married..." That's it, Bill, that's it," said we not giving him time to finish the sentence. "That he is a married man and the father of children," said Bill. "That's the game, boys; now let us play It devolved upon me to commence operations. Accordingly, I entered the car in which we were informed the lovers were. The girl, thinking, I suppose, that she must give her lover all the seat, had taken a seat on his kuee; and he for the purpose of protecting her of course had thrown his arm her, of course, had thrown his arm around her waist; and so they sat, in real soft lover's style.

All this I gathered at a glance. Stepping up to them, I said:

"Why, Jones, what the deuce are you doing of all colors. He has also on hand's generally that he has lessed, the II specially carried on by John L. Mensed, the hard seed the II special year. He has also on hand's generally that he has lessed, the II special year. He has also on hand's generally that he has lessed, the II special year. He has also on hand's generally that he has lessed, the II special year. P to them, 1 said:
"Why, Jones, what the deuce are you doing with this girl?" The girl arose hastily and seated herself on the seat. "See here, stranger," said the fellow. "you're a mite mistaken; my name ain't Jones." "Why, Jones," said I, "you certainly haven't lest your wife and children and tried to palm yourself off for a single man, have you?" "I'tell you my name ain't Jones; its Harper. It never was Jones; 'taint a going to he, nuther."

I merely shook my head, and passed on to another seat to see the rest of the fun. The girl looked 'wild' after I set down; but Jones, alias Harper, soon convinced her that I was mistaken.

About the time they got to feeling right well again, in came Elliot Gregg. Walking up to Harper, he accosted him with: your wife and babies ?" "Now see here, stranger, you ain't the fust man that's called me Jones to day, an' I reckon I must look awfully like him; but I ain't Jones, an' more'n that you musn't call me Jones. I haint got a wife, nor babies either; but this ere gal an' me is a goin to splice, au' then you can talk about my wife, and I wouldn't wonder but what, in the course of time, you might talk about the bubies too; but you musn't call me Jones."

This retort brought forth vociferous laughter from the speciators, and it also brought blushes to the face of "the gal that was goin'. to be spliced."
"Ab, Jones," said Gregg, "you will regret this in the future. I pity your wife and child-ren, and this poor girl."

So, Mr. Harper, your real name is Jones. is it, and you've been foolin' me, have you? Well, we ain't spliced yet, and I don't think we will be soon," said the girl, and her eyes fairly flashed fire.
"Jane, Jane," said Harper "don't you know that I'm Bill Harper. Thar ain't a darn drop of Jones blood in me, and I'll prove it."

At this moment, Jeff Jackson, Bill Steevers and Jim Byers entered, and of course their attention was called to Harper by his loud talking. They stepped up to him, and said:
"Why, Jones! What is all this fuss about?"

This was more than Harper could stand.— He leaped upon a seat.
"Now," said he, "iny name is not Jones, and I can lick the teller that says it is." By this time we had got to H——, and our friend Fred came into the cur and made Harper keep quiet. The girl that wouldn't be "spliced" requested Fred to help her on the train that was going back to N—, which he did, and the notorious Jones, alias Harper, tollowed her.

We learned afterward that he proved himself to be Bill Harper instead of Bill Jones, and he and his gal Jane "got spliced."

How MUCH MANURE TO THE COW.-Mr. Quincy, of Massachusetts, who is an earnest advocate of the soiling system, stated at a meeting of the N. Y. State Agricultural 80ciety, that a cow's manure was of equal ralue with her milk. He showed from his own experiments, which have been conducted over a long series of years, that a cow voids about ... 31 cords of solid faces and as much more in value of liquid, making seven cords. This he composts with twice its bulk of muck. making twenty-one cords. This would be worth from fifty, to one hundred and fifty dollars, according to the price of manure in the different markets. He keep muck in the trenches behind the cows, and when satura. ted, it is thrown into a barn cellar. But without endorsing Mr. Quincy's value ation by one-half, there is no doubt that in our older, and indeed in many new regious of our country, the manure from a single cow, the liquid as well as the solid, will if properly preserved be worth many dollars-often quite as much as the milk products will sell for .-There is now before us about six months at foddering, and if cattle are statiled, a very large amount of manure may be made. Ro. 13 North SECOND St. PHILADELPHIA.

ELLEY & BROWN invite the attention of Guin Purchasers to a full assortment of FALL and WINTER Dry Goods, comprising in nure may be made from every cow, ox, or horse, kept in the stable between December and June. This will not only pay for the labor of getting muck, but for a considerable part of the hay and grain consumed. If this experiment were tried, it would begin a new era with many farmers. They want manure, more manure, most manure. It is a superlative want of all poor farms, and this manure we can make ourselves .- American Agriculturist. THE BEST KIND OF HAY .- There is probably as much difference in the nutritive properties of the grasses, as there is in grains or fruits. Analysis shows this, and the instinct of cattle indicates quite as much. Analysis may not always agree with instinct. but in the main, the animal tasto verifies the decisions of the laboratory. Thus, herd's grass stands among the best varieties of grass according to the chemists, and cattle shove .

decided preference for it, when it is pain competition with other kinds. 1 Some farmers seed all their land, both mendow and pasture, with herd's grass. They say that all cattle are not only more fond of it, but they fatten more rapidly than upon any other grass. In confirmation of this, the writer noticed this Fall, in turning in heifers to eat up the after feed upon a meadow seeded with several grasses, that the herd's grass patches were the favorite feeding ground .-Some of the second growth of this grass had gone to seed, and though past its prime, it was grazed more closely than any other part of the field. As the entile have the grass and hay to eat, it is but fair that their appetites should be suited with the best .- American Agriculturist. . i.
