devils incarnate, and piled with hellish zeal the work of death, while their superiors looked on and smiled approvingly. Neither age nor sex were spared, but men, women and children were indiscriminately slaughtered together. It the unfortunate blacks remained at home they were shot, or if they fled they were shot for not remaining at home. For days and days the horrid carnival continued, and after making way with two thousand victims the brutal ruffians desisted only apparently from sheer exaustation. It is awful to read the details, sickening to dwell upon the acts of savage cruelty. Surely an avenging God cannot overlook such "dispensations of justice," and if a separate judgment day is set apart for the trial of any particular people it must certainly be for that nation which commits and applauds such damnable The better class of English journals condemn the enormity, while the London Times, true to its sympathy with oppression and butchery, defends the proceedings of the Government as "the wise and necessary rigor of repression." The London Spectator remarks:

"The Jamaica news is too painful and too shameful for Englishmen to recount without ditterness. The slunghter seems to have been stayed on the 7th nlt. but the previous twenty-right days were days of an resided carnage, uncontrolled passions, and joose brutality, when negroes who were to be hanged, afterward, were beaten first, and the strokes of the cat were aggravated by the coarse insults of those who applied it. The proceedings went on in so lively and exciting a style that when a last the occupation cassed, a sense of general dullness and many pervaded the scene of the executions, and in spite of the seriously inconvenient effluvia of dead negroes, the soldiers and platters would have willingly remarks:

epite of the seriously inconvenient effluvia of deat ne-groes, the soldiers and platters would have willingly resumed their labors." The London News is equally explicit and severe. After narrating some of the accounts from the Island, it says: "But we cannot politic our columns with more of such appalling details. If but a thousandth part, of such takes as form the staple of the Jamaica, newspapers and which are narrated with heartlest applause—are true, hell itself has broke loose in that wretched island. This awful business must be stopped, if we would not have all civilization rise to execute the name of Englishmen."

The News then shows by strong, conclu sive arguments, that all the talk about of the country entirely free. It will be an uppar-donable omission if Potsyille does not fire a bun-dred guns on the occasion. Boys, trot out the "deep laid plot" or "volcano" in the island, has no foundation in fact. Commercial Advertiser:

On the 11th of October the blacks at Morant. Bay made an attack on the Court House there. It is not necessary for us to dwell upon the causes of the outbreak. In previous articles we have shown how the unfortunate negroes had become embittered toward the English authorities by a long series of oppressions and wrongs. As a result of this tax riot, twenty-one military and civil pursons were killed and figuriers wounded. Nor does the Governor General assert that any further casualties ensued. Yet he thereupon proclaimed martial law, and let ellip his hell-hounds to quell a threatened insurrection. Without waiting for it to show it-self, he proceeded upon the supposition that a general uprising was already in progress. His Lieutemants, each clothed with the authority of ludge, jury and executioner combined, depart upon their work of death and send back such reports as these. Colonel Hobb: Sixth Royals, writes that having secured a number of prisoners, and "being unable to either take or leave them, I had that ALL shot, the constables then hung them upon trees; their countenances were all diabolical, and they never flinched the very slightest." And again: "I have Paul Bogle's valet for my guide, a little fellow of extraordinary in telligence; a light rope field to the stirrups, and a revolver now and then to his head, cause us thoroughly to understand each other. He knows every single rebel in the island by name and face, and has just been selecting the captains, colonels and secretaries out of an immense gang of prisoners just, come in, whom I shall have shot to morriny." As showing the demoralizing influences of slavery, it is a noteworthy fact that when commanding in South Australia and elsewhere this General Eyre appears to have borne an excellent reputation. In a public meeting at Manchester, on the 27th ult. Mr. Potter, M. P., spoke in the highest terms of his previous record. No sooner, however, as it would appear from his conduct, did he go to Jamaica and become conduct, did he go to Jamaica and become conduct, did he go to Jamaica and become subjected to the pernicious influences of the late slave holding population than his whole character underwent complete transformation and he was thence-forward fit for strategeins and spoils. It was but a repetition of the case of Wirz, who, on changing the wild, free air

The English press that aided and abetted the rebels during our late war and the Copperbad press of the North, the organ here perhead press of the North, the organ here among the number, justify these barbarities -the former to excuse the authorities, the latter for partizan purposes and to depreciate the worth of the negro as a man. In their eyes five millions or more of American insurgents were pertectly justifiable in attempting to overthrow their government, but when five hundred poor oppressed blacks rebel against tyrannical laws, not only they, but the whole negro population for miles around justly merit speedy death! soo, but in consequence of the advance in labor and material during its construction, an extra allowance of $9500 was made, and over at that the contractors allege that they sustain consi erable loss. The contractors have been paid the contract price and allowance up to within $2400, and that will be paid without delay. The only debt remaining against the building, is $9700, borrowed under authority of the school laws, which authorizes oven a larger loan. This debt we presume will be speedily paid, for we understand that while the directors wish to avoid as far as practicable, making the taxes for building purposes higher than is absolutely necessary, they desire to have the debt paid within a reasonable period and do not want to saddle our debt inpon those who are to come after us. They think rightly that each generation should pay its own way.

Our friend's communication in reference to the building and the dedication, is as follows:

Mr. Engrer: In company with a friend on Friday last 1 paid a visit to the new school building on centre astret, and it is well worth a visit. On entering, the visitor is struck with the spaciousness of its halls. On the first floor there is a lecture room capable of seating some three or four hundred persons. This is beautifully fitted up. The sections in the right distance apart. On this floor, there is also a room for the Directors to meet in, and a school room for about sixty unils. The second and third floors of the part of the part that a fresh supply of pure air can be obtained in all the rooms. This is a great desideration, as I know from many years' experience, that a hadly vehillated school room is one of the greatest drawbacks to successful teaching.

Arain, the school furniture is of the most improved style. The seats and desks both for teachers and pupils are very comfortable. Those for the latter are graded so as to suit the different grades of pupils. It was amusing to hear the different remarks made in reference to the improvements in school furniture during the last thirty or forty years. This, the school room was fitted up (many of them) with slabs for seats, and many of those at such a height from the floor that the poor little urchin had to sit with his feet dancling in the air until his poor limbs were fairly numb with pain. Now we see beautiful cherry seats, made in a great measure for the special comfort of the pupils. I don't believe there is a tax-payer in the Borough who would regret paying his portion of the school tax, If he would respond the rescaled profest of the provided the school tax, If he would respond to a private tutor, they too, would rejoice that the great mass of the rising generation in our midst had the privilege of attending school- in such a building.—Even the "old bachelor." If he would go, and examine it would exclaim, "Oh, how I wish I had a family of children to send to school here, but as I have not, I will cheerfully pay to edicate the children of some more fortunate brother." I would urge upon one and all to go and visit this school building, said by State Superintendent Coburn and Prof. J. P. Wickersham, to be the best adapted for school purposes in the State.—In the execiting the dedication took place. Among the notables present were State Superintendent Newlin. The exercises were opened with an impressive prayer by Rev. Isaac Riley. Juo, W. Roseberry, E-q., President of the School Board, formally presented the building to the public in a neat, little speech, giving the reasons for the erecf

Superintendent Coburn then made a few remarks, mainly as counsel to the teachers that they should see that this building was kept in good repair.

I know that they will see to this, for they comprise a corps of as fine young ladies as can be found teaching anywhere in the State.

The exercises were enlivened by music by our Brass Band.

After benediction the meeting adjourned, all well pleased, I think, with the evening's entertainment.

J. A.M. P.

We understand that Prof. Wickersham in his address paid a well merited compliment to our talented townsman, Lin Bartholomew, Esq. The Professor said that he was especially pleased at being present on the occasion, among other reasons in consequence of an incident which had always given him a warm side towards Pottsville. When a bill was before the Legislature for an appropriation for State Normal Schools in which he was now directly interested, at the crisis in the debate a young man, a member from Schuylkill County, rose in his place, and by a few strong words, earnestly advocatory of the measure, secured its passage. That young man was the speaker who had just preceded him, Lin Bartholomew, Esq. The statement of this fact by the Professor clicited the warmest applause.

The entire proceedings were of a markedly interesting character, as we have heard from those who were present.

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Brenchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for Breachitis, Inciplent Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cares, that almost every section of country abounds in persone publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the langs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other expectorant is too sparent to escape observation, and where its virtues we known, the public no longer hesitre what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has agained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

We can only assure the public, that its quality is carefully kept up to the best it ever has been, and that it may be relied on to do for their relief all that it has ever done. ever done.
