By a concerted plan Brown's cell door was left uniorked, and he had con clear road for escape: but his fellow conspirators were ot so fortunate. They were securely locked in, and the key which Brown had made to unlock their cells, he had ost. In the dark, and amid the excitement of his attempt, he could not find it, and was compelled to inform his companions of the fact. Some of them attempted to break out; but falled. flrown then made his escape alone. 'It was effected in this manner. Through a register in the floor of the corridor, he dropped into the sollar: from thence he named through the back cellar dors into the yard, and then by means of his rope ladder to which was attached a bent iron acting as a hook, he scaled the wall. The fact of hisescape was not known ome hours after; and no traces of him have yet bee rered. Brown is 32 years of age, perfectly black, 5 feet, 6 i thes in height, of slander figure ; with sharp none, thin ips, and front tooth decayed. He was convicted at the September ressions, 1809, on four indictments for larceny, and mantenced to ten years' imprisonment in the stern Penitentiary. Subrequently, scording to law, he was removed to the prison of this County. Ile had me year and a month yet to serve.

The fact of this escape suggests the importance trictly enforcing the prison rules in regard to person isiting copylets. The requirements of the law cannot he carried out if anybody and everybody are permitte o come in constant contact with convicts. Political innce and mock sympathy surround the criminal up he is almost convinced that he is a martyr. Our pri-
