

The result of the Presidential election noticed in our last, requires no important amendment at our hands this week. Lincoln gets twenty-two, and McClellan three States. In New York Lincoln has about 8,000, and Fenton for Governor, over Seymour, 9,000 majority. Illinois gives Lincoln, 29,555 majority. We have gained five Congressmen,-The Legislature shows a Union majority of eighteen on joint ballot, which insures a loyal man for United States Senator in place of William A. Richardson. Mr. Lincom is elected by a popular majority of between three and four hundred thousand, by a majority so decided that the minority acquiesces in the decision with, we are happy to say, apparent cheerfulness. The prominent idea among the mass of the people now is, to hasten the end of the Rebellion.—An I we believe that they will unite more contially than ever, in support of the efforts of the Administration to bring this war to a speedy and honorable conclusion. The American Conflict.—The first volume of this valuable contribution to our political history, has been published, and is now being delivered to subscribers. The purpose of this work is stated by its author, Horace Greeler, to be a history of the present Rebellion; its causes, incidents and results; to exhibit especially its moral and political phases, with the drift and progress of American opinion respecting Human Slavery from 1776 to the close of the War for the Union. No man is better qualified for the work in hand than Mr. Greeler. His perfect knowledge of the history of the country is known to all, and making that subject his whole study, he is able to place before the public the only history of this war which the consideration which is due to it. In this history we not only have a work which is of inestinable value to those who will not know of the trials and struggles through which the Nation is just passing except from the page of history, but the student of to-day can these pages find food for years of study, and the aspirant for honors at the hands of his these pages find food for years of study, and the aspirant for honors at the hands of his countrymen has supplied to him just the encyclopedia of political information necessary to a proper understanding of the times in which we live. A reviewer in the Atlantic Monthly thinks that the present work is eminently the record of the author's personal experience. It presents in vivid outlines and with striking illustrations the action of political causes with which he has been as familiar as with the alphabet or his mother tongue. The principles of the great Rebellion are traced back to the little germs which have since expanded into a tree of such mighty proportions and of such baneful character. Few men, we may perhaps, safely say, no man among us, could bring to the composition of a work with this intent such a rich fund of observation, such intimate knowledge of the practical working of parties, such true insight into the aims and motives of the conspicuous American statesmen, such accurate judgement in regard to the leading measures of governmental, policy izens, including many of the most eminent combined with such prevailing fairness of mind and such a high degree of literary skill and mastership. Regarded as a contribution to the historical treasures of which American literature can boast such rare wealth, Mr. Greeley's work may challenge, if not perhaps unqualified, sincere and respectful commendation. His style is eminently his own. Familiar with the best models, he follows none. Although aiming at vigor and popular edglegance, it shows a remarkable sense of Mational condition and prosperity, especially combined with such prevailing fairness of order and Peace, and asking, and polithese reflect, rather than at graceful and polished edelegance, it shows a remarkable sense of the power and aptness of words, and an unsual command of the resources of expression. * * * He is never dull, never languid, never commonplace, always free, emphatic and racy. Much has been said of late, by papers and individuals of certain political proclivities, in condemnation of what they have been pleased to style Political Preachers and Political Preaching. But it is remarkable that this clamor comes altogether from the members of one political party, from those who are sympathizers with the rebellion, abettors of treason, and advocates of the divine right of human Slavery. The truly loyal men of the nation have no complaint to make either against their ministers or their preaching, except it be that they have not always been independent and conscientious enough to speak out plainly and pointedly all that they thought and felt in relation to our national affairs; and especially our national sins. For had they done this from the beginning, both north and south, I verily believe, Slavery, the great curse of this nation, would long since have ceased to exist, and this wicked rebellion with its attendant evils would never have had an existence at all. Much has been said of late, by papers and indi-wicked rebellion with its attendant evils would never have had an existence at all.

In a Hepublican government, such as ours, depending as it does for its very existence upon the will of the people, it is all important that that will be directed by intelligence and regulated by virtue. And as the intelligence and virtue of a people are dependent largely upon the Press and the Pulpil, it is equally important that both these agencies be kept pure, and, within their legitimate sphere be allowed to exercise their prerogatives, independently and conscientiously. For if these become debased in their character or dereliet in their duty, the whole nation must suffer as the result. as the result.

Hence so far from deserving censure because of the interest they are now taking in our nation.

of the interest they are now taking in our national affairs in their respective congregations, our ministers merit our thanks for having thrown, off the shackles placed upon them, by the slave power, asserted their proper manhood, and as ambassadors of Christ, begun to declare to the people without fear, the whole counsel of God. The danger to our government is not from a too great interference of the Pulpit in our national affairs, but from too great a neglect of these by the men who so largely control public sentiment.

Ministers are men and citizens, and have therestore the right to discuss the affairs of the nation fore the right to discuss the affairs of the nation when they please. They are generally men of in-telligence and piety, and hence their opinions or these subjects should command the attention and being or their country, and of their sethish and iniquitous their party, and of their sethish and iniquitous the action of the sethish and iniquitous to God that, during the late political campaign, the Protestant ministers, almost to a man, came out openly and fearlessly in favor of the government of the sething the int, and that our Protestant congregation with but few exceptions, have stood by their min-sters and even applauded them for their devotion o their country's good. And it is also a matter is theif country's good. And it is also a matter of devout thanksgiving to every large hearted and intelligent Christian man that we have to-day a Protestant President, elected by Protestant votes, sinstained by Protestant influence, and encouraged daily by the oftering of millions of sincere, earnest, heart-felt Protestant prayers. No main that has ever occupied the Presidential chair of this nation has commanded in his support so mitch of the intelligence, the piety, and the solid worth of the nation, as does Abraham Lincoln.

God bless our noble President, and give him grace to enable him to complete the glorious work so well begun, and thus far so successfully prosecuted—the work of suppressing this wicked resecuted—the work of suppressing this wicked re-bellion, destroying American Slavery, and restor-ing our country to unity, peace and happiness And may God bless also our ministers and our and our country to unity, peace and happiness. And may God bless also our ministers and our churches, and help them henceforth to feel that they, not the servants of the devil and the votaries of ignorance and supersition, are to be the guardians of our liberties, the upholders of our institutions and the cash. titutions, and the architects of the desunie and offering an adequate basis for two or more companies, are now open.

All of these properties have been selected for their eligibility, and all are consiguous to, adjoin, and are between lands of the "Farrar," "President." (fermania," Bull Creek" and "Tionesta Oil and Lunniger Companies, having in the aggregate a capital of systral millions of dollars:

As the purchase of either of these tracts would require more money than the majority of persons have at command, it is proposed to divide them into one hundred interests of one thousand, dollars, each, thus affording the man of limited means, as well as the capitalist, an opportunity to secure an interest in this truly wonderful as well as money-making region.

As all are aware, the usual plan adopted for the development of such a property is to form a company and issue certificates of stock. The plan here proposed may be considered preliminary to the organization of oil of more companies on these estates which will cost the 160 original subscribers only one thousand dollars cach, and are subject to no royalty, leases, or mortagages whatsoever, but will be got with an unquestionable title in fee simple throughout. The sensecturas can then, upon this substantial and solid basis, organization or more companies, elect officers from among themselves, each subscriber being equally eligible to the position of an officer of the company.

In order that handsome returns may be specifly realized, these subscribers immediately organize a company, with a capital of 100,000 shares at five dollars each, which will entitle each subscriber to an original interest of 1000 shares, or $5000 in the capital stock of the company, of which a reservation of ten per cent, will give the company as commence flowing, the stock must rapidly increase in value.
