OUR billingsgate neighbor of the Gazette atcuses us of quackery, because we publish Dr. Ayer's advertisements. Now this same editor knows the Pharmacopier itself is not more free from the suspicions of quackery than his medi-. cincs. He knows they are endorsed by the best medical journals of this country, are used and. prescribed by our best physicians, and have the ommondation of professors and eminent men of ... character too exalted for his comprehension, and he knows too that they have done and are doing in this community an amount of bood which the atmost stretch of his ability can never hope to equal .- Berke Co. Press, Reading, Pa:

now, for we have a man much greater than Caosar. The triumphs and glories of all the Cesars were as nothing compared with the triumphs of Professor Holloway. When "the great Cesar" was dispatched to thau by the Roman Senate, the first communication they received from him was the spigrammatic announcement, "I came, I saw, I conquered." When Holloway, ander the influence of a noble philanthropy, and guided by a sound philosophy, entered on his mission of happiness to man, his successes might well have been recorded in the words, "I came, I saw, I saved." Casar, during his campaign in Germany, determined to rise up with his army against the State; his first stop was to pass the Rubicon. A chaos of bloodshed, wickedness and snarchy en-sued, which the world has soldom seen since then. Holloway, disgusted and shocked with the futility of the means commonly, employed to counteract disease and preserve health, set his energies to work to devise a new and universal curative; his first step was to consult Nature. Nature respond-ed, and his medicines, scattered over the face of this broad and beauteous earth, shed their blesthis orong and vous to the test of the state of the second and the second state of the happiness would have for ever fied. When Casar entered Rome in triumph, the en-

Mark how the times have charged. Our Casar rejoices in no tributaries purchased with tears and blood. Holloway's laurels have not been bought by human slaughter and desols ted bomes. His triumphs have been triumphs over disease and death; and his most valuable reward has been the prayers and blessings of thousands of grateful hearts with whom his name and fame have become "household words." Carsius; though one of Cæsar's foes, acknowledged his greatness when he said : 'Ye took, it doth amaze me how he should So get the start of this majetic world,' And bear the palm alone"

And bear the paim alone" But what a hollow greatnoss was Cæsar's com-pared with Holloway's. What a cruel end he had, He lived by the sword, and died by the sword.— Ic was murdered by his "friends." Thus ended the career of the greatest ruler of the greatest reliablic the old world and the old times have CASTINC HOUSE, 40 pr 81 retr; ever had. But here in this new world and in here, latter: times we have a republic greater. there, inter times wo have a republic greater, truer, purer than that of Rome in her palmiest days. And here, too, we have a new Casar whose deeds and fame, will be commensurated with its greatness, and whose claims to the admiration, and respect of the world now and in future times do not rest on the number of human beings he has slain or the desolation he has made, but on the number of human beings he has saved, and the pleasings of health and happiness which he has bestowed on humanity in the discovery of his miraculous remedies .- Boston Traveller.
