A HATTER IN SPARCH OF RUSSIA FUR. On one occasion a hatter named Walter Dibble, called to buy some furs of us. For certain reasons I was anxious to play a joke upon him. I sold him several kinds of fur, including "beaver" and "coney." He wanted some "Russia." I told him we had none, but Mrs. Wheeler, where I boarded, had several hundred pounds. "What on earth is a woman doing with Russia?" he said. I could not answer, but assured him that there were 130 pounds of old Rushia and 150 pounds of young Rushia in Mrs. Wheeler's bouse, and under her charge, but whether it was for sale I could not say. Off he started with a view to make the purchase. He knocked at the door. Mrs. Wheeler the elder, made her appearance. "I want to get your Bussia," said the hat-

Mrs. Wheeler asked him to walk in and be seated. She, ot course, supposed he had come after her daughter "Rushia." What do you want of Rushia ?" asked the old lady. "To make hats," was the reply. "To trim hats, I suppose you mean," responded Mrs. Wheeler.

"No for the outside of hats," replied the hatter. "Well, I don't know much about hats, but I will call my daughter," said the old lady. Passing into another room where "Rushia," the younger, was at work, she informed her that a man wanted her to make hats. "O, he means sister Mary, probably, I suppose he wants some ladies hats," replied Rushia, and she passed into the parlor. "I suppose you wish to see my sister Mary;

she is our milliner," said the younger Rush said the hatter. Sister Mary was sent for and soon made her appearance. As soon as she was introduced, the hatter informed her that he wished to buy "Russia." "Buy Rushis !" exclaimed Mary, in su prise. "I don't understand you." "Your name is Miss Wheeler, I believe;" said the batter, who was annoyed at the difficulty he met with in being understood. "It is, sir." "Ah very well. Is there old and young

Russia in the house. the familiar manner in which he spoke of her mother and sister, both of whom were present. "What is the price of old Russia per pound," asked the hatter. "I believe, sir, that old Rushia is not for sale," replied Mary indignantly. "Well, what do you ask for young Russia?" pursued the hatter. "Sir," said Miss-Rushia, the younger, spring ing to her feet, "do you come here to insult defenceless females? If you do we will soon call our brother, who is in the garden, and he will punish you as you deserve." "Ladies!" exclaimed the hatter, in aston ishment, "what on earth have I done to offend you? I came here to buy some Bussia. I was told you had old and young Russia in the house. Indeed, this young lady just stated such to be the fact, but she says the old Russia is not for sale. Now, if I can buy the young Russia I want to do so-but if that can't be done, please say so, and I will trouble you no further."

"Mother open the door, and let the gentleman pass out; he is undoubtedly crazy," said Miss Marv.

"By thunder! I believe I shall be if I'remain here long," exclaimed the hatter, considerably excited. "I wonder if folks never do business in these parts, that you think a man is crazy if he attempts such a thing?" "Business ! poor man," said Mary, soothingly, approaching the door. "I am not a poor man, Madam," replied the hatter. "My name is Walter Dibble; I carry on hatting extensively in Danbury; I came to Grassy Plains to buy fur, and have purchased some 'beaver' and 'coney,' and now it seems I am to be called 'crazy' and a 'poor man' because I want to buy a little 'Russia' to make up an assortment." The ladies began to open their eyes a little. They saw that Mr. Dibble was quite in earnest and his explanation threw considerable light on the subject.

"Who sent you here?" asked sister Mary "The clerk at the store opposite," was the

"He is a wicked young fellow for mak ing this trouble," said the old lady. "He has been doing this for a joke," she continued.
"A joke!" exclaimed Dibble, in surprise. "Have you not got any Russia then?" "My name is Jeroshia, and so is my daughter's," said Mrs. Wheeler, "and that I suppose is what he meant by telling you about old and young Bushis." Mr. Dibble bolted through the door withou a word of explanation, and made directly for our store. "You young scamp !" said he, as he entered, "what did you mean by sending me over there to buy Russia?" "I did not send you to buy Rushia. I supposed you were either a bachelor or a widow er, and wanted to marry Rushia," I replied with a serious countenance. "You lie, you dog, and you know it," he replied; "but never mind, I'll pay you off for that some day." And taking his fors he departed, less ill-humored than could have been expected under the circumstances. MRS. PARTINGTON PATRIOTIC. - "Hurral" said Ike, as he read the fact in the papers, "here's O'Regan ad mitted to the Union." "A furriuer, I should judge," remarked Mrs. Parington, looking very wisely at the steam that rose from the tea cups and formed in one cloud near the ceiling, "but I'm glad they ve let him come in to enjoy our political rights and lefts and other prerogatives. There's should be extended. I don't believe a man should be cut off because he wasn't born in this country for twenty one years, which of ducing no clinker less ashes and greater blaze, than any room enough, and the rear of our institutions this country for twenty one years, which of course wasn't any fault of his, for everybody would be horn here if they could have their own auction consulted. "It means," said Ike, "I we'll child," raplied the "a new State." "Well, child," replied she, "the odds is only the difference—States or men, 'tis all the same. REAL ESTATE SALES. FOR SALE.

In tract of land containing 9 acres, and situated in the upper Pt. Carbon road, about a half mile from Pottsville. The improvements are two frame dwelling honses, a small stable, and also is spring of never falling water. I will sell in one piece or in lots to suit purchasers, all is also well adapted to the raising of veretables, and has some fine young apple trees and grape vines thereon. For further particulars enquire of GEORGE LAUER, orchard Brewsyy.

His reasons for selling the above are, that he has purchased the Tombling flon Farm from the Schuyikill Navigation Company, and wishes to make it an extensive Farm, which will require his spars 'time, and also intends making a Summer resort thereon, which will be one of the finest outside of Philadelphia.

From Moore's Rural New Yorker THE OLD BARN. BY CLARA AUGUSTAL

Rickety, old and craiy,
Shingleless, lacking some doors;
Bad in the upper story.
Wanting boards in the floors;
Beams strung thick with cobwebs,
Ridar pole yellow and gray.
Hanging in helpless impotence
Over the mows of hay. How the winds tore around it—
Winds of a storny day—
Scattering the fragrant hay-seed,
Whisking the straws away;
Streaming in at the erannies,
Epreading the dark old granary
Into a flowery deli.

Oh, how I loved the shadows
That clung to the alient roof,
Day-dreams wore with the quiet
Many a glittering woof!
I climbed to the highest rafter,
Watched the swallows at play,
Admired the knots in the boarding,
And folled in billows of hay! And rolled in Dillows of may?

Palace of king couldn't match, it!

The Vatican loses its charm

We love the loved of our childheed

Better than marble-floored hall! I sat for hours in the summer on the threshold so gray.
And saw the cows to the pasture
Take their laxy paced say;
The lamba, snow white as the daisies,
Frolicked from hill to tarn—
Or fell asleep in the shadow
Made by the "clever" old barn. F EVERY DESCRIPTION, SUI-hay, coal, ore and merchandles generally. Purcha-sers run to risk; every scale is guaranteed correct, and it, after trial, not found satisfactory, can be returned
