from Spring street, just in the darkest part of the street, I saw a strange, abadowy, indistinct figure leaning sgainst the Park rail; it struck me as strange, but I passed on, and forgot it before the following day. Next night, however, in the very identical spot, and in the same listless attitude, was the figure again. Tall, thin, dimly visible, with no rational object that I could divine, it struck me as unaccountable. I gazed on it for some time: it never moved. The distant lampserved only to give me an indistinct view of the served only to give me an indistinct view of the served only to give me an indistinct view of the object, but was sufficient to show that the countenance was deadly pale, and the eyes fixed upon me with the glare of a demon.

"I walked on, and marvelled exceedingly as to what could be the cause of the apparition. Was it sent to me for some especial purpose; to warm me of some fearful approaching calamity; and did it wait to declare its mission only till I had broken the spell by addressing it first? All these thoughts perplexed me to such a degree, that I was at last almost afraid to pass the spot. But poor Tom could not be comfortable without me, and I went as before. There, however, in the exact position are at first, the same ruant figure confronted me:

as at first, the same guant figure confronted me; its eyes followed me with the same demonical expression; and at last, when I found my nightly rest destroyed, my appetite going, and my spirits entirely subdued by my apprehensions, come what might, I resolved to speak to it. I went as usual to Spring street, conversed with my invalid friend till twelve or one, and betook myself to my homeward way, resolved to put an end to the mystery ward way, resolved to puran end to the mystery at once; and there it was, in the same dim, appal-ling, fearful indistinctness! My heart throbbed my breathing grew difficult, as I approached it; but I had summoned all my courage for the ocbut I had summone casion, and said— "I abjure you, whatever you are, to tell me what is the object of presenting yourself to me? If there is upon your conscience the weight of un-repeated sin, and you have burst the cerements of the grave, tell me what may be done to give you satisfaction; and if my services can be of use "The figure changed not a single muscle as I spoke, but when I had finished he said-" "What did he say?" cried all my cousins, quite breathless with anticipation. ·He told me to move on and be hanged, and not palaver there, or he would take me to the stationuse. It was an M. P."-N. Y. Paper. Our friend Davenport, the actor, (and an actor of great power and grace he is, too, who throws into his personations that naturalness and abandon witch makes him seem the character he depicts,) sends us a couple of poetry-bills by a "spoon" who called himself "Adolph," some years ago in Philadelphia—a kind of literary Shales, whom the wags of the theatre made great sport of. He wanted to produce a play of his own, but there was one objectionable stage scene in it, it was thought! A fair specimen of his verse is afforded in his "Song on a Paper Kite," in which we honor his choice of subject; for a boy's kite was always our specialite, and we suppose always I do admire a paper kite

As I do a indy:
It is to me a pleasing sight,
When she flies so sweetly:

The sweet bobs of a paper kite,

Often gave me pleasure: It is a beautiful sight, For the boys to endure. A kite may light upon a house, Chance get fast to a tree: The boy then trys his best and might, And gains sweet liberty. He's pleased to find his kite not torn, The threads is drawn, his kite flies on,

THE following specimen of the "Eloquence of the Bar," in a not distant Western State, was actually delivered, as we know from a correspondent as here reported in his notes. The case was the trial of h-person on a writ inquirendo lunatico.--Which side the "learned" and elequent advocate was oz, it is somewhat difficult to ascertain from his speech : "The counsel on the other side, Sir, misapprehends the principle involved in this im-portant case. Law, is sir, very simple, if we under stand its elementary principles. The principle of this case, Sir, is to be found in the horn-books of the profession. I hold in my hand, Sir, a volume f Blackstone, Sir, the great author of the English law: yes, sir, I hold in my hand, Sir, that glorious negans chactus, the foundation and bulwark of English liberty, which was wrung by the illustrious King John, suwoard in hand, from the bloody Barons on the banks of the pleasant Bon-Sir, I did not intend to make a speech, Sir, and as I have not examined the question, Sir, I submit it to the Court with these few and incongravial

HAS THE THING LIT? A backwoods boy was once at a depot on one of the Georgia railroads, and was of course deeply interested in gazing-tor the first time—at the "mighty fixins." Finally he got inside of a car, and while indulging his abounded curiosity, the whistle screamed, the hell rang, and the steam horse began to surge at the rate of "two-forty." Oh lordy," shouted the boy, "stop it, stop it, I rin't agwine; and bursting forward be opened he door and jumped out on the platform. Have You Tried $17 This important question should be asked every invalor to be is suffering from pulmonary trouble in this ficklimate. Have you tried WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF OD LIVER OIL AND LIME? It will not nauscate like COD LIVER OIL AND LIME? It will not had scate like the plain oils, but is on the contrary; pleasant to the taste; moreover, the Phosphate of Lime is, in this combination, a most remarkable aid to their healing properties of the Pure Cod Liver Oil, as the indicating certificates (selected from a host of like grateful acknowledgements) will amply show. No person should neglect, for a single hour, a cough, or any affection of the lungs, lest the most serious consequences follow. Dr. Wilbor's the most serious consequences follow. Dr. Wilbor preparation is both safe and simple, and sure in all ordi nary cases, and has performed some surprising cures in decided consumption, where ordinary medical aid has Dei Wilden:—During nearly the whole of the past winter, I had suffered seriously with a cough, which had so irritated my lungs, that my physician frankly admitted his fear of consumption following this trouble as the Spring weather set in. Medicine seemed to afford me little relief, until I tried your preparation of Cod Liver Oil and Lime. The effect I am forced by facts to admit, was almost magical, and I have the pleasure of raying at this writing, (May 24, 1883.) I am entirely free from any pulmionary trouble. pulnionary trouble.
