Hiners POTTSVILLE, PA. BATTERDAT, DECEMBER 18, 1864.

MR. LINCOLY'S MESSAGE. It is admirable. Concise, plain, dignified, i is in marked contrast to the passionate ebullition of the Rebel chieftain, Davis. The President is so brief that all we are sure, will read it attentively. It is a document which will commend itself to the best judgment of most persons by its calm, dispassionate tone, its business-like conciseness, and its eminent practicability of views. Our Presidents' messages have for a long series of years been so largely occupied by brief statements of the general leading features of the departmental reports, as to be in point of fact mostly the reflex of those documents, so that when we review the message we have at a glance the spirit of the whole administration. This is the case with the present message, and it is so condensed in its presentation of our public affairs that any attempt to make an abstract of it must do it injustice. Opening with a resume of our foreign relations, the President gives a gratifying statement of their amicable character. He recommends the presentation of a gunboat to Liberia, to enable that republic to suppress the slave trade; suggests that foreign slave-traders be prevented from acquiring domicile and facilities for their criminal occupation in our country; adverts to the notice given for the termination of the stipulations relative to naval armaments on 'our lake frontier; the amending of the law of last session to encourage foreign immigration and announces that the overland telegraph between Europe and America, by the way of Bhering's Straits, has been undertaken by an American company... Passing to the finances, he recommends a large increase of revenue from taxation, etc. ; proposes a new species of bounded debt to be held by any bons fide Doubled door to be needed by any board and the needed by the Indian troubles. DEATH OF A CELEBRATED STATISTICIAN. -By by the last arrival from Europe we learn that Mr. T. K. McCullough, the writer on politi-Gonn's Land's Boox for the New Year month is very fine, quite unapproachable. It contain two spleadid steel plates, "May and December, and old man making how to a young girl an "New Year Eve," a festive domestic scene. The New Year Eve," a festive domestic scene. cal economy, statistics, finance and commercial matters generally, died on the 11th ult.

He was a native of Scotland, and was seventyfive years of age at the time of his death. He studied law, but the practice of the profession not being congenial, he became editor of The Scotuman. Subsequently, he became a resident of London, and for four years the held a professorship in University College.

In 1838 he was appointed Controller of the Stationary Office in London, which position he held during the remainder of his useful life. He had leisure to compile a number of very valuable works, among which his "Dictionary of Commerce," probably, stands highest as a book of reference. His other works comprise treatises on taxation, political economy, &c., some of which have become standards of autherity, while the principles of others have been warmly combatted by other writers on the same branches of cience.

How THE MESSAGE WAS RECEIVED IN CON-GRESS.-During the reading of the Message in the House of Representatives, it was several times interrupted by applause, especially the concluding portion in which he says he will not be the instrument to re-enslave such persons as are made free by the Emancipation Proclamation or by any of the acts of Congress, and that in stating this as a single conapprear in our next. dition of peace he meant simply to say, the war will cease on the part of the Government whenever it shall have ceased on the part of those who began it. The applause was by the clapping of hands, with exclamations of "good !" "that's right !" &c. The Speaker 1864 .-- Dec. SUN . We would especially ask the attertion of the ladies o this now universally popular hair preparation, and emind them of the well-established fact that many of the hair tonics in vogue are not only powerless for youd, but absolutely periolicous, and too often destruc-ive in their influence upon the growth of the hair.— Pine "London Hair Color Restorer" contains no sub-stance that will clog the pores, but it does contain real nourishment for the vessels from which its roots spring, thus rendering the hair truly elegant and beautiful in every period of life. patriotic body is the gentleman whose name heads this paragraph. A warm admirer and supporter of Stephen A. Douglass, he took the position when traitors rose in arms against the Republic, that the lamented Statesman would now occupy were he living-firm, updeviating support of the Government. Pe-culiar honor, we repeat, attaches to these men of which Col. Forney is the honored rep-Bedford... rescutative. We are gratified whenever we observe that their claims to substantial recognition are allowed,

We are led to these reflections by the probability that upon the entrance of the Administration upon another four years of duty, some changes will be made in the Cabinet. In that event we think that the porte-feuille of the Secretaryship of the Interior, might with propriety and confidence, be entrusted by the President, to the hands of Col. Forney. He possesses enlarged experience and consummate ability, while the President has great respect for his opinions. The appointment in the event of a vacancy, we know would be gratifying to Pennsylvania, and we think, satisfactory to the rest of the country.

ADMIRABLE APPOINTMENT. -- On Tuesday last President Lincoln scut to the U.S. Senate the nomination of the Hon. Salmon P. Chase, of Ohio, late Secretary of the Treasury, as Calef Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to fill the position made vacant by the demise of Roger B. Taney. The Senate immediately ratified the appointment, and Mr. Chase is therefore, Chief Justice. In seizing this early hour of the session to make this nomination, President Lincoln shows how little heed he has ever paid to the efforts of parties to distract his attention on this subject. Public sentiment scemed to point to Mr. Chase as the man of mark especially adapted to this high and dignified position, and in making this selection President Lincoln has but responded to that sentiment. 'Mr. Chase is a man of very superior intellect, and his course throughout this war has been such as to win for him the confidence and respect of all loyal men. He has, too, been intimately associated with our political history for a long period, and is known thoroughly as a man of unblemished integrity and sterling ability. He possesses a clear head, a well balanced mind, and a conscientious devotion to principle. Indeed, he will eminently adorn the position.

THERE can be no question that there will be an early call for additional troops. It may seem strange but the last two calls for men have not materially added to the numerical force of our armics. That for 700,000 was under the first conscription law, and gave exempt-U. Giller. ion from service on the payment of commutation. The result was that it did not put 50,000 men into the service-not more than one in fifteen of those drawn accepting duty. The last call for 500,000 men has not, at this time, put over 120,000 men in the field. Over 200,000 were tredited on the call for naval enlistments and excesses of quotas filled in various districts—or at least counted as hav-
