Religion in English Life.

Of every day religious expression in England a writer in Hearth and Home remarks: Scarcely a family-at least none who lay claim to any degree of respectability—fails to have family service at least part of the day. These devotions are not irreverently rapid or tedious, as Jones, township, July 20th, 1869, n3748. often with us; but are short, crisp, and reverent. The servants come in bringing with them their Bibles and the benches on MANHOOD: HOW LOST, HOW REwhich they sit. Men who do not profess religion, as it is understood among us. seldom sit at meat without grace, as it is here called. It consists of a few words such as, " The Lord make us thankful for his Son's sake," or " For what we are about to receive the Lord make us thankful." At her breakfast table, where the Queen appears as the woman and lays aside he queen, she frequently says grace. I dined the other day informally with the Lord Mayor of London. He came from the bench where he sits as a magistrate daily, laid aside his robes and triple gold chain, which are the insignia of his office, and approached the dinner table, around which stood several gentlemen. In a simple and unaffected manner he said grace, and asked his guests to be seated.

Nor is this cant. The merebunts of London have an outspoken way of talking of religion, as if it was no appendage or a thing of which they need be ashamed. They gather in their counting-rooms for prayer; have clubs that meet weekly for studying the Bible; go among the lowly and neglected; on Sunday gather little con. gregations where the regular ministry cannot go, and form that great column, five thousand strong, who on every Sunday go out to do among the masses their work for their Master.

THE ladies tilt their hats forward radically just now. If gentlemen were to assume that angle they would be accused of having taken something spirited.

THE returns of the vote in the Methodist Church on the question of lay delegation, so far as in, foot up 69,537 for the measure and 25,638 against.

More complete raturus from the election in Virginia show that Richmond journals have overestimated Governor Walker's majority, which turns out to be 17,500.

Too NUMEROUS .- There is a superfluity of dogs in this town. Something ought to be done with them. It would be well enough, also, to pay some attention to the two-legged puppies that make night bideous with their howls.

STROKE the back of a cat with one hand, and at the same time touch the top of your head with the forefinger of the other hand, and you will receive an electrick shock equal o that from the batteries of a telegraph office. The experiment is worth trying .- Exchange.

DURING the sultry days when the heat s so oppressive and the atmosphere stifling. all, and especially those who are compelled to be much in the sun, should be creful and reguar in their habits. Let beer and all other intexteating liquors alone. The are healthiest who are most temperate and regular in heir habits.

A CHEAP BAROMETER -A Western onner is responsible for the following : It is said that a cup of coffee is a sure barometer, f you allow the sugar to drop to the bottom of a cup, and watch the bubbles arise without listurbing the coffee. If the bubbles collect in the middle the weather will be fine; if they adhere to the cup, forming a ring, it will be rainy; and if the bubbles separate without assuming any fixed position, changeable weather may be expected.

Foul Air.-Are housekeepers aware that foul air enough to seriously taint a whole house rises from the drains of stationary washstands left open over night? The lecturer at this carelessness of leaving sink and basin drains open in strong language. In this warm weather, when every possible minsmatic germ developes quickly, this point ought not to be neglected.

SUNSTROKE AND DRINKS .- Beware of strong and intexicating liquors during the heated season. Sunstrokes will become prevais the most liable to the action of old Sol's that occurred, not one temperance man was

ONE of our exchanges gives the following schedule of prices for the benefit of those who need and seek after " puffs."

For a modest puff-three julips.

A tolerable one-one box of segars.

A very good one-one vest and two shirts. A splendid one-one cloth coat.

An exchange says it is an extraordinary fact in this-world that every man or woman who wants something done for nothing goes straight to the publisher of a newspaper. He is the free bridge over which merit and domerit prepose to pass the stream of trouble. He is the free horse that every man proposes to ride into the green pasture of prosperity.
