mental in act and and of education. But do we find them so in every district? I am sorry to say, we do not.

There being no penalty attached to the law establishing district institutes, teachers in many instances take advantage of it, and instead of meeting for their schools, meet, as own improvement and that of their schools, meet, as was stated by some County Superintendents to smoke, was stated by some County Superintendents to smoke, was stated by some County Superintendents to smoke chew, and tell all sorts of stories; in others, where such practices would be offensive to the female members, the "social chat," and games of amusement, were such practices would be offensive to the female members, the "social chat," and games of amusement, were engaged in to wile away the hours of the institute engaged in to wile away the hours of the institute, because the law is, they must spend two Saturdays of each month in district institutes.

On whom does the success of an institute depend? I like every other body, on the members composing it. I have every other body, on the members composing it. I have every other body, on the members composing it. I have some eachers will not take sufficient interest in the institute to make it a success, should they be in the institute to make it a success, should they be penalty should be inflicted upon such teachers, who, when paid by the boards of directors to meet two Saturdays in each month for the improvement of them selves, spend that time and the fands of the district in mers social gatherings, even detrimental to the common school cause? In districts where institutes are now successful, they will always, remains a part of the educational machinary, consequently the change in the law will revert upon those who failed to do their duty. If these teachers were found in attendance at our County institute, there would be some encouragement, but invariably they are absent. Some teachers have said they would prefer teaching on Saturday. We presumed that this was in consequence of t this by having for each maintain day taught.
Directors complain, and justly too, of the shortness of the teachers month, receiving only twenty days school instead of twenty-two, to which they are justly entitled. The law implicitly requires that twenty-two days shall be appropriated to institutes and not to school purposes, and the directors as law-abiding citizenst must comply. But by the proposed change institutes will be held by agreement between boards of directors and teachers.

We are also, very happy on general principles, to hear all this from the estimable Lieutenant, and congratulate the service upon the possession of so efficient anofficer; but our worthy friend will excuse us from publishing his epistle in consequence of the irrelevant matter it contains. Had he confined himself to a denial of the fact that he had "got himself in trouble," we would have published his even then extraordinary letter, quite readily; but when the amiable Lieutenant devotes a paragraph to instituting a comparison between the citizens of Pottsville and Chambersburg, unfavorable to the former, we will not do injustice to the warm-hearted, loyal people of this place, by publishing it. In conclusion we might say to our apparently sensitive correspondent, that we not only did not state, but had no idea of intimating that he acted improperly in the shooting affair. We are now convinced from the action of the court of inquiry, Editors Miners' Journal: Since I last wrote you, we have been more successful in this Department.

On the morning of the 4th inst., Admiral Dahlgren sent the Pawnee. Sanoma and Bibb up the river on a reconnoissance. After some hard work and considerable shelling, we succeeded in finding a place to land troops in Tulifing River.

On the night of the 5th most of the army was withdrawn from Boyd's Landing, and on the morning of the Minumt collected by Mrs. McGinnis and Mrs. Allen, committee from the Second Presbyterian Church: drawn from Boyd's Landing, and on the morning of the 6th landed up the Tuliany River. Hard fighting commenced immediately after landing. They were compelled to meet us in an open fight, and in such we always can whin them pelled to meet us in an open indict and it saways can whip them.

This morning our main force was within a half mile of the Railroad, and our guns commanding it. Our shells knocked two of their cars, loaded with troops, off of one of the bridges this morning. Our loss is light, while that of the enemy is reported very heavy. We have a considerable number of prisoners. So far Church:

1. November 29, 64.

There has been for the last few days, every indication of an early move, but until to-day, but few knew where the blow would be struck.

The forces were concentrated at Port Royal, S. C. which is the head-quarters of both the army and navy of this department.

This morning at 2 o'clock, signals were made indicating an advance, when the naval fleet, consisting of 12 different class vessels, took the lead, followed by some 20 transports, loaded with troops.

We steamed up Broad River to Boyd's Lauding, (a distance of 20 miles) and by 10 o'clock succeeded in landing a force of markies and sailors without opposition from the enemy. By 12 o'clock the troops had disembarked, and all was in readiness for an advesce on the Charleston and Savannah Railruad, which is 10 miles from the landing.

No force of the enemy was met until our army reached the Cross Roads, (3 miles from the landing) where strong fortifications were found, and preparation for our reception. Heavy firing immediately commenced, and has lasted all day. We have every confidence in Rear Admiral Dahlgren and Gen. Foster, who are in command of the expedition.

Nov. 30.—At daylight this morning heavy firing again commenced. It was necessary for us to take the batteries, to accomplish the destruction of the Railroad at this point. Gen. Foster determined to charge them, where a most terrific fight commenced we were repulsed with a heavy loss in killed and wounded. The sailors and negro soldiers are reported as having fought spiendidly, and were at one time inside of the fortifications, but the overwhelming numbers of the enemy compelled them to retreat. There is no apprehension of a disaster; our fleet can cover the retreat against any number brought against us.

December 1.—To-day our forces fell back 1½ miles and are entrenching. Our tugs have just returned from some of the small creeks, where the have been shelling a rebel battery, but our shells all fell short.—

Cars could be seen on the rai

Cars could be seen on the railroad, moving to and Iro, apparently transporting troops.

No official report of the killed and wounded has been made, but they are supposed to reach 800.

December 4.—Our position is sow impregnable. All is again quiet, excepting the enemy occasionally shelling our camps, but we are so thoroughly entrenched that their shells are harmless.

It is impossible to tell what Gen. Foster's intentions are. To attack again appears useless, as the enemy outnumber us three to one. We have no news definitely of the whereabouts of Gen. Sherman. Hoplag I've not taxed your patience too severely, I am yours Very Respectfully, John A. Guldin, U.S. Coast Survey.

[Our correspondent's letters are very acceptable. We rust that he will write often to us.-Editors Minkes' ing the poor with fuel and provisions, at a small advance on the cost price, is now engaged in the philanthropic work. A depot has been erected in the square on the Five Points, where flour and coal are dispensed at a much less price than by the regular dealers. John Anderson, an ex-tobacco and snuff manufacturer, has contributed one thousand dollars to the fund. As the grocers in the neighborhood do not look with a friendly eye upon this building, and as they are rather a hard lot, it has been deemed advisable to detail policemen to keep guard over it. They sell good flour for admission to the corps; and if approved, will furnish the veteran transportation to Washington, where he will be regularly mustered for not less than one year, and will be paid a special bounty of three hundred dollars from the substitute fund upon being mustered into the service. This special inducement must be understood as in addition to the regular bounty of one, two, and three hundred dollars paid for one; two, and three years enlistments respectively. Also, it is allowed for any recruit to receive such local bounties as may be paid at the districts where their families are domiciled, to which district they will be credited. The corps will have a special badge to designate it, of peculiar uniform. men to keep guard over it. They sell good flour for $10,70 per barrel; and coal at $8,75 and $10,75. The corps will have a special badge to designate it, of peculiar uniform.

The promise that each recruit who preserves his arms to the end of his term may r tain them his arms to the end of his term may r tain them has his own, upon being honorably discharged from service, is a feature which gives great inducement for good men to encourage this movement who would appreciate this liberal offer, of the Government, and always thereafter carefully preserve them as relics earned in a fearful contest for Liberty and Union.

The fact is that General Hancock's reputation as a vigorous and shifful commander is not to be made by newspaper writers, but is alroady a part of our glorious history, made so by the numerous brilliant deeds of the Divisions and Corps he has commanded during this war.
