said the traveller, "for that word; majestic is exactly the word I wanted." "Yes," said the other, well pleased with the compliment. "yes, sir, it is the majesticallest and prettiest thing I ever saw." What a falling off was thege!

We dearly love a witticism, when it falls from the lips of a lady. Here is a gem:-A young lady, in one of our chiefs cities, a year or two ago, had accompanied her friend to hear a literary lecture. On their return, the gentleman remarked to his "lady-love," on the manner in which the lecturer had executed his task, and thought the whole performance.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial it always speaks for itself.—
There are two things about this herb that appear to me surprising; first that it grows in our pastures, by some places quite ploniful, and yet itself walle has neede been known until I discovered it in 1842—second that it should sure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery. I will state that in April 1863, I peddled it and sold about six byttles per day—in April 1854, I sold over one thousand buttles per day of it. Some of the wholesale druggists who have been in the business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in Some of the wholeste draggists with have even in the sunsess twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal praise of it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been, found in it that reat and amount with the same disease which was always considered incurable, have been dured by a few betters. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful unstady—there are that few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy sall of them aged people cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver. in the side.
