THE BOY OF THE PERIOD .- Why boys will work in a store for $80, or $100, or $150 per annum, when it is possible for them to learn trades in which they may begin on the last mentioned sum, is a question none but boys can answer. There are always hundreds of hands to be had for fifty dollars a year-in fact the market is always glutted with them, and the great attractions must be the looks of the flashily dressed clerks who have been in the service for four or five years or more, and who look like $5,000 a year bloods, but who really vegetate on a tenth of that sum, making both ends meet in a manner known only to higher power than their washwoman. It is a nobler ambition which makes a good trade, and not tape measuring, the foundation of true prosperity .- American Volun-

Charles Dickens --- Death of the Great Author.

Lopon, June 10 .- Charles Dickens, the great novelest, is dead. He was entertaina party at dinner, at his residence at Gad's Hill, on Wednesday, when he was suddenly seized with alarming symptoms - 2:11 depriving him of speech and volition, immediately conveyed to his chamber, and medical assistance was rapidly summoned. Upon the arrival of the physician, he pronounced him to be under the influence of a formnable stroke of approplexy. Immediate remedys were prescribed and everything done to alleviate his sufferings, it is new. but it was all useless, as the great novelist still remained in a comatose state, from which it was impossible to rouse him.

A consultation of physicians failed to develop a remedy for the unfortunate coma. Mr. Dickens still lay in that dangerous state of insensibility, and from the time of the attack until six o'clock last evening he lay motionless, betraying no signs of life.

The physicians, alarmed at his condition, at six o'clock examined him to detect signs of breathing, but the last flickering spark of life had expired, and shortly after six o'clock the great novelist was pronounced hour of his death.

Miss Hogarth, seated near Mr. Dickens made a remark to him that he must be ill. To this Mr. Dickens replied, "O no, I have only got a headache; I shall be better presently."

He then asked that an open window be shut, and almosn immedianely became unconscious and fell back in a chair insensi-

His son and daughters remained steadfastly at his bedside after the attack until his decease. The ladies manifested many demonsirations of grief at the sad event, and the scene is described as mouraful in the extreme. Many reminiscences of the eminent author have been recalled by his sudden death.

It is stated that Mr. Dickens has several rienced considerable difficuly in working, because his powers of application were becoming impotent. He also said his thoughts no longer came to him as spontaneously as in former times.

- While at Preston he had need of medical aid, and called upon physicians, who warned him not to continue reading, because he was doing so at the peril of his life

The sad news of the decease of Charles Dickins has elicited the warmest expressions of universal sorrow and regret, and the columns of the morning press abound with mournful articles upon the event.

A DREADFUL DRATH. - The Cincinnati Commercial says : Shortly after eight o's clock yesterday morning, two men were standing near the corner of Seventh and Smith streets, looking up to the top of the graceful spire of the beautiful new St. Paul's church, southwest corner of those streets, were men, who looked like small boys, were hanging by rotton ropes, slating the spire. The observers wondering how men could work at that dizzy height, with no barrier between the slip and death, when suddenly a thrill of horror passed through them, and their faces bleached to the kue of chalk, as they saw one end of the slender swing drop; and they held their breath as they saw the body of a man, the instant before tull of vitality, health and peace of mind, launched heels over head, for a fall of a hundred and fifty feet or more, bumping with all the force that a hundred and sixty CONSIDERABLE complaint is made in the pounds can gain in a long fall, against jag-Kentucky papers of famine in some parts ged stones, and in another second striking of Virginia. RED CLOUD, in a speech to Secretary Cox, said some things which, perhaps, are quite as truthful as poetic. TERRIBLE ACCIDENT .- A terrible accilent occurred on Sunday morning last, in Pine township, this county, which resulted in the death of one lady and the serious injury of several others. It seems that Mrs. James Steele, Mrs. Kurts, Mrs. Bechtell and Miss Bingaman were in a spring wagon, and on their way to church at Templeton. In going down a hill, Miss Bingaman, who was sitting on the front seat with the driver, was by some means thrown out, which frightened the horses and the driver lost all control over them. Down the hill they dashed at a fearful rate of speed, finally upsetting the wagon and throwing the occupants in every direction. Mrs. Steele had her collar bone broken and was badly cut bout the face. Mrs. Kurts, jaw broken, scalp torn and one foot smashed. This lady is not expected to live. Mrs. Bechtell, collar bone broken, and her child was badly bruised and cut. Miss Bingaman in falling out, fell among the horses and had her collar bone and two or three ribs broken. Very soon after the accident, messengers were dispatched to this place for medical aid, and Drs. M'Culloch, Reynolds and Allison reafter the accident, when it was conveyed to ed to the scene of the disaster, and rendered all the assistance in their power. At last account all the patients were as comfortable as could be expected,-Armstrong Re-
