From the Pittsburgh Dispatch, Indiscreet Talk.

Just now the leaders of both parties are charging each other with deliberate fraud, and an attempt to corrupt the ballot-box. An individual who listens to them, who is ignorant of the wiles and schemes politicians sometimes resort to to carry their point and secure a victory, would come to the conclusion that they are all the very pinks of moral perfection and honesty. Every one of them denounces fraud in as strong terms as the English language supplies, and declares he wants nothing more than the votes east in Louisiana and Florida shall be counted fairly, by which he generally means that they shall be so counted as that his candidate shall not be left out in the cold. The height of honesty. in the estimation of these gentlemen who have gone down South to exercise their powers of numeration, is, that their candidate shall be declared elected, if not by an overwhelming, at least by a decisive majority. If any tionary feeling. It is to be hoped. other count should be made the partisans against whom it shall be made will cry, "fraud," until their throats are hoarse.

This is our opinion, which we base not only on the declarations that have been made, but also on the course which has usually been followed by politicians. We believe that there is not one of those who have gone down South, but is convinced that his candidate has been elected, and if the votes should be counted till doomsday, he will not change his mind upon this subject. Every one asserts there has been fraud, and that it must be exposed. When men indulge in declarations of this kind, they are not in cause. the best frame and temper of mind for coming to just and impartial conclusions.

The animus of the leaders of the two parties is seen in the indiscreet words to which they often give utterance. It has not been an uncommon thing, for nearly two weeks, for papers and convention to complete the election politicians to hint, and in some lustances to declare in so many words, that if the vote does not show that their candidate has been elected, there must have been fraud perpetrated, and that the representative of those who committed it, can never be installed President of the United States. Even some very grave men, who are not accustomed to be demonstrative on any occasion, have not hesitated to declare that if any other candidate than the one of their party should be counted in, he cannot and must not be inaugurated. Such language is un-American, and unwise. The universal law among us is, that the majority shall rule, and if it should be declared that Haves has a majority of the electors chosen he must be the next Pres dent of the United States. But if, on the other hand, it shall appear that Tilden is the choice of the people of the country, there must be no obstructions thrown in the way to prevent his entry into the White House as the Chief Magistrate of the nation. The country is not prepared for another war, and such a th'ag as determining at the point of the bayonet who shall be the next President of the United States, should not be thought of for a moment. Those editors and hair-brained politicians who suggest such a thing as war to determine the question, would be the very last persons who would shoulder a musket or unsheath a sword. They might take great pleasure in seeing others engaging in mortal combat, but they would be very careful to keep in the rear, and out of range of musketry and artillery. When Abraham Lincoln was elected honestly and fairly to preside over the country from the 4th of March. 1861, for four years, the cry of the disappointed was we will never submit, and a vile rail splitter shall not Times. be allowed to exercise the functions of Chief Magistrate in this country. When such talk was first indulged in, some people langhed at it, and said it Saturday night, the floor gave way and was mercly the bluster of braggarts, who had no serious intention of carrying their threats into execution. But as the time for Lincoln's inauguration drew near, it began to appear that there was some reality in the threats uttered, and if it had not been for the extreme caution exercised, he would never have escaped alive out of the hands of the "plug-uglies" of Baltimore. But the people were determined that the man who had been fairly elected should be installed President of the United States, and he was. Despite the opposition shown to his Presidency Abraham Lincoln stood at the helm of the ship of State for four years, and never disappeared from the deck even when it was in jured, neither seriously. Many of the tiames, and the noble craft seemed as if it would be burned to the water's probably die. e ige. Some of the papers of the country made light of the affair of Lincoln's escape from assassination at the hands of the Baltimore roughs, and wrote many a caricature of the manner in which he succeeded in evading them, by donning Tartan plaid and a Glengary bonnet. We can scarcely think that such a thing will be again attempted during the present century, and we hope not for ever, but when heated partisans keep up the constant ery of resistance, at any cost, it is difficult to say what might take place.

the one which the people shall reject must prepare to bear up under defeat. If it were rowdies and roughs only that were giving utterance to the de-claration that there should not be an inauguration, unless their candidate shall be counted in, we could, perhaps, pardon the indiscretion, but when we hear men of standing, intelligence and professed patriotism, talking in this way we have no patience with them, and are ready to pray that the country may soon get rid of them, for so long as they remain here they will only be disturbers of the peace and destroyers of the nation. There are good and sincere patriots who will pay no attention to the empty threats made by a few cowardly politicians, but it would be much better if they were not uttered. Unless fully convinced that they were fairly elected we don't believe that either Governor Hayes or Governor Tilden would allow himself to be escorted to the White House by armed bands of men. The candidate who shall be declared duly elected must have a reasonable assurance that the people desire him to be their ruler, or he will not accept of the office.

The indiscreet remarks of some partisans, who desire office more than anything else, have a tendency to inflame the passions, and beget bad and revolutherefore, that all will patiently await the result, and when announced will abide by it

It is thought that the cost of electng a President is about three million dollars which ought to be quite enough to secure a good one, but none at all after such expense would be rather extravagant if it were not for the fun we have to think of.

Ir is well to recollect, during all this excitement, that the Presidential electors will not meet in the several States until the first Wednesday in December, and that their votes will not be connted until the second Wednesday in February. It is on this late date that the presiding officer of the Senate, in the presence of the two Houses of Congress, must declare who is elected President. But Congress will meet on the first Monday in December, and there is no reason why the two houses should not, and every reason why they should, in the time intervening, agree upon such rules to govern the counting of the electoral vote as will secure the peaceful and lawful adjustment of any dispute that can arise. Another singular turn in the state of the Presidential contest is made in the asser tion that a loss of 2,218 votes for Hayes in Louisiana has been incurred through a printer's plunder in placing the names of Hayes and Wheeler at the head of the

A WOMAN STRIKES HER HUSBAND WITH AN AXE:---A melancholy affair occurred in Spring Creek, Warren county, last Friday morning. Mrs. E. During the dispute Mrs. Jewell suddenly seized an axe and struck her husband with it. The blade hit him just under the shoulder blade making a just under the shoulder blade, making wound over five inches long and several inches deep. It is supposed that it will prove fatal.
