Wit and Humor.

EDITORS.

I am not disposed to pity Editors. On the whole, I think they have a very good time.—That national sugar-plum for American boys, "May-be," my son, you may one day be President," might be changed advantageously for My son. you may live some day to be an Editor. As for the present President, if he can sleep o' nights, he can live through anything! I repeat it, Editors have a good time, no matter what they say to the contrary. In the first place, I know that the position of an Editor, if honorably filled, is second to none in this country. He need envy no one his influential power; would that in many cases it were more conscientiously wielded. If an Editor is an ignorant man, it is his own fault, no matter from what small beginnings he may have risen. Coming in contact as he does, with information every instant, on all the absorbing topics of the day, it is next to impossible he should not be well informed. Read he must, whether he will or not. Think on what he has read he must; tell his subscribers, in words, what he thinks about it, and reflect and decide upon the submitted thoughts of others for his columns, he must. Hence the mind of an editor is, or may be, a perfect Encyclopedia of information. Of course, he has his peculiar bothers, it would be a blessing if his subscription list were large enough for him to say just what he pleases right and left, without fear or favor. It would be a blessing, if his subscribers would always pay punctually, without dunning. It would be a blessing when he uses superhuman efforts to please them, if they never would find fault or grumble, for the sake of grumbling. It would be a blessing if they wouldn't stay so long when they come to see him "just a minute," and he is in a frenzied hurry to say do go, and can't. It would be a blessing (to those who apply) if he could publish and pay for, at the valuation of the writers, all the immortal trash that is offered. It would be a blessing if other editors, "who can see nothing in his paper," wouldn't steal his articles constantly—editorial and contributed—without credit. But, on the contrary, how came that beautiful boquet on his desk? Where that fine engraving on his office wall? How came that beautiful picture and convenient inkstand there? I'd have you to know that the donors have not always an ax they wish to grind at that office. I dare say you will try to make me believe that Editors are human. Now I deny that, for I myself have, in past days, had evidence to the contrary. But never mind that now. You may tell me that Editors are not above the weakness of publicly and slily slipping in a good word for a good friend, when he needs it, and they are not above giving a bad "friend" a good satisfying dig when he needs it, and so would you. If a man is to be overhauled for that, there's got to be a monstrous overturning of matters in other places beside Editor's offices. I confess I sometimes covet the quantities of books he accumulates free gratis for his library, and I should like to be allowed to review some of 'em after a fashion of my own, if nobody knew who did it; and I should like occasionally to dust their horrible desks for the poor creatures, and open those hermetically sealed windows, and advise them not to make themselves prematurely bald by wearing their hats in their offices, week in and week out, as if it were necessary their ideas should be kept warm like chickens in order to hatch.

Only that I am convinced that everybody must work in their own way, and that if Editors had to work in a clean place, they couldn't work at all. Now if they opened their office windows of a hot day, they might possibly be cooler, and a cool Editor, in times like these, when all the fire and fury we could muster would not begin to express our national emotions, you see for yourself, the thing wouldn't be tolerated. Beside' some of them ought to be getting used to a hot place, and they might as well begin now. FANNY FERN.

GEN. NELSON MADE TO MARK TIME.

A correspondent of the Ironton, Ohio, Register relates the following as having occurred at Camp Joe. Holt:

The camp guards after night are instructed to allow none to pass in or out without giving a countersign, and to retain as prisoners those who come from the outside to the line without it. Gen. Nelson came to one of the guards one evening, just after the countersign had been given out, and held something like the following conversation:

Guard—Halt! Who comes there?

General—I am Gen. Nelson, commanding this army.

Guard—I don't care a d—n; mark time, march. Corporal of the guard, No. 1, (cocking his piece.)

Gen.—(commencing to mark time slowly.) —You d—n fool, I'll have you punished like hell.

Guard—I don't care a d—n; if McClellan was here without the countersign, he should mark time till the corporal comes. Quick time, march.

Gen.—(Swearing and sweating.)—Let me rest.

Guard—No sir-ee: mark time!

By this time the news had spread like wild fire through the camp that one of the guards had Gen. Nelson out at post No. 1, marking time, and half of the regiment was collected on that side enjoying the joke hugely. The corporal was very slow in coming, and every time Nelson would slacken speed, the guard would cock his gun and command—mark time.

By the time of the arrival of the corporal, the General's rage had so far subsided that he too began to see the humerous side of the joke.

A TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—At Ann Arbor, bein seized with a sudden faintness, I called for a little sunthin to drink. As I was stirrin the beverage up, a pale-faced man in gold spectacles, laid his hand on my shoulder and sed—

"Look not upon the wine when it is red!"

"Sez I, this ain't wine. This is old rye!"

"It stingeth like an adder, and biteth like a serpent!" sed the man.

"I guess not," sed I "when you put sugar into it. That's the way I allurs takes mine."

"Have you sons grown up, sir?" the man axed.

"Well," I replied, as I put myself outside my beverage, "my son Artemus junior is going on 18."

"Ain't you afraid it you set this example b4 him, he'l cum to a bad end?"

"He's cum to a waxed end already. He's learnin the shoemakin biziness," I replide.—"I guess we can both on us git along without your assistance, sir," I observed, as he was about to open his mouth agin.

"This is a cold world," said the man.

"That's so. But you'll get into a warmer one by and by, if you don't mind your own business better."

I was a little riled at the feller, because I never take anything only when I'm onwell. I arterwards larned he was a temperance lecturer, and if he can injuce men to stop settin their innards on fire with the frightful licker, which is retailed around the country, I shall heartily rejoice. Better give 'em Prussick Assid at once, than to pizen 'em to deth by degrees.—Artemus Ward.

SOULOUQUE AND THE ICE.—[From a Letter.]—"A good story is told of Soulouque, which illustrates that monarch's wonderful shrewdness and extended information. A captain made him a present of a chunk of ice, which was carried to the palace wrapped in a blanket. He was greatly pleased with it, and placed it in a room, which a soldier was ordered to guard. A few days after it was put there, the Emperor remembered it, and went to show it to some of his friends. There lay the blanket: but ice there was none. The only evidence of its existence was a very wet floor.

'Where is that ice?' he said—(as the white folks report it.)

The soldier was ignorant—he 'pas connecy-ed.'

'Where is that ice?' asked the furious monarch.

'Don't know,' said the soldier.

'Don't know?' roared Faustin in a rage.—'Don't know? You've stole it! Don't know! Guards, take that man and flog him till he gets that ice!'

The poor fellow was flogged, it is said, but the heat did not render back the ice."

THE MILITARY SPIRIT.—As a little four year old boy was being put to bed, his mother said to him:

"Kiss mamma good night, Johnny."

He at first refused, and then inquired:

"Do Lieutenants kiss their mammas?"

"Why do you ask that, my dear?" inquired the astonished maternal parent.

"'Cause I'm Lieutenant of our company, and Joe Walsh is captain?"

Being assured that it was not beneath his official dignity to "kiss mamma good night," he thus saluted her, and was put to bed.

"I wish you would not give me such short weight for my money," said a customer to a grocer who had an outstanding bill against him. "And I wish you wouldn't give me such long wait for mine," replied the grocer.

"They Go Right to the Spot."

The critics and the public are right in predicting that this will surpass, in graphic narrative, exciting interest, and extensive popularity, all other histories of the War for the Union. It will contain, in addition to its stirring details, the philosophical Analysis of the Causes of the War, by JOHN LOTHROP MOTLEY, LL.D., Author of "The Rise of the Dutch Republic," etc., the dates of all the important events from the John Brown raid, and an accurate and revised account of the principal battles, with engravings.

TO COAL OPERATORS.

Great Improvement in Coal Screens.

THE UNDERSIGNED are now prepared to manufacture, at their shop, in Minersville, all kinds of SCREENS for screening Coal, of the improved manufacture patented to Jonas Lauberstein, 4th February, 1862.

Screens manufactured by this process, are more durable, maintain their form better, and are furnished as cheap as any to be had in the County.

They are made of square iron, in such shape as to prevent the Coal sliding from one side to the other before it is thoroughly smoothed, thus preparing it better than can be done by fast iron or wire screens.

The manufacturers urgently request all Operators wanting Screens, to examine these new patent Screens at their shop, or at work at the Mammoth Vein Colliery of George S. Keppler, near St. Clair, where they have been in use for some time.

By purchasing Screens made under this Patent, litigation, or any trouble as to patent rights, will be avoided.

All work done with promptness and despatch.
