ALLER & NEEDLES' IMPROVED SCHER-PROS.

Last fall, owing to various causes, Mesers. AL. LEN & NEEDLES were unable to fill all the ordere. with which they were favored. We do not know in what manner we can refer with equal accuracy to their past, present and future business, as connected with their Super-Phosphate of Lime, than to quote a portion of their circular to their curto-mands of our numerous customers without delay. ."It is perhaps unnecessary for us to say much n regard to the merits of our article, as it has been so long known and appreciated as a standard manure. We can only assure you, however, that the high reputation it has attained, and its uniformity of quality, will not be impaired in the slightest degree. "Our Super-Phosphate of Line is corrented ours in all cases: Pamphlets for gratuiteus distribution will be furnished upon application."ermantown Telegraph. OSAGE ORANGE FOR HEDGES .- Prof. J. B. Turper, of Illinois, the Napoleon in Osage Orange culture, has given his opinion on the reliability of this shrub as a Hedgeplant, in a letter recently published in the Country Grutleman. The judgnent he expressed may be summed up in the following propositions: 1. That the Osage Orange will, after one year's growth, endure all the frosts which occur in our ordinary winters. It should not be exposed the first winter after it has grown feor will it prove hardy on swampy lands, till they have been thoroughly underdrained. 2. The causes of failure in most cases have en, imperfect preparation of the soil, poor plants pareless culture, or the entrusting of the job to "professional hedge-makers," who were strangers to their employers. 3. He intimates that farmers should persere in the work of planting the Osage Orange for ences, using great care, and doing the work in every respect better than heretofore. A farmer may on good soil bring a hedge to serve as a good fence, in four years from planting. The hedge need not cost over fifty cents a rod. 4. He feels that this interest, as well be other departments of Agriculture, needs the fostering We give the above synopsis of the riews of this able pioneer in the Hedge enterprise, because his judgment is of great value, and terause this matfer of fences is of great importance to farmers,

WILL THE SHORT HORNS CONSTITUTE OUR DATE RIES .- Most certainly, if over they become pleaty enough and cheap enough for that purpose. But stock, and to such an extent that all the essential excellence of the Short Horn, with her imposing appearance, and high milking quality, can be attained, is beyond a question. Such will be, as in many places they now are, among our hest dairy cows. The only effort required to effect such a from a good milking dam, and ernes him on to well selected, good milking cows of the common breed. Then reserve the best heifer-culves of their produce, and following the same cross upon them in succession, and to their produce after them-always using a thorough bred bull-fad the object, from the first cross, or half-blood, up to as near an approximation to the pure blood as possible, is attained. For all practical purposes, a herd of dairy cows, so bred, can be made as available as when the pure blood is resorted to alone, which, at the prices the pure blood will command for a long time to come, can not be profitably adopted. THE POTATO OAT .- This out is preferred to any other by many agriculturists, more straw yielding erly gathered. An experiment of the potato out the past year, detailed in one of our exchanges, show a yield on a piece of slaty leam, without any special manure, or in fact any manure at all, fifty bushels to the acre, the weight per bushes being 38 pounds. If the soil had been properly more, as the oats would have been heavier. The expense of culture, all told, including seed, is sedown at $8 50. The arraw, it was expected. would pay for reaping and threshing. This oat is said, apon the whole, to be preferable to any other corest of its family, and should be univer-
