"More my arm chair, faithful Pompey,
In the sunshine bright and strong,
For this world is fading. Pompey—
Massa won't be with you long;
And I fain would hear the South wind
Bring once more the sound to me
Of the wavelets softly breaking
On the shores of Tennessee, "Mournful though the ripples murnur,
As they still the story tell,
How no vessels float the banner
That I've loved so long and well,
I shall listen to their music,
Dreaming that again I see
Stars and Suripes on sloop and shallop,
Sailing up the Tennessee.

ON THE SHORES OF TENNESSEE.

Master, dreaming of the battle
Where he fought by Marion's side,
When he bid the haughty Tarleton
Stoop his lordly creat of pride;
Man, remembering how you sleeper
Once he held upon his knee,
Ere she loved the gallant sodder,
Ralph Vervair, of Tennessee.

Still the south wind fondly lingers
Mid the veteran's silvery hair;
Still the bondman, close beside him,
Stands behind the old arm chair,
With his dark hued hand uplifted,
Shading eyes, he bends to see
Where the woodland, boldly jutting,
Turns aside the Tennessee.

Thus he watches cloud-born shadow Glide from tree to mountain crest,

Gilde from tree to monnian creat.
Softly creeping, are and ever.
To the river's yielding breast,
Ha! shove the follage yonder.
Something flutters wild and free!
"Massa! Halleligh!
The flag's come back to Tennesse

"Pompey hold me on your shoulder,
Help me stand on foot once more.
That I may salute the colors
As they pass my cabin door.
Here's the paper signed that frees you;
Give a freeman's shout with me—
God and Union! be our watchword.
Ever more in Tennessee."

Then the trembling volce grew fainter, And the limbs refused to stand; One prayer to Jeens—and the soldier Glided to that better land When the flag went down the river, Man and master both were free.

THE RACHETTE FURNACE.

At the London Exhibition of 1862, a new kind of blast furnace was brought under pub-lic notice as an important improvement upon our present mode of smelting iron. It was exhibited in the Russian department by the inventor, General Rachette, in the Russian service. It was stated that a furnace of such construction had been successfully worked in Russia for some time, and several more grnaces of that kind were then about to be tangular form, with a row of several tryeres at each side. The intention of this arrange-ment is to allow of a very large furnace be-much smaller than is usual in round furnaces Another Rachette furnace is exhibited by a model in the Prussian department. It represents the furnace at work in Clausthal am Harz for smelting copper ores, and which is said to work in a very satisfactory manner.

The only iron-smelting furnace, on General

Vestern Europe was erected at Mulheim am ago. This furnace has not worked for any length of time, as the company which had erected it filled. The causes of this failure erected it is led. The causes of this failure are described by persons acquainted with this company to have been solely of a commercial character, and this failure gives, therefore, no sufficient evidence with regard to the merits or demerits of the Rachette furnace.

LEAD FLOATISC ON MOLTON IRON.—Some experiments have been made in Germany which seem to show that molten lead when

On the waves of Tennessee." From Jamestown. N. J., Journal of August 2d, Edited by C. R. Bisnor, Chairman of Committee on AD "Mr. Pettengill spoke in opposition to that pla om the PUBLISHER'S stand point alone. He shows able amount of damage, placed the lives of a number of men and boys in jeopardy, and put a stop to the working of the mine of the mine of some days, occurred on Monday morning at the Pennywell-road colliery, Bristol. The pit was formerly worked by the Pennywell-road Cosi Company, but for 12 months it has been in the possession of Mr. Brown, of Seymour villas, Stapleton road, who has done everything in his power to render its workings as fe and convenient to the colliers. Amongst the improvements which he introduced was one at the suggestion of Mr. Lionel Brough, the Government Inspector of mines—the driving of a "travelling way" from the great vein into the upcast shaft, whereby a dangerous portion of that shaft was avoided; and its importance was fully shown on Monday, when by means of a travelling way, a number of men were enabled to escape from what appeared to them almost certain death. At the bottom of the down cast shaft there is a "2rit;" 130 yards long, leading to the "deep" workings, at the end of this "drift" there are some old workings, which had been exhausted, and it was resolved to attempt to gain work them.

resolved to attempt to again work them.— Mr. George Britten, the manager, a man of great experience in the working of coal mines, took the necessary steps to break into the old workings, but the presence of water being suspected, "boring" was resorted to to ascertain if such really was the case. Be-tween 10 and 11 o'clock this operation was being performed when some of the men present incantiously removed a large block of coal by the side of the "bore hole." Wa-or coal by the side of the "bore hole." Water immediately rushed out with great force, and all attempts to plug up the orifice being in vain the alarm was given to the coiliers in the mine there being about 70 men and boys in the mine at the time. The miners made their way as quickly as possible to the bottom of the downcast shaft, and the state of affairs having been communicated to those at surface, immediate preparation was made for bringing the men up. Load after load of the living freight was drawn up to the pit's mouth and as the men made their appearance they were greeted with a hearty cheer by hundreds of persons who had assembled in the neighborhood of the mine. A number of men, unable to bear the suspense of waiting at the bottom of the shaft until their turn to be pulled up should arrive, made their way along a 'travelling way" to the bottom of the upcast shaft, where preparations had been made for drawing them up, and they were quickly raised to the surface. At length the whole of the men in the colliery were got out, Mr. Britten, the manager, being the last one to leave the pit. The men soon recovered from their fright, and every attention was bestowed upon them. The water continued to flow down the "drift" until there were 9 or 10 ft. in the shaft above the landing place, but the engine was at work the whole of the day, raising water at the rate of 200 gallons per minute. It is hoped that the water has not got into the FEARFUL COLLIERY EXPLOSION-LOSS OF FOURTEEN LIVES.—A dreadful explosion oc-curred on Tuesday, at Messrs. Bromilaw and Co.'s Garswood Colliery, Ashton, near St. Helens, Lancashire. This accident is the more appalling from the fact that a dreadful explosion occurred in the same mine on May 13, 1866, whereby 13 men lost their lives.— The Garswood Colliery consists of four mines The Garswood Colliery consuss of four mines to each of which a separate shaft works.—

That in which the explosion occured is called the Little Delf. Mine, and is the deepest, being 460 yards in depth. The explosion was in a distant and remote part of the mine, 1000 yards from the shaft. The part is known as the closely of our runs in the direction of "the top level," and runs in the direction of Gurswood Park. It is considerably higher than any other part of the mine, and is con sequently more dangerous, as the gas rises to that part from the other workings. At the time of the accident 14 men and boys were engaged working in the top level, all of whom have perished; and it is a most providential circumstance that more lives have not been lost, as at the time the miners were all at work in the pit, but it is owing to the high level being very remote, and no other work being carried on in that part. The explosion was not heard in the pit very far from where it occurred, but its serious nature was at once feared, and the whole of the works were immediately stopped and the men withdrew from the mines without delay A volunteer exploring party was formed, which consisted of Thomas Molyneux, sen., under manager; Thos. Molyneux, jun., under manager; William Tickle, top manager. and a party of colliers, and shortly after the explosion they proceeded on their search and after hours of toil they succeeded in recovering the whole of the 14 bodies, which were on being found removed to the bottom of the shaft, and not brought up to the pit mouth until night. The cause of the explo-sion can never positively be known; but it is conjectured that it was caused by the fireman (Topping) exploding a charge of gun powder for Chestworth, as it is known h was to do so about the time of the accident Strange to say, the explosion in May, 1866 when 13 lives were lost, was caused by Top ping firing a charge, when he escaped; but he has now perished.—London Mining Jour

THE SITUATION. The situation is now such as to demand the attention of all loyal country loving citi-zens, yet there appears to be a spirit of in-difference manifested, which I consider actually criminal on the part of those who must be fully aware of the condition affairs are getting into, and the aspect they are assuming. Let us look for a moment at the course manner by the researches of Professor Kar marsch, of Hanover. An ironmaster in the vicinity of that fown had sent to the professor some samples of such drops of lead lying imbedded in the surface of a cast-iron-block, and which had been produced in the manner above described. Professor Karmarsch found, upon close examination, that these drops of lead, instead of being solid glodules, as was supposed at first sight, were all hollow, forming bubbles composed of a metallic skin, and apparently empty in the centre, so far as his observation has been carried. He explains the whole by supposing that the molten lead, at the temperature to which it is raised by the Chief Executive of a shame fully deceived country. we know you do not all agree. We clip the following on the subject from the School Journal: PROHIBITION OF CORPORAL PUN-ISHMENT. Latterly there has aprouted and now there is fast growing up a most dangerous heresy in the educational field. It is the abolishment of Corporal Punishment. Already in New for the purpose of restoring to influence and to power persons who incited the South to rebellion, and who are yet under an oath of all legiance to a government unknown to the constitution, which they hope to re-establish, are acts which constitute prima facia, such abuses and usurpations of power, as to demand the impeachment and trial of the offender, in order that the constitution may be vindicated and the National Government preserved in its integrity.

The rod is no longer to be used in that State, as appears by the annexed article from the June number of the American Educational Monthly. We agree in all said by our contemporary on the subject, except as to the construction which ought to and will be given to the words "Corporal Punishment." There is little question but that the country, we conceive it to be our duty to use all proper means to exclude the political influence and patronage of the Democratic party from all offices within the gift of the people: and to that end we appeal to the comprehend codily restraint,—the Reeping in of the pupil after school hours, or any kind of punishment by constraint or position; except blows upon the person. But even thus limited, the law and the principle upon which it is based, are wrong. It will soon be re-pealed. In fact, so clear are we in this opinion, that we rather rejoice that the act has been passed. It will soon test the theory of the extreme moral sussionists; and their failure after this trial will for years put an end to W. WILLIAMS, of Pittsburg, to the Bench of the Supreme Court, as a learned and accomplished jurist and a truly upright and loyal citizen.

And in a like manner we recommend to our fellow.citizens of Philadelphia the election of M. Russell Thayer as Judge of the Court of Common Pleas; assuring them that in Mr. Thayer they have a candidate of the highest legal ability and of the purest character, and one whose loyalty is inborn and above suspicion.

Let the youth of a nation be raised up in the principles and trained in the practices, that they are only to do what is pleasant to themselves, and only to believe what they shall come to rule, may be predicted, without any aid from the spirit of prophecy.
