THE BLUE COAT. [The following ballad is from the pen of Bishop Burgess, of Maine, and was contributed by him to the book published and sold at the late Sanitary Fair in Baltimore, under the sanction of the State Fair Association of the Women of Mary-

You asked me, little one, why I bowed,
Though never I passed the man before?
Because my heart was full and proud,
Whou I saw the old blue coat he wore;
The blue great-coat, the sky blue coat,
The old blue coat the soldier wore. I knew not, what we apon he chose;
What chief he followed, what badge he word
Enough that in the front of foes His country's blue great-coat he wore; The blue great-coat, etc.

THE BLUE COAT OF THE SOLDIER.

Perhaps he was born in a forest hut,
Perhaps he had danced on a palace floor;
To want or wealth my eyes were shut;
I only marked the coat he wore;
The blue great-coat, etc. He might have no skill to read or write, Or he might be rich in learned lore;
But I knew he could make his mark in fight,
And nobler gown no scholar wore
Than the blue great-coat, etc.

It may be he could plunder and prowl,
And perhaps in his mood he scoffed and awo
But I would not guess a spot so foul
On the honored coat he bravely wore; The blue great-coat, etc. He had worn it long, and horne it far;
And perhaps on the red Virginian shore,
From midnight chill till the morning-star
That worn great-coat the sentry wore;
The blue great-coat, etc.

When hardy Butler reined his steed
Through the streets of proud, proud Baltim
Perhaps behind him, at his need,
Marched he who yonder blue coat wore.
The blue-great coat, etc. Perhaps it was seen in Burnside's ranks, When Rappahannock ran dark with gore; Perhaps on the mountain-side with Banks

Perhaps in the swamps 'twas a bed for his form, From the seven days' battling and marching sore;
Ir with Kearney or Pope, imid the steely storm
As the night closed in, that coat he were;
The blue great-coat, etc. Or when right over as Jackson dashed That collar or cape some bullet tore; Or when far ahead Antietam flashed, He flung to the ground the coat that he wore The blue great-coat, etc.

Or stood at Gettysburg, where the grave s
Rang deep to Howard's cannon roar;
Or saw with Grant the unchained waves
Where conquering hosts the blue coat wore
The blue great-coat, etc. That garb of honor tells enough, Though I its acry guess no more;
The heart it covers is made of such stuff,
That coat is mail which that soldier wore;
The blue great-coat, etc. He may hang it up when the peace shall come. And the moths may find it behind the door; But his children will point when they hear a dr

To the proud old coat their father wore, And so my child, will you and I,
For whose fair home their blood they pour,
Still bow the head as one goes by
Who wears the cost that soldier wore;
The blue restricted in the soldier wore; The blue great-coat, the sky-blue coat, The old blue coat the soldier wore.

THE GUN-BOAT GENERAL Important Error Corrected. To the Editors of the N. Y. Ecening Post:

It is commonly said that Admiral Farragut is the first commander on record who, during a battle, stationed himself in the masthead.— This is a popular error, and it is simple justice to state that it is claimed for Gen. McClellan that, during the battle of Malvern Hill, he occupied a similar position on one of timony before Committee on the Conduct of the War.]

MORE TESTIMONY. The following statement appeared in the last Pittsburg Gazette: STATEMENT OF ANDREW N. KENNEDY, OF CO. A.

I was detailed to the Signal Corps of the Army of the Potomac in December, 1861, and continued in that branch of the service until August 20, 1864. During the seven days' fighting on the Peninsula, in front of Richmond, in June, 1862, I was attached to the Signal party at the army headquarters. Our party was stationed near the line of battle on Malvern Hill during the battle, and in communication with the gunbouts on the James River. It is within my own personal knowledge that official reports and communications strike a blow for it.

"3. A Copperhead is a Northern man who, to further, secession doctrines, would stab a Union soldier in the back while he was fighting the anemies of the Union."

Strike a blow for it.

McClellan, was then on board a gunboat on the James River. several miles distant from the scene of action. was on duty on the station on Malvern Hill, from an early hour in the morning until noon, and during this entire period, messages were being sent to, and received from Gen. Mc-Clellan, who was on board the gnuboat during the carriest fighting of the day.

I was not on duty on the station during the afternoon; but I have heard from my com-rades who were on duty, that the General's headquarters remained on board the fleet unfil the battle was over. The first time I saw

I yield to no citizen or soldier in my solicitude for the honorable termination of the war. The war was deliberately begun by the Rebels, and is persistently waged by them to divide and conquer the, Union. It is not so strange that our enemies should find allies among European antagonists of free institutions, but it will never cease to be a matter of humiliation and wonder that our own pecple could be seriously divided upon the quesple could be seriously divided upon the ques-tion of submission or resistance. Until the Constitution and Laws are vindi

Until the Constitution and Laws are vindicated in their supremacy throughout the land, the Government should be confided to no hands that will hesitate to employ all the power of the nation to put down Rebellion. The resources of the insurgents are already so far exhausted that they will give up the struggle as soon as a majority of the people at the ballot-box, seconding the martial summons of Farragut and Grant, demand the unconditional surrender of the enemy.

Peace, so won, through the noble aspirations of the people, will exalt the national character, and challenge the homage of all who honor patriotism and valor. Peace, imposed upon us by an audacious and arrogant foe, who would owe his triumph not to the superiority of his arms, but to a degenerate population, unworthy of their lineage and forgetful of their traditions, could only last until the contempt of mankind, evoked from our shame enough manhood to renew the struggle.

Very respectfully,

Daniel B. Signes,

I shall have to vote for Lincoln, not on account of himself, his party, or for account's sake, but heaviers extended. or for economy's sake; but because of the Chicago platform, and the real necessity of showing the rebels that we mean business.—
That peace is only to be obtained on terms of submission. The re-election of Lincoln will be dreadful to them."

War Democrats of New York.
