Wit and Humor.

THE cool weather and the Equinoctial storm cleared the mosquito season, but the following was a readable parody two weeks ago:—

At midnight, in his cooling chair,
Adolphe was dreaming of the hour
When he should sit at Laure's feet,
And hear her hand and dower;
In dreams, in ever-fond hails, he wove
To live in single bliss no more;
In dreams the "oath of office" heard;
Then on her finger placed the ring.
These gems of her gold—rich setting;
As wild his thoughts, and gay of wing
As Shanghae's famous bird.

As hour passed on—Adolphe awoke;
That bright dream did not last!
He woke—to hear mosquitoes shriek.
"He wakes! come on! boys—wake! buzz-wake!"
He woke—to fight midst pain and blood,
To a screaching, sanguinary hood
Of musketoes, coming thick and fast
Of musketoes, coming thick and fast
Of musketoes in the month of June!
And heard, with voice as tinkling spoon,
Buzz-saw cheer his crew!
Strike—till his gore his pallet stains,
Strike—till he sinks beneath his pains;
Strike—for the blood that fills his veins,
And for your pleasure too!"

He fought, the brave one, long and well,
He piled his foes with mosquito slain;
He conquered—and Buzz'drus fell,
Bleeding at every vein.
His foe surviving, can make saw
Him fall, then hastened to withdraw,
Lest they might "pass the bourne,"
Adolphe gazed on his fallen foes,
Then closed his eyes to night's repose,
And took a dream's return.

HONEY-MOON CONVERSATION.—A correspondent of the Delawarian, writing from a watering-place, gives the following report of a conversation between a newly married couple from Virginia. There is a depth of affection in it which is refreshing to contemplate:

"William—dear William," said the wife, with a world of affection in her eyes.

"Speak, heavenly charmer," replied the new husband, returning with interest the expressive glances of his spouse.

"Dear William!"

"Dear Eliza."

"Sweet flatterer!"

"Angelic creature."

"Dear, dear William, pardon me—but do you think a short walk would hurt us, as the divine Willis says."

"I fear, loveliest of thy sex, that you may be fatigued."

"Fear not, dearest!"

"Heavenly emanation—bright dream of my precarious existence—but I cannot help fearing."

"Sweet William!"

"Celestial Eliza!"

Here they fell to violent kissing, which lasted about fifteen minutes. Almost breathless, the lady exclaimed:

"William, dear William, why are you so sweet? Oh, the joy, the ecstacy of wedded bliss! Best beloved, will you ever love me thus?"

"By yonder fearful—I say tremendous—orb I swear;" he exclaimed, pointing to the setting sun.

"And as a memento of our wedding-day, will you yearly bring me here—will you, you cherished idol?"

"Yes, my only pet—my life—my love I will bring you here every year—if my capital holds out!"

"Oh, bravest and best of thy noble sex, talk not of capital, in this, our hour of bliss."

How much longer they talked the writer cannot say, for he was called away at that moment to welcome some friends from Maryland. But he is firmly of the opinion that none but married folks know what real happiness is. While the above happy couple were talking, he felt as if immersed in molasses, and everything since has looked, felt, and smelt sweet.

THE MAN WHO WONT PAY THE PRINTER.—May he be shot with lightning and compelled to wander over gunpowder.

May he have sore eyes, and a chestnut burr for an eye-stone.

May every day of his life be more despotic than the Dey of Algiers.

May he never be permitted to kiss a pretty woman.

May he be bored to death by boarding school misses practicing their first lessons in music, without the privilege of seeing his tormentors.

May 2.40 night mares trot quarter races over him every night.

May his boots leak, his gun hang fire, and his fishing lines break.

May his coffee be sweetened with flies, and his soup seasoned with spiders.

May his friend run off with his wife, and his children take the whooping cough.

May his cattle die of murrain, and the pigs destroy his garden.

May a troop of printer's devils, lean, lank and hungry, dog his heels each day, and a regiment of cats cattewall under his window each night.

May the famine stricken ghost of an editor's body haunt his slumbers, and hiss "Murderer" in his dreaming eye.

May his cows give sour milk, and his churn rancid butter.

In short, may his business go to ruin, and he go to—the Legislature.

AN AMUSING LAW CASE.—Some years ago in Newcastle county, Delaware, an Irishman was knocked down and robbed. He accused a man of having committed the robbery, and in due time the case came to trial. The Irishman being upon the stand, was cross examined after having sworn positively to the guilt of the prisoner, by one of the keenest lawyers, and something like the following was the result:

"You say that the prisoner at the bar is the man who assaulted and robbed you?"

"Yes."

"Was it by moonlight that the occurrence took place?"

"Divil a bit iv it."

"Was it starlight?"

"Not a whit, it was as dark that you could not have seen your hand before you."

"Was there any light shining from any house near by?"

"Divil a bit iv a house was there anywhere about."

Well then, if there was no moon, stars, nor light from any house, and so dark that you couldn't see your hand before you, how are you able to swear that the prisoner was the man? How could you see him?"

"Why, yer honor, when the spalpeen struck me, the fire flew out iv me eyes so bright you might have seen to pick up a pin, you could."

The court, jury, counsel, and spectators exploded with shouts at this quaint idea, and the prisoner was directly after declared not guilty.

A REAL RELISHER OF A JOKE.—A man lately received twenty lashes well laid on at the whipping post in an English town. The culprit, instead of bellowing when the constable applied the lash, laughed immoderately, which made the angry officer lay on with harder force. On giving him his twentieth blow the angry officer could stand it no longer.

"Well, look here, mister," said the offended officer, "I've done my duty, and I can lick ye no more, but I'd just like to know what it is that's so funny?"

"Funny!" roared the other, "why, its excellent. You've got the wrong Smith! I ain't the man that was to be whipped? It's the other one? Now you'll have to go it all over again! Really, it's too good! You must lick the other man, ha! ha!"

DIDN'T GET MUCH.—"Pray, my good man," said a Judge to an Irishman, who was witness on a trial, "what did pass between you and the prisoner?"

"Och! then, plase your lordship," says Pat, "sure, I sees Phelim a top of the wall. Paddy," says he. "What?" says I. "Here?" says he. "Where?" says I. "What!" says he. "Hush!" says I; and that's all your lordship."

Sixth.—It is so arranged that by pulling any part of the drawer will cause the bell to ring, unless it is properly unlocked.

Seventh.—The Lock is in the back part of the Drawer, leaving the front part free and clear for use.

Eighth.—It has the Sliding half globe Cups for change.

Ninth.—It is so nicely constructed that the patentee himself cannot open the drawer after it has been set by another person, without being liable to give the alarm.

Fancy Furs!

Having removed to my NEW STORE, 718 Arch street, and being now engaged entirely in the manufacture and sale of Fancy Furs, which, in accordance with the "One Price Principle," I have marked at the lowest possible price consistent with a reasonable profit. I would solicit a visit from those in want of Furs, for either Ladies' or Children's Wear, and an inspection of my selection of those goods, satisfied, as I am, of my ability to please in every desired essential.

☞ Persons at a distance, who may find it inconvenient to call personally, need only name the article they wish, together with the price and instructions for sending, and forward the order to my address—money accompanying—to insure a satisfactory compliance with their wishes. [August 25, '60 34-3m

TO THE PUBLIC.

A HOUSEHOLD TREASURE!

A Perfect Light!—No More Accidents!

DIAMOND OIL!

A Substitute for Fluid, and Non-Explosive.

THERE has long been a desire for a substitute for Fluid, which latter has occasioned deaths and accidents. Every daily paper contains some accounts of the deadly effects of Burning Fluid. The DIAMOND OIL is a Non-explosive Burning Fluid, burns freely, and affords a deeper, stronger, and brighter flame than Fluid. Should a lamp, while ignited, be overturned, it will not explode. It can be carried about the house, with safety, and with a certainty of motion, fatal to other lights. It will burn in all Fluid and Gas Generating Lamps. No one need fear this Oil. It can be used in glass or metal lamps. It does not char the wick like Fluid, and it may be remembered by the consumer, that the wick of the lamp should be raised to a height, above that used in Fluid Lamps, where It possesses all the properties desired by the Public, and is entirely free from the fatal effects of Fluid.

The Diamond Oil Company offer an Oil, superior to any now used, which they can endorse as producing a brilliant and safe Light, at a price within the means of every person.
