He had abiding faith in their mighty powers as sources of wealth and industry and prosperity, and in the grandeur of their fu-ture. Then his chuca'ion was good and his read-ing extensive. His manners were gettle, win-ning and refined. He was adapted to meet and accommodate himself to the humblest day-la-borer, as well as the most refined and cultivated man of letters or of wealth. His power to im-press ins views on the minds of others was re-markable, and hence he succeeded in embarking so much capital and influence in his favorite en-terprises. The scient of this power lay in his own profound convictions, his entire since rity and his truthfulness. It was not the result of art with him, but plain and simple nature. He was emphatically a leader. He always oc-cupied the advance, the higher ground in bis day and generation. He booked far into the future. ing in raised letters : Ricurand Kran, A Nuitve of England, Died May 5, 1864.

Army, but his inclinations were for the more peaceful walks of private, life, and we can confidently recommend him to our patrons and friends as worthy of their confidence and support. When we first purchased the establishment of the MINERS' JOURNAL, in April, 1829, the materials in the office, including the press, Mahanlongo streef, opposite the Post Office. were worth about $200, and the subscription list numbered 160 subscribers. It is now the largest sheet published in Pennsylvania, and it has a larger circulation than any weekly journal published in the State, out of Philadelphia and Pitteburg. During the whole of the period of thirty eight years, including all the vicissitudes which have characterized the coal region of Schuylkill County, the progress of the establishment has been onward, and it has never taken a backward step. We are also happy to state that the edition published this week, exceeds 4000 copies, and the accessions to the subscription list continue to be even greater now than during the rebellion. With the single exception of Mejor Freas. of the Germantown Telegraph, which is not a political, but an independent paper, we be-lieve we are the row oldest editor in Pennsylvania, connected with the same po-residence is glas unique and handsome. litical paper for that period of time. The business will hereafter be conducted under the firm name of BANNAN & RAM-SEY ... The subscriber will still continue to give the establishment his supervisory care, and particularly the columns of the JOURSAL." BENJAMIN BANNAN.

As the above explains fully the new busi ness relationship established between. Mr. Bannan and the unders'goed, it is unnecessary for the latter to enter at any length into the subject. He need only assure all the putrons of this establishment and the general public that he, will devote binastif unremitingly to its business and do all in his power. to merit their confidence. He trusts that the business relationship thus pleasantly com menced, may continue long unbroken from. any cause, and that each successive year may bind him more closely to Schuylkill County which has ever held a warm place in his affections. ROBERT H. RAMSEY.

THE LEGISLATION ASKED FOR BY THE PEOPLE OF SCHUYLKILL The bills recently submitted to the Legislature by the Committee of citizens that went over from this County, are before the Legislature, with we are pleased to learn, a fair prospect of being passed at the present. session. The opposition to these needed measures by the members from this County. and by those they have to aid them, is strong. We believe however, that these measures will pass and become laws. If by any chicanery we only obtain part of the legislation required, it will be useless. And if the two laws asked for should be passed and they prove ineffectual to remove the evils in this County, there will be no use in asking for any more legislation in the matter. It will then rest with our citizens to protect life and property in the most decided way known to civilized communities which laws fail to defend against murder and robbery. We learn from Harrisburg that the Crimi-nal Court Bill was called up on Thursday af-ternoon last by the Copperhead member from Prof. Anderson who recently gave "gift" en-tertaiuments in this Borough, has been arrested in Norristown. He entered bonds in the sum of Solo to appear at the May Court for trial. The charge brought against him is not stated by the Norristown Independent, from which we learn Lehigh and Northampton, after an ineffectual the fact. attempt had been made in the morning by the friends of the bill to do the same thing .--The opposition knew that a Criminal Court Bill would be offered as a substitute for the Law Judge Bill, but they thought that as the Judge in either case would be appointed by the Governor, to serve until the next election. after that they would be sure to have the Death of a Pioneer of the Schuylkill Coal Re-gion.—Rapidly the enterprising men who assisted in building up this Region to its present prom-inent position, are passing away. We are called upon to day to record the death of a citizen who for forty years was intimately identified with the development of the mineral wealth of this section of Pannaylerana; and whose uplud and energics were directed almost up to the hour of this death to that important work. Words are rowerless to express the great depiration experienced by this community in the death of Bard Patterson, Esq. Mr. Patterson died at his residence in this Bo-rough, on Saturday last, in the 79th year of his age.

Madame Thornton possesses such wonderful powers of second sight BURD PATTERSON. The business population of Schnylkill County is pe-cular to itself. There is an intelligent, energetic, en-terprising, self-reliant character not found in any of the interior counties our of the mining region. No case of men, eyen ig the commarcial eithes, have more lib-eral and clevated views than the business men of Schnylkill. And one ra sou is, that their immense bu-siness operations fill up a vast circle of wide spread res-lations, embracing, commerce in ils, widest range, manufactures in their almost boundless variety and ex-tent, and mining of coal and from ores in all parts of the world. The expansive bower of such relations is libustrated in the clevated character of the business men, as they stand connected with the immense wealth and is re-devisionment of it in this County: Amid such men, and on these scenes of bold and per-servering enterprise, of accumulations of homenee for-tures, of vast hopes and sacrifices, but with all, of won-deful develop ment and progress, our universally es-tremed and lamented friend, Mr. Burd Patterson, occu-pled for a number of vears a communding position.
