The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspaper from the offices, or removing them from the place of business, is a plain act of intentional fraud.

Advertisers decline to receive their newspaper from the offices, or remove them from the place of business, until they have paid the bills and settled their debts.

Advertisers do not receive their news-
place of business, without informing the publisher, and the newspaper is sent to the former address.
