

Farm, Garden and Household.

Prepare for Spring Work. There is usually a great deal of work during March, when outdoor work cannot be done, and all bad days can be spent to good advantage in the shop in finishing up some of the innumerable little jobs which in summer were deferred until winter.

If you need a new reaper, order it now and set it up, and see that all is right, and ready for work. If any new tools are needed, it will pay to buy early, as you generally get a better article, and then there will be no difficulty in getting a handsome discount.

Household Receipts.

BED BUG POISON.—According to Prof. Hirsch, the troublesome little bed bug can be easily destroyed by an aqueous solution of sulphurous acid.

LOAF CAKE.—Three eggs; one cup of sugar; half a cup of butter; one cup of cream; one teaspoonful of soda; one cup of raisins; one cup of currants; four and nutmegs.

DOUGHNUTS.—Two eggs; two cups of sugar; two cups of sweet milk; a little salt; five pints of flour; with two even measures each of acid and soda of Horsford's preparation mixed well with flour.

CREAM CUP CAKE.—Four cups of flour; two of sugar; three of sweet cream; four eggs; nutmeg. Bake in a quick oven; bake in square tins, and when cold cut in squares about two inches wide.

RECIPES FOR ROLLS. Mix one pint of milk; half a pint of fresh lard; one tablespoonful of soda; the same of salt; mix stiff and roll up about the size of your hand; sprinkle with sugar and ground cinnamon or cloves.

CHEAP PIE.—One cup of sugar, one half cup of butter, one half cup of milk, two heaping cups of flour, one tablespoonful of cream tartar, one half teaspoonful of soda, one egg and the yolks of three more. This makes cake for two pies.

PICKLE FOR HAMS.—For one hundred pounds of ham take six gallons of water, nine pounds of salt, one quart of molasses, three ounces of saltpeter and one ounce of saleratus. When ready to smoke they can be soaked and freshened to taste with salt.

POTATO Cakes.—Take mashed potatoes flour and a little lard to make them sweet add a little powdered loaf sugar, mix with just enough milk to make the paste stiff enough to roll, make it the size and thickness of a muffin, and bake quickly.

Limitations in Poultry Keeping. For a hundred dollars spent in the purchase and careful keeping of a few fowls, a hundred dollars may be gained each year. But if this business is suddenly increased ten times, with the expectation that the profits will be multiplied proportionally, a failure is sure to result—as a rule. We have known this to be the case many a time and oft.

A Bad Record and Good Advice. The Georgia Agricultural Society compels the planters of that State to behold the result of their farming, as follows: "No surplus of meat and bread for sale to non-producers in our midst—none for the stranger at our gates. No, not enough, or near enough, for our own household."

And yet it is shown that 12 acres would easily support 10 people. Here are the facts: "We assume that 130 bushels of meal, 12 barrels of flour, 100 bushels of sweet potatoes, 70 bushels of Irish potatoes, 1,000 pounds of pork, the milk and butter from 2 cows, the profits of 30 hens, the honey from 5 hives, the fruit from a very limited number of fruit trees, with such a supply of garden vegetables as three-fourths of an acre would produce, will supply a family of ten comfortably and abundantly."

The dear little Detroit boys have a new game. They stretch ropes across the sidewalks and trip up the ladies.

The Tiebhorne Case.

A Condensed History of the Affair which has Created so Great a Sensation in England.

The following sketch of the Tiebhorne case, the claimant of which has just been sentenced to fourteen years' transportation, will be read with interest at this time.

In March, 1853, Roger Charles Doughty Tiebhorne, born January 5, 1829, sailed for Valparaiso, Chili. In March, 1854, he embarked at Rio Janeiro for New York in the Bella, which was subsequently lost at sea, all his passengers and crew having been drowned. Roger Tiebhorne, who would have been Sir Roger Tiebhorne had he lived, was regarded as dead by all his family and friends with the exception of his mother, the Dowager Lady Tiebhorne.

Sir James, Roger's father, died, and was succeeded by his second son, Alfred, in the title and the estates. In the year 1865 Lady Tiebhorne inserted an advertisement in an Australian paper, which met the eye of a Mr. William Gibbs, an attorney of Wagga-Wagga, who fixed upon a man named Thomas Castro related by his second son, Alfred, in the title and the estates. In the year 1865 Lady Tiebhorne inserted an advertisement in an Australian paper, which met the eye of a Mr. William Gibbs, an attorney of Wagga-Wagga, who fixed upon a man named Thomas Castro related by his second son, Alfred, in the title and the estates.

Lady Tiebhorne, in Europe, was immediately informed of the important discovery that had been made, letters passed between her and Castro, and in September, 1866, the latter sailed for Europe, accompanied by his wife and by an old negro, Andrew Bogle, a former servant of the Tiebhornes and a resident of Sydney, whose acquaintance he had made, and who recognized in him the missing Roger.

Lady Tiebhorne received Castro joyfully, and recognized him as her son; but none of the Tiebhorne family identified him. Roger, when he disappeared, was a slight, effeminate looking person, while Castro was a very tall and athletic man. When Castro made his appearance in England Sir Alfred Tiebhorne, Roger's father, was dead. Little time was lost by Castro, fortified by Lady Tiebhorne's recognition and advocacy, in preparing to lay proof before the courts of his identity with Roger Tiebhorne. Commissions were sent to Australia and Chili to take evidence in the case, and the witnesses identified him. Roger, when he disappeared, was a slight, effeminate looking person, while Castro was a very tall and athletic man.

A suit in Chancery for the recovery of the Tiebhorne estates was the preliminary step, the first great trial in which Castro, now the claimant, figured. This cause was the ejection action in the Court of Common Pleas, the late Lord Chief Justice Bovill presiding, of Tiebhorne vs. Lushington, the latter representing the Tiebhorne family. In the course of the trial, which commenced in 1870, and lasted for some time, and finally, before the Judge had delivered his charge, they announced in court that they had made up their minds, and that they did not need to hear any more on the subject. As this was equivalent to a verdict against the claimant, he had the case referred to the jury, his legal advisers consented to a non-suit, and the Lord Chief Justice immediately committed him for trial on the charge of willful and corrupt perjury.

He was imprisoned for five weeks, and the conviction of that time he was released on bail. Lord Rivers, Messrs. Onslow and Whalley, members of Parliament, and one other going his sureties. He was himself also required to give bail in $10,000. The claimant passed many of the following months in visiting various towns of England, accompanied by Messrs. Onslow and Whalley, and making public addresses, to hear which an admittance fee was charged. This money was intended to assist in defraying the expenses of his coming trial, even as the "Tiebhorne case," so called, had been sold previously to the trial. Onslow and Whalley at these meetings, and much enthusiasm was manifested by the populace in his case.

The trial for perjury, which has just closed with the conviction of the defendant, began on April 23, 1873. The issue was between the Queen and "Thomas Castro, alias Roger Charles Doughty Tiebhorne, Baronet." The indictment comprised twenty-six counts, in each of which the defendant was charged with a specific act of perjury. Among the charges were those that he had falsely sworn that he was the son of Sir Roger Tiebhorne, and that he had seduced his cousin Miss Doughty, and that he was not the son of George Orton, the butcher. There were a number of charges less grave; but the substantial issues raised were whether the defendant had sworn falsely to the effect that he was Roger Tiebhorne and in denying his identity with Arthur Orton. The time of the Court was taken up until the 20th of May in reading documents, and on that day the examination of the mass of witnesses for the prosecution was commenced. On the fifty-sixth day of the trial, the 10th of July, Mr. Hawkins, counsel for the prosecution, announced that the case for the prosecution was closed. The number of witnesses against the defendant numbered 212, among whom were the Tiebhorne family and friends and connections, French as well as English; Chilian, Australian, Wapping, and other Orton witnesses, etc.

An adjournment of the Court until July 12 then ensued in order to give

XLIIIrd CONGRESS.

The Naval Appropriation bill, as it goes from the Senate back to the House, increases the appropriation for the equipment of the USS Albatross, from $1,100,000 to $1,250,000; that for provisions for officers, seamen, and marines is increased from $1,300,000 to $1,352,500; that for repairs and outfitting of the USS Albatross is increased from $1,500,000 to $1,855,000. The contingent expenses of the Naval Academy are fixed at $340,000 instead of $200,000. Sixty thousand dollars are appropriated for the contingent expenses of the Marine Corps instead of $100,000.

The bill to provide for the appointment of a commission to investigate the alcoholic liquor traffic was taken up. Mr. Bayard, of Delaware, opposed the passage of the bill on the ground that the Federal Government would be interfering in matters within the jurisdiction of the States. Mr. Finlayson, of Texas, favored the bill, and spoke of the evil effects of intoxicating liquors. He believed the use of alcoholic liquors was the cause of the split between the North and the South.

Mr. Scott, of Pennsylvania, presented a petition of workmen of Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Ohio, praying for the restoration of the tariff on iron. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, from the Finance Committee, reported a bill to amend an act relating to import duties on fruit, being the bill to correct an error in the late Tariff bill, which was passed.

The bill to amend an act relating to the collection of claims of laborers for the late railroad reorganization, being under discussion, Mr. Sargent said: The city of Philadelphia has appropriated $500,000, and the State of Pennsylvania $100,000, for the relief of laborers who had been discharged from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and Congress was asked to appropriate $5,000,000 to be paid to the laborers.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill revising the franking privilege. Mr. E. J. Roberts, of N. Y., moved to lay the bill on the table, which was rejected by yeas 140. After several attempted amendments the vote was taken on the final passage of the bill and it was rejected, yeas 131.

Mr. Small, of N. H., presented resolutions of the New Hampshire Press Association for the restoration of the right of the press to publish news by telegraph. He declared that these resolutions were the voice of two millions of freemen, that it was foolish to fight against the press, and that the Philadelphia or any other platform, and that they would have justice inside the Republican party if they could, outside if they must.

Mr. Tyler, of Indiana, moved to reconsider the vote of the House on the bill revising the franking privilege. He said he would call it up when the members were more generally in their seats, and that he would move to reconsider the vote of the House on the bill. The bill was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. E. H. Roberts addressed the House in reply to Mr. Dawes' recent speech; he asserted that the quality of the country was not the revenues, was improving, and that Congress was doing its duty in enforcing retrenchment.

To Prison for Life.

William A. Stone, one of the Canastota incendiaries, by profession a lawyer, thirty years of age, was sentenced to life imprisonment on the first degree. In passing sentence upon him, Judge Murray said: "You have been convicted by the jury, after a fair trial, of arson in the first degree. With the verdict I think no one can complain; the evidence fairly warranted the conviction. Your life is no palliation for your offense. You are liberally educated; you became a member of the learned profession. You knew crimes against the law and the consequences, and yet under this light and knowledge you committed this offense. It is a most gratifying one; it was not the killing of one dwelling. You have committed to the flames many habitations. You have sent out into the dark night many families. They have been obliged to go forth fearing for their lives. What could have induced you to do this? You were married, and you only know! But justice has overtaken you at last. Henceforth you are to be deprived of society and all its pleasures and advantages. It is to be hoped that you will seek the pardon of Heaven. The sentence of the court is that you be confined to the State Prison at Auburn during the term of your natural life."

Triumph of American Pianos.

The Imperial Commission at Vienna has decided the question of merit in piano-forte manufacture by awarding the only Gold Medal within their gift to Messrs. George Steck & Co., of N. Y. This is a magnificent testimonial to the wonderful beauties of tone and workmanship in the Steck instruments, and will unquestionably give them the newly well-established prestige. A. Y. Tribune.

The official letter is as follows: "VIENNA, Dec. 13, 1873. 'GEO. STECK, Exp. - Sir, I have the pleasure to inform you that you have been awarded the Baron Schwarz-Schönborn's Gold Medal awarded to you for the Pianos exhibited by you at the Vienna Exposition. Yours faithfully, THOMAS McCLINTOCK, U. S. Com'rs' Exp.'"

Leaves and Lungs.

There is everywhere an exchange going on between leaves and lungs; lungs give carbon to leaves, and keep oxygen themselves. But how is this in winter, when there are no leaves except upon evergreens? Do these leaves take up all the carbon that is then breathed out? No, they are not numerous enough to do this. Does carbonic acid gas then increase in the air, and oxygen lessen? Not at all. It is as in summer when leaves are alive and breathing. I will tell you how this can be. Gases readily mix with each other, especially when shaken. Now every motion of air, every gust of wind, shakes the carbonic acid gas, and scatters the carbonic acid gas. This gas, therefore, we may say, dies on the wings of the wind, and breathed out in one place may thus find its way to many places, not merely miles out at the North in the winter, but may thus go to numerous places, and be breathed in by leaves there, and the sunny southern climes send oxygen for the lungs of those who dwell in the North.

Deafness Caused by Catarrh.

Catarrh not unfrequently produces deafness. Mr. Levi Springer, of Nettie Lake, (I. O.) Williams Co., formerly of Durbin's Corner, O., has been cured of deafness of fourteen years' standing, by using Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. He says he could not hear a person talk when seated by his side, and can now hear the church bells ring two miles distant—so he writes.

A MARKED CASE OF DEAFNESS CURED. DICERONVILLE, Nire. Co., N. Y., Feb. 22, 1873. About one year ago I caught a severe cold in the head, which terminated in a severe form of Catarrh. During the time peculiar noises occurred in the passages and I became wholly deaf in one ear, with partial deafness in the other. The inflammation had involved all the delicate structures of the ear, and I was in immediate danger of permanent deafness. The discharge became profuse and fetid, both into my throat and from my ears. In this condition I called on Dr. Pierce for aid, who prescribed his Golden Medical Discovery and Catarrh Remedy, and under their use I have rapidly recovered. My hearing is restored, and my Catarrh is entirely well. JOHN SMITH.

NH Despondendum. A real healthy man or woman, is a rarity; and what wonder? when we realize that it is the custom to overload the stomach, and then produce chronic disease by the use of spirituous liquors, "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restoratives," etc. Having first produced disease by over-indulgence, the wonder why "nothing does him good." Just so; and the reason is that they all, or nearly all, find a basis in alcohol—or poison. To all this discouraged, we can conscientiously say, "make one more trial. Discard spirituous medicines, and give Nature a chance, aiding her in the struggle by using one of her own pure and unadulterated herb medicines, in the shape of VINEGAR BITTERS. The discoverer, DR.
