from Baltimore last night, Conductor Showaere found an incorinted gentleman standing on the platform of one of the cars, and swaying to and fre after a dangerous fashion ; and the brakesman was performing the arduous tick of attempting to steady him. Capt. S. told the tipsy gentleman that he must go inside. Tipsy gentleman said "No," with emphasis, whereupon he was lifted promptly in by the conductor. After leaving the Relay, the man was found at his old post of danger on the platform, and was again lifted in and a guard placed over him. After the cars arrived the offended gentleman accorted the captain in the style peculiar to offended dignity when "a little in for) it.". "Are you's responsible man?" "Yes, Sir, for may acts," said the captain. "Are you a man of honor?" "Generally accounted so, I believe "Are you a man of pistols ?" "No, Sir," said the captain, "I don't play that game." "Well," replied the offended gentleman, "I shall challenge you in the morning; and if you don't fight I'll brand you as a liar and a coward ;" and then he signegged his way cityward, and is probably a little too sloepy this morning to remember his "affair of honor."-Ex.

PADDY's Boors .- A green sprig from the Emer ald isle entered a boot and shoe shop to purchase bimself a pair of brogans. After overhauling bis stock in trade, without being able to suit his castomer, the shopkesper binted that he would uake him a pair to order. An what'll yer ax to make a good pair of 'em ? was the query. The price was named; the Irishman demurred, but ster a "milo" down," the thing, was a trade. Paddy was about leaving when the other called after him seking : "But what size shall I make them, sir?"

"Och," cried Paddy, promptly, "niver mind about the size, at all-make them as large as ye convanevently can for the money."
