with the South, these matters might readily be adjust-ed by a change of the organic law by common consent. But we cannot expect to make such arrangement of terms with eleven different organizations, each varying, more or less, in its views and decisions. This is one difficulty. 'Abother difficulty is the diversity of opinion at the North.- Our prophets are at variance, some saying lo, here; some lo, there; and some lo, nowhere. There is but one abiter in such case—the loyal people—who alone have the power and if rightly applied to, the lust asgreight discomment to find the clue to lead us out of these labyrinthine difficulties by their declared will; dictating such change in the organic law as our decision need to doubt or gainsay. They will demand, only what is for the common peace. These terms, once thus determined on, will be accepted by the South, and whe should be cormitly welcomed back faito the hew Union, to ware its biesings on chust terms with us, and be defended, alike, with us, by its power. DEFENDING CRIMES.

. It is not surprising that crime is rampan in this County. It has every encouragement. The laws are enforced with laxity; men arraigned for unbrovoked, cold-blooded killing, are acquitted, and the organ of the party which rules the County, excuses murder committed by members of that party, as mere ebullitions of "reckless, hardy men," who having learned that kind of thing in Europe, should be allowed unchecked, to indulge their murderous proclivities here. It lessens our wonder that Schuylkill County is unenviably noted for crime, when we find imbecility and lukewarmness in the custodians of the laws, and apologists in the organs of the party.

The men who commit crime in this County read with satisfaction. we do not question, an article in the last number of the. Copperhead organ, entitled "The Increase of Crime." The animus of the article is, that the Republican party is responsible for the increase of crime, and that the murderers of this County are in the commission of their crimes, only fighting their way through life. The apologist for crime, says:

Taking into consideration our numerous popu-lation, the character of the 'labor in which the mass of our working people are 'engaged, which tends to draw together the reckless, hardy men of all nations, who have been taught in other lands tends to draw together and the series and the stern monitor, Poverty, that each mail must fight his own way through life, and the asylum offered by our lopely munitains, our response mote valleys, and one deep, dark, cavernous mines to fugitives from justice from all of the large cities, Solruylkill County is a model of good order which many of the cities and counties in the United States, and even in Pennsylvaria, would do wall to imitate.

Indeed! Let us look at this "model of good order" during the year 1864. We find by the Annual Report of the County Com-
