AMERICAN MANUFACTURES .- Mr. Bigelow lassachusetts, has published an ablo pamphlet liscussing the condition of Massachusetts man etures, and adtributes the inability to compete with England, to the corporation system. The history of nations as well as of States and individual communities, proves that more can be ac-complished successfully, as far as manufacturing and producing are concerned, by individual proprietors, than by corporate management, which is almost invariably, traught with errors. While we admit this point, yet we think Mr. Bigelow over. a whole, to compete with European manufactures. His facts are forcible, and prove what he does not buch upon, that this country needs an adequate gress from this District. They want a man, ca- celebrated on Monday, July 5th, by the Sunday Protoctive Tariff. For instance, comparing the years 1853 and 1856, in Great Britain and the United States, we have the following remarkable exhibit of the advance of British manufacture. and the relative where not positive, decline of. American manufacture : CONSUMPTION OF COTTON British. ak. 16. 734,000,060 American. 1853, 1856, 1853. 265.716.000 920,000,000 270,234,000 1856, / Increase. 186.000.000 Increase, 4,518,000 MESTIC COTTON GOODS EXPORTED. $269,686,980 1853. 1856. 307,420,000 $37,733,020 Increase, "While our production of cotton manufact for the three years was well nigh stationary, that of Great Britain increased by thirty-eight millions of dollars ; an amount almost coust to the half of our entire annual product." * * "In the textile arts wo are yet mere beginners. We have undertaken to make only the plainer and heavier fabrics, while outside of these, there is a large and profitable field which we have yet not so much as ontered." These are facts so plain, point-

Facts and experience prove that if we are to compete successfully, with European capital and cheap labor, we must have a Protective Tariff .-terred at Richmond, Va., on Monday last, with That must be the great question of the day, and imposing ceremonies, was the fifth President of our people must prepare themselves to compel its the United States. He was of Scotch and Welsh enaciment. The editor of the North American who has per used the pamphlet, remarks in commenting upon it, that the growth of a great nation in the manufacture of the texile fabrics it requires, must be guarded as almost the greatest of its interests, and devoted himself to the study of the law, under in both success and adversity there is a cumulative tendency, both to misfortunes, and to such ascendency as drives even foreign rivalry out of its own home fields. Great Britain is now at this point of success, and the manufacturers there can compel us to remain tributary to them for a quarter of a century if our government and people have not sense enough to act for their own protection. As a proof of the great success of the British at the present time in cetton manufacture of the higher grades, Mr. Bigelow gives us the following comparisons :
