A resolution recommending ar e-opening of the laws trade was voted down. The Convention was moderate in its action—a fact we note with pleasure. Agrit is stated that/the late Rufus Welch--who died in Philadelphia--had to idea of hisimminent danger un-til a few minutes before bis desth. Then Doctor God-dard in reply to bill question, if he could do anything to case him field it his painful duty to say, "It is nucles, you will so be at ease Rufus, without my assistance or that of mortal man." The sufferer looked at him fixedly for a minute, and then said. "You don't mean that. Doctore! Are you serious?" The reply was "I am," to which Mr. Welch promptly saids "Is it so--it's all right then!" and these were the last words he ever spoke. This is not the least interesting feature of a newspaper.
