THE BITTERS BIT.

Some time ago a story went the rounds touching a man who, having presented himself in his shirt sleeves at the American Museum, New York, received the loan of a coat, and after viewing the cariosities, sloped with the garment, obtaining a sight of the elephant and a swallow-tail for twenty-five cents. This reminds us of an affair that occurred in 1840, on board the Old Columbus, when she lay at the Charleston Navy Yard. One day a long, green Vermonter straggled on board the frigate, and examined everything on deck with curious syes, The officer of the watch, from his bearing and the neatness of his uniform, attracted the Yankee's notice. "Got a pretty good place here bey?" he inquired The officer assented. "What wages do you get?" "One hundred and twenty-five dollars a month."

"One hundred and twenty dollars! All to yourself! Shob !? "Fact, sir." "Wal, I wonder if I couldn't get something to do hero my elf?"

"Oh, yes, you'd make a pretty good midship-"Wal, what are midshipmen's wages, for a green hand?"

"Forty dollars a month only." "Only facty dollars! Jetusalein! Why, I was told to hire out for ten. But where can I be made a midehipmen on? Bay quick!" Down below sir, in the steerage. As soon a

I'm relieved I'll see to it." Down went the quizzer and the quizzee. bery of young midshipmen required no prompting to perpetrate a piece of mischief. A spurious warrant was soon made out and the greenhorn equipped in a splendid uniform, including an elegant chapeau and costly sword, by a joint countribution of the mess. Thus furnished, he was directed to present himself to Commodore S., in the cabin, and report ready for duty. He was told that the Commodore might be protty gruff-it was a way he had," but not to mind it. The steerage being full, the new midshipman was to demand quarters in the Commodore's cabin; in fact, he was ordered to take possession of a certain state-room. The Commodore's black looks and angry words were to be regarded as nothing-he had no right to use either. Thus "posted up," the victim presented bimself to the Commodore with—

"Old hoss, how are you?" S. started; he had come across a rara avis .-"Take a seat sir." was the reply of the Vermonter, as he flung himself into one seat and crossed his legs upon one ac-

"You are one of the new midshipmen, Lanppose?" remarked Commodore, who, from the first suspected something. "I sin't nothin' else." "Shall I trouble you for your warrant?" "Catch hold, old boy."

The Commodore looked at the document, then at his visitor. "Who gave you this?" "The fellows down stairs-and I'm now ready for duty." "That's enough. Now you can go." "Not as you know on squire. The cellar's chockfull-and I ain't a goin' out of this 'ere in a hurry, I tell you. O you needn't sare up old fellow. I see what's the matter you re a lettle cracked up here!" And the brilliant youth touched his forehead with his forefinger.

"I am going into this ere chamber to take a right good snoose-boots and all, by gravy !" As he was proceeding to execute this menace the Commodore took him by the arm and led him to the gangway. Pointing to the sentinel, he remarked, mildly : "You see that man with a musket, now if you don't clear out directly, and leavethe ship yard and never to show your face again, I'll order him to shoot you !"

The Yanker broke-and in two seconds his blue coat-tail was seen floating in the rear, as he dushed out of the yard with the speed of a flying jack-

In a minute alterwords, half a dozen terrified midshipmen rashed on deck and asked for liberty to go ashore. "Young gentlemen," said the Commodore, "I grant no liberty to-day." Six faces fell a "feet," and rix young jokers returned to their mess room as melancholy as mutes at an alderman's funeral. They never saw or heard anything of the Yankee afterward-nor the uniform either.

"Dick (hic) does er-rain (hic) !" "In course it rains," said Dick." The answer was apparently satisfactory, and they proceeded several rods further, when the question was again propounded by the anxious searcher after truth under difficultios.

"Dick, I say D (hic) tell me doer-er-rain?" "Johnny," said Dick solemnly, "I'm afraid yer drunk; in course it's raining."

In a few minutes Johnny was again troubled with doubts, and sought to solve them. "Dick, seems-or me (hic) ser-goin (hic) er-rai

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

A COMPOUND Remedy, in which we have isbored to produce the most effectual attentive that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Barrasprills, so combined with ether substances of still greater alterative power as to affect an effective antidote for the disease damparill is irreputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who saffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our affilieted fellow citisens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints: Straptions and Europites Disease, Utors, Piesples, Richele, Tumors, Sall Rheun, Scall Head, Sphills and Saphilita Affections, Mercurial Disease, Drapsy, Neurolpa or The boundoureds, Debitilly, Duprepia and Indigestion, Everypleta, Rose or St. Antiony's Fire, and Indeed the whole class of complaints arising from Imparity of the Blood.

This compound will be found a great proventer of which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and chest. Still we call this compound Sarsape rills, and intend to supply such a remedy askhall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which resis upon it. And we think we have ground for believing it has ristues which are irresistable by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete cradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the battle.

This ivied porch this trellis'd vine,
The lattice with its narrow pane,
A rell: of the olden time:
The willow with its willow leaves,
Through which the low winds murmuring glier,
The gray gray of the stream,
That whispers softly at its side.

With clustering trees and creeping plants, That cling around the rustle door: The rough hewn steps, that lent their aid, To reach the shady cool speess, Where humble duty spreads a scene
That hourly comfort learns to bless

The spring-house in its shady nock, Like lady's bower is shadowed o'er

Upland and meadow, lie around
Fair smiling in the sun's last beam;
Beneath yon solitary tree
The lasy cattle loly dream;
Afar the respects stroke deasends,
While faintly on the listening ear
The teamster's careless whistle floats,
Or distant song or call I hear.

And leaning on a broken stills.
With woods behind and fields before,
I watch the tee who homes and wends.
With laden wings—his labors o'er;
The happy birds are warding around
Or nesting in the rustling trees.
Mid which the blue sky glimmers down,
When parted by the passing breess.

And slowly winding up the road.

The twain has reached the old barn floor Where plenty's land has firmly heaped. The golden grain in richest store.

This 'mid the dream land of my thought, With smiling lips I own it real, Yet fance's further visions blend with all I see and all I feel. Then tell me not of worldly pride
And wild ambition's hopes of tame,
Or brilliant halls of wealth and pride.
Where genius sighs to win a name;
Give me this farm house quaint and old,
These helds of grain, the birds and flowers,
With calm contentment, peace, and health,
And memories of my earlier hours.

FARE PASTURES .- It has uiten seemed to the writer that the pasture fields of our farms are somewhat neglected. Of course, the very hilly, swampy, and other rough lands, carnot be cultivated and improved as well as the amouther fields, but wherever they can be brought under the play for a season or two, they ought to have the benefit of it. In this way, briers, foul weeds, and coarse grasses, will be subdued, sour places sweet. ened, and the whole land be invigorated. We can recall many farms where; the pastures have been pastures for a whole generation; many of them are unnecessarily large, and parts of them might be tilled and cropped to good advantage. If they were enriched and cleaned by good tillage, they would maintain twice the number of cattle, of or root crops. Some pastures are wasted by allowing cattle te roam indiscriminately over the whole surface .-WE respectfully announce to farm. The consequence of this management is, that they era and dealers in fertilizers, that we are now stroll restlessly from one side of the land to the red to supply all orders for the above valuable and other, cropping a little here and there, and tread. ing down and soiling what they do not eat. If the pastures were divided into several distinct lots, and the stock confined in one portion until the grass was eaten off close, it would be all the better both for the pasture and the stock. If some a reserve for dry weather, and the drier soils be pastured enriest. Late in the Fall, perhaps, its bars may be let down, and a free range be a llower from one and to the other. It is a mooted point among agriculturist, whether shade-trees should be allowed in pastures .-Some driving farmers cut them all down at or fell swoop, declaring that cattle bave no busine o wast their precious time in lying down at no. in Summer: they ought to be up and stuffy themselves and taking on fat ! We question the expediency of this inhuman treatment. But ere if it were true that cattle fatten a little quickeria recless pastures, we would by no means advise to strip the land of its lenfy honors. Large, wellshaped, vigorous elms and maples scattered here and there over a farm add very much to its bearty and its worth. OUR CREED .- We believe in small farms and horough cultivation. We believe that soil loves to eat, as well as it owner, and ought, therefore, to be manured. We believe in large crops which leave the land better than they found it-making both the frim.
